1. Rev. ROBERT R. POTT was mortally wounded in battle near the South Side Railroad, Virginia, on Friday, March 31, 1865, and died the same night, aged twenty-seven years.

In early life he was converted and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church. In 1860 he was admitted on trial in the East Baltimore Conference, and labored successively in the following charges: Catawissa, Orangeville, Castle Fin, Newport, and Penn's Valley. While connected with this last charge, during August, 1864, he determined to enlist in the defense of the National government. He unfortunately found himself among those who were unwilling to contribute anything toward sustaining the government in its hour of peril. Fearing in consequence the dishonor of a draft, he entered the service, and became a member of the Two Hundred and Tenth Regiment of Pennsylvania Volunteers. Thus, while he feared dishonor, he was not afraid to become a soldier. Writing to his mother during the winter following his enlistment he said, "I may get through, or I may not; but should I die in the Lord, death will be no disaster." He was the first to fall in that memorable South Side Railroad attack. A minie ball pierced his body in the region of the heart. After suffering great pain for about ten hours, his spirit winged away to join the host of martyrs that had been immolated upon the altar of their country to stay the tread of treason.

Brother Pott had secured something of a liberal education, and industriously continued during his ministry to store his mind with varied and useful knowledge. He blended cheerfulness of spirit with generous feeling and a courteous manner. His piety was fervent and exemplary. His ministry was earnest and zealous, and frequently marked by the conversion of souls.

We mourn the loss of one so young, around whose future so much promise clustered. Tearfully we weave our chaplet and place it on the grave of the young warrior; and while we do it we cannot repress the thought, Would God that he had lived to share the triumph which his own valor aided to secure!

2. Rev. WESLEY M. SHOWALTER was born in Clearfield County, Pa., February 24, 1831, and died at Salona, Clinton County, Pa., November 27, 1865. His mother, who was a woman of excellent Christian character, was for many years the stay and support of Methodism in Phillipsburgh. When only ten years of age, doubtless influenced by the pious example of his mother, Brother Showalter gave his heart to God. As a member of the Church, he was distinguished for his zeal, fidelity, and fearlessness in the discharge of duty. In the year 1855 he entered the traveling ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and was appointed to Clearfield Circuit; in 1856 he was appointed to Lock Haven Circuit, where his qualities as a Christian and a minister endeared him to all who knew him; in 1857–58 his field of labor was Baltimore Circuit, and in 1859–60 Cumberland Circuit; in 1861–62 his appointment was North Baltimore Station. Here he labored with great acceptability and success. He was placed in charge of Ashland Station in 1863–64. The charge at that time was little more than missionary ground. Through his labors a neat and substantial church edifice was erected, and the station is now one among the promising of the conference. Here his health began to fail, and many thought he should desist entirely from labor; but he thought otherwise. He loved the ministry, and was unwilling to retire therefrom.

In 1865 he received his last appointment, which was to Bedford Station. In this charge he labored with his usual earnestness and success until early in the fall; and when no longer able to perform the duties devolving upon him, he reluctantly resigned his place to another, hoping that in a different sphere of activity he might recover his health. He removed with his family to Salona, at which place he "finished his course with joy." As a Christian, Brother Showalter was frank, conscientious, and devoted. His conversation was in heaven. His life was consecrated to every noble purpose. He was recognized as a man of God. As a preacher he was discriminating, candid, and direct; his speech and his preaching was not so much with enticing words of man's wisdom as in demonstration of the Spirit and of power. Many are the seals of his ministry. He excelled in singing, possessing a voice of singular sweetness and power. This gift contributed greatly to enhance his usefulness as a minister of the gospel. When, finally, after many fruitless efforts to recover his health, it became evident to himself, as well as others, that his end was near, he wrote a letter to his presiding elder, Rev. T. Barnhart, from which we extract the following: "I do not think

I shall ever rally. I may linger some months, and may die in a few weeks, or less. As to my religious feeling, the present is a sweet calm; the future, glorious. I rest on Jesus, and 'how much more shall the blood of Christ,' etc. Glorious news from Bedford! May it go on! I hardly expect to meet my brethren at Williamsport next March; but if my release is signed before that, what a glorious meeting I will have with those who are already there! Then I shall meet the rest of you as you come. Glorious hope! Pray for us, and especially for my family." As was to be expected, Brother Showalter's death was glorious. Amid the sundering of earthly ties his heart was firm. When, a few days previous to his death, he was asked concerning the state of his mind, he replied, "All is bright as noonday. I have no doubts, no fears. I have in times past been sorely tempted, and I have sometimes feared that in the hour of death I should not have strength to conquer; but my fears were needless. My enemy is not permitted to come near me." His faith was unwavering. "I trust," said he, "in the Lord Jehovah, in whom is everlasting strength." He referred feelingly to his family, especially to his little son, for whom he felt the tenderest affection. "I should like to live to take care of and educate my boy." He was referred to the promise, "Leave thy fatherless children, I will preserve them alive, and let thy widows trust in me." "This is my trust," said he; "I know God will take care of them." The Sabbath preceding his death was a day of sweet influences to his soul. At intervals his reason would fail; but for the most part he was fully conscious of his condition and of all that was passing around him. He called for his mother's likeness. It was given him, and all day long he would hold it in his hand, look at it, press it to his heart, and talk of her and heaven until all eyes were filled with tears. Thus died Brother Wesley M. Showalter, one who will long live in the affections and sacred memories of the members of the East Baltimore Conference.

3. Rev. Samuel Wesley Price was born in Mifflin County, Pa., December 19, 1833. Of Methodist parents, and of Methodistic training, it is not strange that he made himself a minister of a second birth, "not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God," definite as to time and place, and wrote it on the fly-leaf of the Bible thus: "I was born spiritually, June 20, 1850, in Strattonville, Clarion County, Pa." He was licensed to exhort in the winter of 1852; at a quarterly conference held in M'Veytown, Pa., February 19, 1853, he was licensed to preach, and also recommended to the Baltimore Annual Conference "for admission into the traveling connection." He was received, and thus the Church called whom God called into that ministerial army,

> "Along whose front no sabers shine,
> No blood-red pennons wave;
> Its banner bears the single line,
> 'Our duty is to save.'"

"As a good soldier of Jesus Christ" he warred on the following fields of battle: 1853, York Springs; 1854, Carlisle Circuit; 1855, Coalmont; 1856, Newville; 1857, Green Village; 1858–59, Hampstead; 1860–61, Jersey Shore Station; 1862, Espy and Light-street; 1863–64, Strawbridge, Baltimore; and 1865, Pine-street, Williamsport, Pa., where he died at half past seven o'clock on Monday evening, January 8, 1866.

As held in public esteem, rarely no page brighter than Brother Price's could be written in memoriam of any one so early mustered out of service as was he. Let us cull a brief record, and learn how surely "the memory of the just is blessed." An obituary in the County Press declared, "Seldom has it fallen to our lot to register the departure of a young minister so universally popular, so generally useful, and so devotedly faithful." An editorial in one of the papers of the city where he died spoke of him thus: "He was truly a good man, of sterling worth, and a blessing to any community. His works in our midst will remain an enduring tribute to his memory." In a written communication to a friend a young gentleman said, "I arrived here on Monday evening to find the whole community in mourning. Every one is saddened by this mysterious dispensation. All seem to feel they have lost a dear friend, for to know Mr. Price was to love him." Exclaimed a Christian lady of culture when the telegraph flashed over the wires the news of his death, "Well, Mr. Price was my beau ideal of a Christian gentleman." Feelingly wrote a youthful maiden, fresh from the death-scene, "Just think what we have lost! Mary and I went up to see him, and he died about a minute before we got there. O such a sight! Strong men crying aloud, and the women weeping! Little Sammy looked up to his ma and said, 'O, ma, what will we do now?' Mrs. P. smoothed Mr. Price's face and talked to him, and told Sammy that God would take care of them. I never saw such an affecting sight—I never will forget it! How different from last Monday night at our donation! We were all gay and happy around him, and this evening weeping around his death-bed!"

Brother Price in youth and manhood was high-toned and honorable. He was free from petty jealousies; and while ambitious to succeed himself, he was pleased with the success of others. He had a large heart; the smallness of his means only limited his generous acts of liberality. In his adherence to principle, and in the discharge of duty, even when a false expediency or a weak and hurtful compromise demanded silence, he was manly, outspoken, and firm. Of a sound judgment, and a keen discrimination of character, coupled with a rare faculty of adapting himself to the peculiarities and circumstances of men, he was discreet. In no instance did he hinder his usefulness, or give offense, by an act of imprudence. In sentiment and feeling he was delicate, and therefore shrank from contact with every form of moral pollution. He seemed to have a natural abhorrence of the inuendo and double entendre which implied a corrupt image, or left a moral taint upon the soul.

As a Christian those who knew him best never doubted his sincerity, nor the reality of the work of the Holy Spirit upon his heart. As the Bible was his daily companion, as he prayed "evening and morning and at noon" in secret, and never neglected the public means of grace, class-meeting, prayer-meeting, and preaching, his Christian career was an exemplification of the truth, "The path of the just is as the shining light that shineth more and more unto the perfect day." He spoke to a friend, a few weeks before he died, of his clear conceptions of the wondrous love of God, and the freeness of salvation in Christ.

In the Gospel ministry he was a growing man. His early educational advantages were limited and ordinary. His first public efforts in prayer, exhortation, and preaching were not especially promising. There were those who almost despaired of him; but those who knew best anticipated the success which crowned his more mature years. From the commencement of his ministry he determined to be "a workman that needeth not to be ashamed." Filled with a holy ambition to excel in all the duties of his high office, he applied himself with no common zeal and diligence to those studies best calculated to promote ministerial usefulness. The fruit of this earnest and careful study was seen in the admirable clearness with which he expounded the word of God, showing that he was master of the thought and subject-matter which he wished to communicate. Another effect of close study was seen in the pleasant and profitable variety which characterized his public ministry: he eschewed sameness, and brought "out of his treasure things new and old." He showed great originality in the plans of his sermons, and was the servile imitator of no master of textual arrangement. In this particular he was independent and self-reliant. With a mind cast in a logical mould, his thoughts were expressed in an orderly and systematic way. As a pastor, few men excelled him in especial adaptation to that part of a minister's work; he won all hearts by his considerate kindness and Christian sympathy; he was an especial favorite with the children of his charge. His ministry was fruitful in all his fields of labor.

For a moment now linger we around his death-bed. He taught us how to live; he will teach us how to die! Arrested, in the midst of his labors and the glory of his success, by typhoid pneumonia, he bravely looked "the last enemy" in the face. He spoke minutely of his temporal affairs, and, on the presumption of his death, calmly gave directions respecting his funeral, and the management and education of his children. He has left the Church, in his dying words, a rich legacy. Said he, "Friends, if I die I want you to stick to the old ship." To Rev. Dr. Gere he said, "Good-by; if we don't meet at conference we will meet in glory. If I die, tell the conference I died in the faith." When suffering intensely he remarked, "My views of the atonement are clear. If I die, I am ready. If it were the Lord's will I would like to live a while yet for my family; but I am satisfied. The Lord's will be done!" His wife asked him, "Do you feel Jesus precious?" He answered, "Yes, O yes! glory, glory!" He requested that the hymn commencing "On Jordan's stormy banks I stand" should be sung. He joined in the singing, and when the hymn was ended he said, "Sing on; sing a chorus." His wife asked, "Shall we sing, 'There'll be no more sorrow there?'" He answered, "Yes," and started the chorus himself. He asked for his children. Allie came in weeping. "Don't cry, Allie," he said, "you'll come to heaven some day, and you will see papa there." To Irving he said, "Be a good boy; be kind to mamma." Bertie was then brought in, and Mrs. P. remarked, "Here is Bertie, pa." He looked at him, smiled, and said, "Bertie, Bertie. Ma, set him on my breast." The child was placed across his face and he kissed him twice, and took his little hand in his and pressed it. He said to Brothers Gere and Gray, "The eternal God is my refuge, and underneath me are the everlasting arms." When Rev. Mr. Simonton, of the Presbyterian Church, inquired, "Brother Price, you are very sick? we hope you can trust in Jesus, and feel him very near," he replied, "O yes. He is with me; he has made all my bed in my sickness. 'Jesus can make a dying bed feel soft as downy pillows are.'" The Christian passing down into the death-stream, but triumphing gloriously in the passage, added, "'The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want.'" Brother Gray took up the strain, "'He maketh me to lie down in green pastures.'" Brother Price continued, "'He leadeth me beside the still waters.'" He tried to say more, but his utterance failed. He retained, however, his reason to the last. About fifteen minutes before he expired he looked around the room; this was the last look at earth and loved ones here. The next look was at heaven and dear ones there. He seemed desirous to say something, and in answer to some one who asked, "Do you want anything?" he replied, "Nothing," and this was his last word uttered on earth. What was the first word he uttered—rather say, shouted—in heaven? We imagine it was "Glory!"

> "Not in the fiery hurricane of strife,
> 'Mid slaughtered legions, he resigned his life;
> But peaceful as the twilight's parting ray,
> His spirit vanished from its house of clay,
> And left on kindred souls such power imprest,
> They seemed with him to enter into rest."

At his own request, Brother Price's remains were taken to M'Veytown, Pa., and were laid in the family burying-ground, January 12, 1866.

H. N. Sipes, J. Turner—2.

1. Rev. HENRY N. SIPES, son of Henry and Sarah Sipes, was born in Fulton County, Pa., in 1833. He was converted in early youth, and began his ministry in his nineteenth year under the direction of his presiding elder. He united with this conference in 1854, and was appointed to Hereford Circuit. He subsequently filled the following appointments with great acceptance and efficiency: 1855, Liberty Circuit; 1856, Alto Dale; 1857–58, Gorsuch Station, Washington; 1859–60, Fletcher and Providence. While at Fletcher and Providence he was married, July 6, 1860, to Miss Maggie Powell, daughter of William Powell, Esq., of Washington, D. C. In 1861–62 he held the relation of chaplain to United States Penitentiary at Washington. In 1863 he was appointed to Waugh Chapel; 1864–65 to East Washington Station, where he closed his labors, June 20, 1865.

In connection with the ministry of Brother Sipes large numbers were added to the Church. At East Washington Station, the winter and spring previous to his death, there was an extensive revival into which he threw all the energies of soul and body. This labor hastened his end. He fell at his post, full of faith and complete in the peace of the Lord Jesus Christ. During the progress of the disease which cut him down he suffered for many weeks almost untold agony of body, and yet no murmur escaped him. To the writer of this imperfect tribute he said that he "would like to live to proclaim the precious gospel of his Master," but that he was ready to do and suffer the will of his Father and not of himself. When asked, as he neared his end, if he had faith in Christ, he responded that "he only feared lest he had too much faith," meaning that in view of his own felt unworthiness, he feared only that his confidence was presumption. His mind was clear as he approached his end. He gave full direction in regard to his temporal affairs and his burial. The last evening of his stay on earth he desired his friends to open the window that he might view once more the setting sun. Before that sun rose again in glory the rapt vision of the city that has "no need of the sun, neither of the moon to shine in it, the light thereof being the glory of God and of the Lamb," burst on his enraptured spirit.

The Baltimore Conference has lost in the decease of Rev. H. N. Sipes one of its best men. He possessed a vigorous and well-stored mind, untiring industry and unflinching courage in his work. He was an excellent preacher and a devoted pastor. As a husband and father he was kind, and as a friend affectionate and consistent. His experience as a Christian was always clear. He was well instructed in systematic theology and in the peculiar doctrines of Methodism. His best affections were given to the Church in which he was converted and in which he died. But, while loving his own Church so strongly, his soul embraced all the children of Christ of whatever name. In addition to this he was a devoted lover of his country. In the midst of national trouble, when the life of his country was in peril, when men's hearts almost stood still from alarm, his voice gave no uncertain sound; all his influence was given to preserve his government and to uphold its banner; and no more earnest prayers ascended from patriot's heart or from public place than arose from his place of prayer.

Indeed, in estimating the character of the departed, as a whole, we repeat, with deliberation, the Baltimore Conference has lost one of its very best men. His memory is a precious legacy; and while lamenting his early death, we rejoice that after much toil and intense suffering he is at last safe where there "shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying; neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away."

2. Rev. James Turner was born in Jersey Shore, Penn., February 19, 1822, and died in Anne Arundel County, Md., June 2, 1865, aged forty-three years.

In the eighteenth year of his age Brother Turner was converted to God at a camp-meeting held on Lycoming Circuit, Baltimore Conference, and connected himself with the Methodist Episcopal Church. In 1844 he removed to Anne Arundel County, Md., and engaged in school-teaching. Feeling called of God to preach the gospel, and exhibiting gifts and graces for the work of the ministry, he was licensed to preach by the quarterly conference for Severn Circuit. Finding him faithful in his calling as a local preacher, the same circuit, in the spring of 1846, recommended him to, and he was received on trial in, the Baltimore Annual Conference, and appointed to Westminster Circuit, Maryland. In 1847 he traveled Danville Circuit, Penn; in 1848 Winchester Circuit, and in 1849 Jacksonville Circuit, Va. In all these fields of labor he was eminently useful and successful in his ministrations. In 1849, the last year of his itinerant life, he was married to Miss Mary Ann Warfield of Anne Arundel County, Md. She and three children still live to mourn his death. His health, from youth feeble, now failing him, he was compelled reluctantly to ask a supernumerary relation, and retire to his home in Maryland. The obligations of the pastoral relation were not the only motives influencing the life of this faithful man of God. He loved the souls of men and the work of his Master; and with all the zeal and earnestness his feeble health would permit, he labored in the vineyard of the Lord. He was an ardent lover of the Church. Through all her trials, from enemies without and foes within, he was ever fearless in her defense, and devoted to her interest.

Of Brother Turner, one who knew him well has written: "He felt a particular interest in the young, and the Sunday-school cause received a large share of his personal effort and attention. In the social circle he was cheerful without levity, and easy without familiarity. In the bosom of his family he was gentle without weakness, and fond without improper indulgence. In the citizenship of the world he was honest, industrious, and benevolent. In the pulpit he was earnest, evangelical, and impressive, and many souls were added unto the Lord through his ministry."

He was a man of "honest report" and consistent life, of strong faith and steady purpose. In life, active and useful; in heart, peaceful and hopeful. When Brother Turner was first taken sick the welfare of his sorrowing wife and dependent children seemed to trouble him; but in earnest prayer he committed them to God, "the judge of the widow and the father of the fatherless," and found sweet relief in the assurance of his care and protection. No fears as to his personal safety for a moment troubled him. To his brother, in reply to inquiries, he frequently said, "I have no fear, all is right. I have set my house in order; nothing disturbs me as to the future." To his pastor he remarked, "I have been a sufferer for twenty years; but it is all right. The Lord is wise and good, and I feel that he will not add a single redundant pang to my cup of sorrow."

"Feel my pulse," said he to a friend just before death, "and tell me what you think of my condition." "As far as your body is concerned," said the friend, "you are almost gone; how is it with your soul?" "All calm and resigned; 'I know in whom I have believed,'" was his answer, and then calmly sunk into the arms of Christ, to be "forever with the Lord!"

J. Shane, J. I. Brady—2.

1. Rev. JOSEPH SHANE was born in Jefferson County, Ohio, April 9, 1834, and died in Apollo, Armstrong County, Pa., January 16, 1866, in the thirty-first year of his age.

Brother Shane was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church when about seventeen years of age. He was united in marriage to Catherine Winters, December 30, 1856. He was licensed as a local preacher April 25, 1857, by Rev. C. H. Jackson, presiding elder of Steubenville District. He traveled Sandyville Circuit six months as a supply, and in 1859 was received into the Pittsburgh Conference on trial and appointed in charge of Cambria Circuit, Blairsville District, and in 1860 he was returned to this charge. In 1861–62 he was appointed to Salisbury and Hopewell Circuit; in 1863–65 he was appointed to Burrell and Apollo Circuit. In the spring of 1865 his health failed from the effects of excessive labor, and he was compelled to resign his charge. After lingering for a few months he departed this life in full assurance of a blissful immortality.

As an "embassador of Christ" he "went about doing good," and souls were saved through his instrumentality. It is the testimony of those who waited on his ministry, that during the last year of his itinerant life he preached with increased fervency and zeal. He loved to dwell on the necessity of scriptural holiness, and remarked in his last hours that if he should be spared he would preach the doctrine more zealously than ever before. His severe and protracted illness was borne with patient resignation, and through grace he was enabled to say, in speaking of his family, "I will leave them in the care of the Lord."

The Sabbath preceding his departure was a day peculiarly precious to his soul. From each one of the little group of friends that gathered around his bedside he asked a pledge, that by the grace of God they would meet him in heaven, and then requested that the hymn commencing, "Come, sing to me of heaven," be sung, adding at the same time, "What would all the world be worth if I had no hope of heaven?" As his strength grew weaker and weaker his faith grew stronger and stronger until calmly he "fell asleep in Jesus," and went home to be forever with the Lord."

His remains were carried to the Methodist Episcopal Church in Apollo, followed by a large procession of friends, where religious services appropriate to the occasion were participated in by Rev. Mr. Orr of the Presbyterian and Rev. Mr. Woolfrey of the Lutheran Church. From thence his body was removed to his home in Ohio and interred in the family burying-ground, where it now rests in hope.

2. Rev. JOHN IRWIN BRADY was born in Westmoreland County, Pa., November 10, 1831, and died in Washington County, Ohio, April 21, 1865. He experienced the pardoning mercy of God, and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, in the fifteenth year of his age, at a meeting held at Moffitt's Chapel, in Monroe County, Ohio, by Rev. S. P. Woolf, in 1847. He was licensed to preach in 1854, and admitted into the traveling connection on trial in the Pittsburgh Conference in 1855, and appointed to the Salem Circuit. In 1856–57 he traveled the Sharon Circuit; in 1858–59 the Brownsville Circuit; in 1860 the Norwich Circuit; in 1861–62 the Cumberland Circuit.

In the month of August, 1862, he volunteered in the Ninety-seventh Regiment Ohio Volunteers, and was commissioned first lieutenant of Company B. He was severely wounded at Missionary Ridge, November 25, 1863, from which he suffered much. He was honorably discharged, but not until it became evident that he must die of consumption, induced by hardship and exposure in the service of his country.

He was married in 1857, to Miss Gould, of Washington County, Ohio, who with her two little boys lives to mourn their great and irreparable loss.

His sufferings were great and protracted, but his death victorious. His last hours were hours of deep and precious communion with God. Christ was precious, and his prospects clear. Triumphantly he passed from labor to reward.

Samuel J. Connor,* William Barnes, D. Lamdin—3.

1. Rev. WILLIAM BARNES, "by the will of God," closed his labors and his life, after a sudden illness, in Philadelphia, November 25, 1865.

He was born in Tyrone County, near Cookstown, Ireland, about the year 1795. His parents were both religious. His father was a Presbyterian, and his mother a member of the Church of England, and also of the Methodist Society. Early in life he emigrated to this country. He was converted to God in his nineteenth year in the city of Baltimore, and soon after commenced the work of the ministry. He entered the traveling connection in the Baltimore Conference in 1817, having been previously employed by the presiding elder. He traveled about eight years in the Baltimore Conference, when, by the division of the conference, he became a member of the Pittsburgh Conference, but was transferred in the spring of the same year to the Philadelphia Conference. His several fields of labor were as follows: In 1817, Calvert, Md.; 1818, Rockingham; 1819, Bedford, Pa.; 1820, Bottetourt, Va.; 1821, Uniontown and Brownsville, Pa.; 1822, Connellsville, Pa.; 1823–24, Wheeling, Va.; 1825, St. George's, Pa. In 1826 he was left without an appointment at his own request, on account of affliction. In the spring of 1827 he was transferred to the Pittsburgh Conference, but not being desirous of the change he was subsequently retransferred to the Philadelphia Conference. In 1828–29 he was appointed to Lewistown, Del.; 1830, Snow Hill, Md.; 1831, Elkton, Md.; 1832, Queen Anne's, Md.; 1833–34, Dover, Del.; 1835–36, Salem, Philadelphia, Pa; 1837–38, St. Paul's, Philadelphia; 1839–40, Harrisburgh, Pa.; 1841–42, Pottsville, Pa.; 1843–44, Eighth-street, Philadelphia; 1845, Wharton-street, Philadelphia; 1846, Western Church, Philadelphia; 1847–48, Columbia, Pa.; 1849–50, Easton, Pa.; 1851–1852, Manayunk, Pa.; 1853–54, Sanctuary, Philadelphia; 1855, Asbury, West Philadelphia; 1826, Nazareth, Philadelphia; 1857–58, Columbia, Pa.; 1859–60, Union, Wilmington, Del.; 1861–62, Salem, Philadelphia; 1863–64, Emory, Philadelphia; 1865, Bristol, Pa.

At the time of his death he bore the honored distinction of being the oldest effective member of the Philadelphia Conference. In the enjoyment of his usually vigorous health, in company with his son, he visited Philadelphia to attend to some important business. On his way to the steamboat, returning to his home in Bristol, his son, observing that he faltered in his step, remarked to him, "Father, you are sick." Proceeding a short distance his son, perceiving that he was ill, had him immediately conveyed in a carriage to the residence of his friend, Hon. J. W. Quiggle, where he received immediate medical aid and every kindness that could be bestowed. While in the carriage he became insensible, but during the first five hours of his illness there were occasional intervals of consciousness, during which he answered several questions, but at times seemed anxious to speak, but could not articulate. He seemed mentally engaged in his loved employ of preaching the Gospel, passing his right hand through all the gestures customary with him while engaged in his earnest pulpit ministrations; but though his lips moved rapidly not a sound was uttered. After this he traced in form as on paper, and in his own peculiar style, the outline of a discourse, finishing with a peculiar gesture. To the question, "Are you afraid to die?" he promptly and emphatically replied, "No." His last words were, "I want to go home," which were interpreted by his friends as referring to his home in Bristol. His illness was of eleven hours' duration, the last six of which he lay totally unconscious, except for a few moments, seeming as in a deep slumber. The precise moment of his death was scarcely discernible, so gentle was his transition from earth to heaven. His disease was pronounced by his physicians to be "pressure of blood upon the brain, produced by the sudden breaking of a small blood vessel."

* Obituary not received.

Thus suddenly has passed from our midst our venerated and beloved Brother Barns, who for brilliancy of intellect, power of pulpit ministration, purity of motive, guilelessness of conversation, warmth of social nature, and devotion to his work, his country, and his God, was justly distinguished as a "Prince in God's Israel." In the removal of our brother his family have lost a most devoted husband and father, and the Church one of her most gifted and faithful ministers, who for nearly fifty years stood forth in the originality of his genius as a noble champion of Methodism and Protestant Christianity. His death seemed a fitting close of his life. Full of years and covered with honors, spared the anguish of continued sickness, and even the pains of dying, we look upon his death as involving almost a translation. Like one of old, "He walked with God, and was not, for God took him."

The funeral services were held in the Union Church, Philadelphia, November 30, 1865, when that spacious edifice was crowded to its utmost capacity by the brethren and friends of the deceased, who gathered together from the various city and adjacent churches to pay the last tribute of respect to one they loved and honored. The devotional exercises were conducted by a number of the more intimate friends of the deceased, while the vast audience were impressively addressed by Rev. Dr. Castle, Rev. Dr. Goddard of the Protestant Epicopal Church, who was with him in his illness, Rev. Bishop Simpson, and Rev. Dr. Schon, who bore a feeling tribute to the man of God in his coffin, who had been the instrument under God, in the days of his youth, in bringing him to Jesus.

A pleasing incident in connection with the funeral services was the conversion of one of the daughters of the deceased, thus giving joy in the midst of sorrow; joy not only in the Church below, but joy in the Church above; joy in which the glorified father no doubt participated.

His remains were deposited, with suitable religious services, in the vault of the Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church, West Philadelphia.

"Servant of God, well done!
Thy glorious warfare's past;
The battle's fought, the race is run,
And thou art crowned at last!"

2. Rev. Daniel Lambdin, the only son of Daniel and Margaret Lambdin, was born in Kent County, Del., August 5, 1794, and died April 4, 1865, aged seventy years.

His parents were Methodists, and were contemporary with the founders of Methodism in Delaware, under the influence of whose teaching and example he grew up a moral and industrious young man, and received such an English education as the schools in the county were able at that time to furnish. His disposition was kind and genial, his temper amiable; but in the autumn of 1819 he realized that he must be born again, and at a religious meeting held at a private house in the neighborhood, after earnestly seeking all night, he was converted about the dawn of the morning. He joined the Methodist Episcopal Church at his father's house; and such was his pious life and promise of usefulness that he soon occupied the relation of class-leader, exhorter, and local preacher.

He was received on trial in the Philadelphia Conference in the spring of 1823, and acceptably filled the following appointments consecutively: Queen Anne, Caroline, Cambridge, Dorchester, Dover, Milford, Snow Hill, Lewistown, Salisbury, Dorchester, and Cambridge a second time, Princess Anne; presiding elder of Easton District, presiding elder of Wilmington District, each four years; Talbot, Greensborough, Church Hill, Frederica, and Smyrna Circuit. In 1855 he became a supernumerary on Camden Circuit, and continued thus with but little abatement of labor till 1865, when he was again made effective and appointed to Willow Grove Circuit, where he spent one Sabbath, his last Sabbath on earth, April 2, 1865, having been thirty-two years in the effective and ten years in a supernumerary relation, making a ministry of forty-two years in the Philadelphia Conference.

Brother Lambdin's preaching was plain, sound, and fervent; the Bible and the standard authors of Methodism were the sources whence he gathered the material for his sermons, and while preaching the word he sometimes received abundant baptisms of the Holy Spirit, and the audience would strongly realize the presence and the glory of God.

The death of our dear brother was mysterious and very sudden. He appeared to be in his usual health and cheerfulness, and about three o'clock P. M. on the 4th of April, 1865, while in the act of obtaining a glass of water, he fell senseless and speechless; a motion of the hand to the region of the heart seemed to indicate the locality of his distress. The best medical attendance was immediately secured, but all efforts to revive him failed, and he died in two hours from the time of the attack. Appropriate funeral services were held in the Methodist Episcopal Church in Camden, conducted by Rev. I. T. Cooper, D. D., I. W. Hammersly, and the presiding elder of Easton District, T. J. Thompson; after which he was borne to the Methodist Episcopal Cemetery in Camden, and laid beside the companion of his youth, loved and revered by his family, and honored by the community among whom he had lived. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord."

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

W. C. Nelson, O. Badgeley—2.

1. Rev. WARREN C. NELSON was born at Cold Springs, Putnam County, N. Y., November 18, 1805; embraced religion when twenty-three years of age, and was received into the Methodist Episcopal Church by Rev. J. Reynolds; was licensed to preach by Rev. Manning Force, at Haverstraw, and was employed as a supply on New Prospect Circuit in 1835. He was admitted on trial in the Philadelphia Conference in 1836. He labored efficiently in the following appointments: 1836, Flanders; 1837, Belvidere; 1838, Warren; 1839, Vernon; 1840–41, Stillwater; 1842, Berkshire; 1843, Landiston; 1844–45, Lafayette; 1846–47, New Prospect; 1848–49, Bargaintown; 1850–51, Atlantic. In 1852, his health failing, he received a supernumerary relation, but still labored as his strength allowed. He maintained an unblemished Christian character, always exhibiting a sweet and devotional spirit. Previous to the war, hoping to improve his financial circumstances, he moved his family into Virginia, and during the war was within the lines of the enemy. These were times of severe trial to himself and family, having suffered the loss of all his property. We learn from private sources, though surrounded by the spirit of rebellion, he never lost his love for the old flag and the Union, and that he rejoiced greatly when Petersburgh, the place of his residence, was captured by our arms.

His severe and brief illness—congestion of the brain—prevented his leaving any dying testimony. However, a few days before his decease he said he felt that he should not live through the summer, but that he was fully prepared, and willing and anxious to depart and be at rest.

Brother Nelson was a good, earnest, practical, and successful minister of the Gospel. He has passed through deep waters of affliction, but has gained, we doubt not, his heavenly home, leaving a widow and five children, two sons and three daughters, to mourn their loss.

2. Rev. OLIVER BADGELEY, of the Newark Conference, was born near Springfield, N. J., April 11, 1807. He was converted to God and entered his service under the ministry of the Rev. John Potts, at Morristown, in the year 1823. He joined what was then the Philadelphia Conference in 1832, during which year he was stationed at Stroudsburgh. Thence his appointments were in the following order: In 1833, Hamburgh Circuit; 1834, Milford; 1835–36, Barryville. In the last named year he married; but at the next succeeding conference, owing to his impaired health, took a superannuated relation, in which relation he remained until the spring of 1844. During this year and the following he was stationed at Mount Horeb; in 1846–47 at Allentown; in 1848–49 at New Prospect; in 1850–51 at Vernon; in 1852–53 at Harmony; in 1854–55 at Asbury; in 1856–57 at Lafayette; in 1858 at West Town and Rome; in 1859 at Columbia and Hainesburgh; in 1860 at Harmony again; in 1861–62 at Delaware. At this time his health failed again, and he took a superannuated relation, which was changed to that of supernumerary at the spring conference of 1865. This record sums up thirty-three years in the ministry: twenty-two in "active service," eleven on the "retired list." His death, which occurred on Sabbath, October 1, 1865, at Roxburgh, N. J., was sudden. On the day named he went into the field near his residence to look after the cattle, where some time afterward he was found by his daughter, already beyond the reach of words, and in a few moments expired. Though thus deprived of that "dying testimony" which must ever be precious to stricken hearts, his family and friends and brother ministers have even a "more sure word of testimony" than this in the remembrance of the "meek and quiet spirit" which witnessed him to have been a true disciple and a faithful minister of our Lord Jesus Christ.

Funeral services were held in the Methodist Episcopal Church at Belvidere, Revs. "Father Bunghart," C. S. Vancleve, P. E., Drs. Porter and Crane, and Rev. John Hanlon participating. The sermon, a very feeling and appropriate one, was delivered, by the Rev. C. A. Lippincott, from 2 Tim. iv, 7, 8, "I have fought a good fight," etc.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

Paul Vandervoort.

Rev. PAUL VANDERVOORT was born in Monongalia County, Va., June 19, 1828; embraced religion and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1848, and entered the traveling connection in the Western Virginia Conference in June, 1855. He served the Church faithfully on seven different circuits, and on the 26th of August, 1865, in the thirty-eighth year of his age, and in the eleventh year of his itinerant ministry, he died in Jollytown, Greene County, Pa.

Brother Vandervoort was a good man. From the time of his conversion he exemplified the graces of Christianity by holy living. He was kind, courteous, and honorable in his deportment, calm and firm in his purposes, steadfast in his friendship, and cheerful in his intercourse with others. These qualities, linked with his plain, practical preaching and fervent zeal, made him one of our most successful ministers, and gave him promise of much usefulness in the Church of God. But how mysterious the ways of divine Providence, and how delusive are our earthly prospects! In the prime of his life, and while he was attending to the duties of an effective preacher on the Blacksville Circuit, he was suddenly prostrated by dysentery, and in two weeks sank into the grave.

Thus has fallen our brother and co-laborer in the vineyard of the Lord. But he had "kept the faith," and was ready for "his departure." On his dying bed he added the clearest and strongest dying testimony to his living professions of eighteen years, that he was a child of God and an heir of heaven.

In a message to his presiding elder a few hours before his death he sent an affectionate farewell to his brethren in the ministry, and added, "The grace of God sustains me in a dying hour. I expect to lay down the cross and take up the crown."

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

M. Chase.

Rev. MOSES CHASE was born in Newton, N. H., in 1803. At the age of twenty-three he became a happy convert to Christ, and identified himself with the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was soon appointed class-leader, and faithfully attended to the duties of that office until 1833, when he joined the New Hampshire Conference and was stationed at Milton. We have no means of tracing his career as a minister in all his appointments, but are assured by his friends, as well as our personal knowledge, that he was a man of great energy of character, full of faith and the Holy Ghost. He waa possessed of more than ordinary natural ability, and was remarkably successful in winning souls. We believe that hardly a month of his long term of service passed without success in this respect. About five thousand were added to the Church under his ministry, thirty of whom became ministers. He was frequently called upon to assist in protracted meetings. At one of these he witnessed the conversion of four hundred. On one day he baptized one hundred and twelve, eighty-nine by immersion. He was especially adapted to meet emergencies. On one occasion, when a protracted meeting was being held, the official brethren decided that the people were so gospel-hardened it would be of no use to prosecute the work. They asked his opinion. His reply was, "We will have a revival here, or you will bury me in that graveyard," pointing to the cemetery. A glorious revival ensued, such as has not been witnessed since that time, although twenty years have elapsed. In him the cause of education found an ardent friend. In the work of encouraging young men to make thorough preparation for the responsibilities of life he had few equals. He was a true friend of the slave, and an earnest advocate of the cause of temperance. The work of the Christian Commission was faithfully performed by him in the last part of the war. We believe that but few men in this or any other conference ever performed more service in thirty-three consecutive years. The close of life, although the summons was sudden, appears to have been in perfect keeping with his earnest career. His last official act was the marriage ceremony on Sunday morning, January 7, 1866. From this he repaired to the church, but the Lord met him before entering the sacred desk, and he ceased at once to work and live.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

David Kilburn.

Rev. DAVID KILBURN was born in Gilsum, New Hampshire, October 24, 1784, and died in Hartford, Vermont, July 13, 1865, in the eighty-first year of his age.

When seventeen years old, through the instrumentality of Brother John Gove, he was converted and received into the Methodist Episcopal Church. In 1805 he was licensed to preach, and after three years' labor as a local preacher was received into the New England Conference, and received his first appointment at Union, Maine. His subsequent stations were: Readfield, Maine; Stanstead, Canada; Danville, Barnard and White River, Needham, Boston, Portland, Me.; Wethersfield, and Barre, Vt.; Providence, R. I., Lowell, Lynn-Common, Bridgewater, Northwest Bridgewater, Waltham, Barre, Ashburnham, South Royalston, Enfield, and Southampton. He traveled also the following districts as presiding elder: Portland District, Maine Conference; New Hampshire, Boston, Springfield, and Providence Districts in the New England Conference.

In 1851 he became superannuated; in 1852-53 was effective; in 1854 was supernumerary; in 1856 effective; in 1858 again supernumerary; in 1859 again became superannuated, in which relation he remained till the time of his decease. During the last six years of his life he resided in Keene, New Hampshire, near the place of his birth, and preached in that vicinity while health permitted. Few ministers have traveled more extensively, or formed more acquaintances in New England than he. He was a man of great endurance, and constitutionally qualified for the immense labor he performed; of sound judgment, clear understanding, strong will; earnest and conscientious in the performance of duty. During his laborious ministry he sustained a high reputation and exerted a powerful influence. He was eminent in his administrative abilities. It was often said of him that he was born for a leader. His prudent foresight, his comprehensive views, his knowledge of men, his almost intuitive perception of character, his urbanity, his high moral and Christian virtues, entitled him to the social and official position in the Church which he so faithfully served. The excellent and devoted partner of his life, who had toiled in the itinerant work with him throughout nearly his entire ministry, having died a short time previous, and being without children, he was left alone. Feeble in health, seven months prior to his decease he removed to Hartford, Vermont, to spend the rest of his life in the family of his nephew, Brother Merrill I. Kilburn, whose kind care and attention rendered his last days pleasant and comfortable. The closing of his life was in harmony with the period of his activity. Contemplating his future with perfect confidence and serenity, he made arrangements with regard to his funeral, selecting the preachers to perform the services, and disposing of his property, a few thousands of which he willed to benevolent purposes, a large share for the Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church. His last appearance in public was about three weeks before his death, at a meeting near his residence. Sitting in his chair, pale and feeble, for about twenty minutes he addressed the audience, causing the deepest sensation among those who listened to the aged saint. All felt that they heard him for the last time. In family devotion on the Sabbath eve before he died, raising himself in bed, in an extremely weak though clear voice he offered prayer, commending each to the divine care and protection. This was his last vocal utterance in prayer, and nearly the last he ever spoke. His remains were removed to Keene July 15, 1865, and after appropriate services were deposited beside his beloved companion in the beautiful cemetery where he sleeps.

"Servant of God, well done!
Thy glorious warfare's past;
The battle's fought, the race is run,
And thou art crowned at last!"

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

J. F. Booth.

Rev. JOHN F. BOOTH was born in the city of Brooklyn, L. I., June 1, 1829, and died of congestion of the lungs at Green Point, L. I., on Sabbath morning, November 26, 1865, after a few days of severe illness.

Brother Booth entered the New York East Conference in 1855, and passed all his itinerant ministry on Long Island. He was appointed successively to the following places: In 1855–56, New Utrecht; 1857–58, Port Jefferson; 1859–60, Sag Harbor; 1861–62, Fleet-street, Brooklyn; 1863–65, Green Point.

His ministry was short, but decisive, and was crowned with large success. A circumstance occurred on the threshold of his public life that demonstrated the sterling character of the young itinerant. At his first appointment the town of New Utrecht was visited with an alarming epidemic. The whole neighborhood was stricken with yellow fever, and while all hearts were failing them for fear, this brave and earnest minister clung steadily to his duty, and never deserted his post until, at last worn out with work and watching, he was ordered by his physician to leave the infected district long enough to somewhat recover his wasted energies. Before he was hardly well again, however, he was back with his flock, ready to suffer or to die. And this same spirit of bold daring to do his duty characterized him to the end of his ministry.

After serving our Churches at Port Jefferson and Sag Harbor with great acceptance and usefulness, Brother Booth, very unexpectedly to himself, was appointed to the charge of the Fleet-street Church of Brooklyn, one of the largest societies of our denomination. This appointment was all the more embarrassing because it covered the part of Brooklyn where Brother Booth had spent all his boyhood and young manhood, so that it was with the feeling that "a prophet is not without honor save in his own country and among his own kindred," that he finally and reluctantly assumed this charge; but no one of its honored pastors ever better fulfilled his mission, or has a more fragrant name among that good people. It was during his pastorate in Brooklyn that his noble patriotism found ample development in the care of the sick and wounded soldiers that thronged the hospitals of the vicinity; and so thoroughly did he enter into this work that he attracted the attention of the whole community. He subsequently spent a number of weeks in the service of the Christian Commission, and proved himself so adapted by executive ability, as well as the most delicate and beautiful sympathy with the sick and afflicted, that the Commission was very anxious to secure his entire time for their service as a general field agent in the arrangement and dispensation of their noble charities.

Brother Booth's crowning excellence was his heart-devotion to the young. In the work of the Sunday-school he was a model minister. He acted upon the philosophy of securing the children for God, as the surest way of securing the world for him.

The closing year of his life was devoted to the enterprise of building a new church at Green Point, and it was in his utter devotion to this good work that he became so exhausted, that when a severe pneumonia seized him he had not sufficient vitality to resist the attack, and peacefully yielded to die. As a Christian, Brother Booth's profession was not loud or ostentatious, but remarkably firm and consistent. A few weeks before his death he received a most gracious baptism of the Holy Ghost, and it was in the fullness of that baptism that death found him. The members of the conference and brethren of the Churches he served will long cherish his memory as that of a faithful, self-sacrificing, and useful minister of the Lord Jesus. His funeral was very largely attended, and the most abundant evidence given of how deeply the community in which he lived felt his loss.

1. Rev. THOMAS COLCLAZER was born in Georgetown, D. C., April 5, 1811; was converted in Ohio in 1830; was admitted on trial in North Indiana Conference at South Bend, 1851; ordained deacon at Richmond, in 1853, by Bishop Ames; elder, at Goshen, 1855, by Bishop Scott. He continued to fill the various charges assigned him with becoming zeal and integrity until a few days before his decease, which occurred at Union City, Ind., September 26, 1865, of congestive chills, in the fifty-fifth year of his age. He was a plain, earnest man, a good preacher, and a faithful Christian. His end was peace, and his record is on high.

2. Rev. ORVIL P. BOYDEN was born in Kentucky September 23, 1819; was converted at a camp-meeting in Southern Indiana, under the preaching of Bishop Roberts. He was licensed to preach September 16, 1843, and was admitted on trial in the Indiana Conference in 1843. He filled some of the best charges in the North Indiana Conference during a period of more than twenty years. In the pulpit he had but few superiors in his conference. He died at Angola, Steuben County, Ind., August 22, 1865, of typhoid fever, in the forty-sixth year of his age, greatly beloved by his charge and the citizens generally. Of him it may be said, his last days were his best.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

John A. Sillick, John B. Hagany—2.

1. REV. JOHN A. SILLICK was born in Saratoga, N. Y., May 21, 1805, and died at his residence in New York July 10, 1865, aged sixty. He experienced religion at the age of twelve, but leaving home to learn a trade about that time, and being constantly associated with those who made no profession of religion, he lost his religious comfort, and soon gave up all pretensions to piety. When about twenty-four he visited his father, Rev. Bradley Sillick, who was then engaged in a revival meeting. He returned from that visit powerfully awakened, and began at once to seek for a restoration of the divine favor. The struggle was an earnest one, and while at work, tears streaming from his eyes, and just ready to give up all hope of mercy, faith took hold of the Saviour, and light broke upon his darkened mind. With a bounding heart he ran to tell his shopmates what God had done for his soul. Soon after he felt called of God to the ministry, for which he felt himself entirely incompetent. Expressing his convictions, his employer, an unconverted man, tried to dissuade him, and offered him the entire control of the shop. He accepted the position, but soon after he was disabled by an accident, and for a time obliged to stop work. This providential circumstance, as he regarded it, led him to the conclusion that he ought to obey God rather than man, and he began to prepare for the ministry. He spent two years at the Wilbraham Academy, and about two years at the Wesleyan University.

In 1834 he joined the New York Conference, and was stationed on Burlington Circuit. He remained in the New York Conference till it was divided in 1848, when, by the division, he fell in the New York East Conference. In 1854 he was transferred to the New York Conference, and continued his effective labors till 1861, when he took a superannuated relation, and settled at Yorkville, New York City. He was twenty-seven years an effective minister, laboring with acceptability and success on his charges, some of which were laborious, and four years he was superannuated.

For years he was afflicted with dyspepsia, which affected not only his physical, but at times, more or less, his intellectual powers. In May last he was confined to his room; but his mind was composed, and for the time being he seemed very happy. Indeed the last Sabbath in May was to him and his family a memorable Sabbath. During the day we entered his room and found him weeping. After a little he said, "I am no worse; I am happy; I have just obtained a great victory." But as his disease continued to wear upon him he became more or less mentally deranged, and seemed doubtful and despondent till his death. Those who knew him best, and those who saw him frequently during his last days, can only believe that he is at rest in that world where physical disease will never more disturb his intellectual powers or the "peace profound which his unfettered soul enjoys." He was a kind, generous, companionable man, a good preacher, practical, entertaining, and instructive, and no doubt many spiritual children will be stars in his crown of rejoicing.

2. REV. JOHN B. HAGANY was born in the city of Wilmington, Del., on the 26th of August, in the year 1808. His father was a highly respected, devout, and useful local preacher in the Methodist Episcopal Church. The son, John B., united with the Methodist Episcopal Church about the year 1828, and was received on trial in the Philadelphia Annual Conference in 1831, and appointed to Talbot Circuit in Maryland. He continued in the active ministry as a member of the Philadelphia, New York East, and New York Conferences until his death in the summer of 1865. His pastoral life presents an unbroken career of thirty-four years, during which he rendered with brief and infrequent vacations the most efficient service to the Church in many of her more prominent positions. No man among us was more uniformly acceptable to the people, or retained to the last a more controlling power in the pulpit. He wore well; his ministrations, instead of diminishing in force and attractiveness, cumulated with advancing years into a greater depth, breadth, and richness. Endowed by nature with a strong and quick intellect, he had by diligent study, judicious reading, and close observation acquired no ordinary degree of mental culture. In the English classics he was thoroughly read, and from his familiarity with them he derived not only the fullness of information always at his command, but also the nervous, apt, and elegant use of language which marvelously distinguished both his extemporaneous and written compositions.

Dr. Hagany was not a universal scholar; but although his range of studies was limited, he mastered what he undertook, and consequently positiveness of conviction marked his opinions and utterances. In theology he devoted himself mostly to the old English divines and to John Wesley. It may be safely affirmed that the great founder of Methodism had no more enthusiastic student and lover on the American continent than the subject of this memoir. He had read and inwardly digested everything which that wise and good man had left on record, and by habitual communion had become fully imbued with his spirit, ideas, and method. He comprehended Wesleyanism—its history, doctrines, polity—and could define, defend, and preach it with a skill rare and admirable, and with a success amply attested by the precious results of a long and honored ministry.

As a preacher Dr. Hagany possessed the advantage of a fine physique, a voice of extraordinary compass and sweetness, and of a quiet self-poise which always rendered him a most agreeable and captivating speaker. His audience was put perfectly at ease while he discoursed to them on the grand themes of the Gospel in thoughts so fresh and striking, and in words so terse and chaste, as to make his instructions both entertaining and impressive. A pure imagination wove the facts of a retentive memory and the perceptions of a ripe understanding into ever-varying forms which, by their fidelity to nature, simplified and illuminated his subjects so as to render them a charm to all who listened. His sermons were rarely thrilling, but always pleasing, and occasionally overwhelmingly emotional. Sometimes his pathos would melt and fuse the hearts of an entire congregation into one stream of holy ecstacy and love.

But those who knew this excellent servant of God most intimately will cherish not more the recollection of his public services than the memory of his private walk. He was a devout and earnest Christian, without the ostentation of superior piety. Endued with refined sensibilities, with a keen sense of personal honor, he was slow to admit strangers to his heart, and therefore to many seemed cold and reserved; but when once he found a man worthy his confidence he hesitated not to lavish all his affections upon him, and could neither speak too highly in his praise, nor be too frequently in his company. And it was necessary to see him in a group of such friends to understand and appreciate his character fully. There he shone the brightest, as a companion one of the pleasantest, and as a conversationalist racy and sparkling, with an apt allusion or anecdote to point each thought, his whole talk suffused and suffusing others with an innocent and irresistible mirthfulness. In the gush and flow of companionship, however, he never forgot or forsook the dignity of the minister, nor failed to manifest and maintain toward serious subjects the reverence which is their due.

Of late Dr. Hagany had often alluded to dying in the hearing of his friends; but so habitually cheerful was his temper, and apparently perfect his health, that little account was taken of it. He preached on Sunday, June 25, 1865, to his congregation on "Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his." The subject so enlarged upon him that he postponed a part of it to the evening, but because of sickness was unable to preach. He spent Tuesday following in an agreeable visit with his friend, Rev. J. B. Wakeley, at Yonkers. On Wednesday he was feeling more comfortable, and in the afternoon, while reading Mr. Wesley's Journal, he met a passage referring to Mr. Jeremiah Seed's Sermons. He got a volume of the sermons, found the passage, called his wife's attention to it, and began to read aloud, when suddenly he was seized with spasm of the heart, the book dropped from his hand, and he fell forward and almost instantly expired. "He was not, for God took him." "He ceased at once to work and live."

J. A. Scarritt, J. Spaulding—2.

1. Rev. J. A. SCARRITT was born in Simsbury, Conn., in 1792, and was converted while young. He joined the New England Conference in 1815, and, with the exception of three years' location on account of domestic cares, he continued in the itinerancy until his death.

Brother Scarritt was a noble specimen of the early Methodist itinerants, pious, devoted, firm, and faithful. He was emphatically strong, bold, vigorous, unwearied, self-sacrificing. He filled with great usefulness many of our first stations, and also that of presiding elder. He represented his conference in two General Conferences. For a few of his last years he was superannuated; but his love for Jesus and the Church was unabated, and his labors, as his strength would allow, continued to the last. His death was sudden, but he died well. His death occurred in Sandwich, N. H., November 12, 1865.

2. Rev. JUSTIN SPAULDING was born in Moretown, Vt., in 1802, and died in his native town in 1865. He was converted in early life, and joined the New England Conference in 1823. As a circuit and stationed preacher, as a presiding elder, and as a missionary to South America, he was faithful, acceptable, and useful. He for many years filled honorable positions of much importance and distinction in the Church. He was once a member of the General Conference, and continued active in service until, by God's inscrutable providence, he was compelled to take a superannuated relation. This relation continued through several of his last years.

Brother Spaulding was possessed of many fine traits of character. He was an accomplished Christian gentleman, a good scholar, and an able "minister of the New Testament." In private life he was the true and genial friend, and a most affectionate and attentive husband and father. He rests at last, and his memory will long be cherished by thousands in our ministry and membership.

QUEST. 11. Were all the Preachers' Characters Examined?

This was strictly attended to, by calling over their names before the Conference.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

S. Minor, S. H. Hancock—2.

1. Rev. SHERMAN MINOR was born in Woodbury, Connecticut, March 14, 1793. He professed religion in 1809; joined the Methodist Episcopal Church May, 1810; received license to exhort July, 1814; to preach, March, 1815, and the same year traveled Chatham Circuit; 1816, Whittingham Circuit; 1817, ordained deacon and sent to Thurman Circuit; 1818, Cambridge Circuit; 1819, ordained elder and returned to Cambridge; 1820–21, Pittstown Circuit. October 17, 1820, he was married to Miss Sarah Nicholson, of White Creek, who survives him. In 1822–23 he traveled Montgomery Circuit; 1824–25, Watervliet Circuit; 1826, Pittstown Circuit; 1827, became supernumerary and removed to Fort Ann, where he remained six years. In 1833 he went to Pawlet Circuit; 1834, to Albany District, and remained four years. In 1838 he became agent for Troy Conference Academy, at Poultney, Vermont, and held this relation eight years; 1846, removed to Sandy Hill, where he lived till the sixteenth of February, 1866, when he exchanged mortality for bliss.

Brother Minor was "diligent in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord." He was strictly conscientious, and observed carefully the Saviour's command, "Whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." His own hand supplied his temporal necessities, and he set an example of industry, integrity, and frugality worthy of imitation. The cause of God lay near his heart, and he gave liberally of his substance for its support. As a preacher, he was earnest, affectionate, plain, practical, faithful, always watching over the work assigned him with care and fidelity. He had the happiness of seeing the work of God prosper in his various fields of labor, and many souls were brought to Christ through his ministrations, who shall be "stars in his crown in the day of his rejoicing." He was a man of a meek and quiet spirit, who lived and died at peace with all his fellow-men. One of his last expressions was, "There is light ahead."

"Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace."

2. Rev. SAMUEL H. HANCOCK was born in the town of Oxford, in Chenango County, N. Y., June 21, 1825. A youth of seventeen, he sought and found the Lord. Called soon after to the work of the ministry, he entered upon its duties, under the presiding elder, on Hinsdale Circuit, Mass., embracing appointments in Hinsdale, Washington, Middlefield, and Worthington. The following year (1849) he was received into the traveling connection at the session of the conference in Troy, and was appointed to Castleton, N. Y. The two following years he traveled the old Sandlake Circuit, and was subsequently appointed to Cheshire and Williamstown charges, where, his health failing, he received a supernumerary relation. In this relation he served the Church in New Ashford two years, and the Church at Hinsdale for the same length of time. Some months prior to his decease he was brought down to his bed, from which he was never to rise to resume the duties he was compelled to lay aside. Slowly day by day he wasted away, and neither medical skill nor the anxious ministrations of his wife and friends could stay the work of the destroyer. He peacefully fell asleep, to awake at the resurrection of the just.

As a preacher, Brother Hancock was faithful, laborious, and successful. Sympathetic and ardent in his temperament, he endeared himself to the people he served. He lived in their hearts, and they parted with him with regret when they could retain his services no longer.

Engaging in business when the state of his throat and lungs would not permit him to preach, he pursued it faithfully and honorably, but faithful as well to the duties of the sanctuary, and ever responding, as he was able, to the voice of the Church. He was a good man, and walked carefully before the Lord. He met the last enemy without fear or trepidation. During the various stages of his last sickness he was frequently visited by the pastor of the Church where he resided, who found him resting firmly and sweetly on the atonement. If he had any anxiety at all, it was that he might not give way to one murmuring thought, but suffer patiently to the end. His mind was unclouded to the last, and but a few moments before his dissolution he testified to his perfect trust in the Lord Jesus Christ as his present and all-sufficient Saviour. He leaves a wife and child to mourn his loss

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

Allen Castle.

Rev. ALLEN CASTLE was born in Alburgh, Vt., November 2, 1805. He was blessed with Christian parents, who early consecrated him to God, and soon after left him by their departure to the Christian's home above.

At about eighteen years of age he was converted, and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church under the labors of Rev. Gardner Baker. Having labored some time as an exhorter, in 1833 he was licensed to preach, and entered at once upon the active work of the ministry, which so fully engaged his heart and energies for the remaining part of his useful life. In 1836 he joined the Black River Conference, on whose record his name has stood for nearly a third of a century. He was at our last annual session in feeble health, and received a superannuated relation. Last autumn he was prostrated by fever, which for some time kept his friends in anxious suspense; but our worst fears were too soon realized. On the 21st of October, 1865, our much esteemed and now lamented brother closed his mortal life. He died as the Christian dies, frequently expressing his faith and hope in Christ in language like the following: "Jesus is with me and all around me;" "I am sure death will be gain to me." At one time the dying man of God raised his hands and exclaimed, "Victory! victory! victory through the blood of the Lamb!" The last utterance of those lips which so long proclaimed the gospel of peace was, "All is well! all is well!"

Brother Castle was an earnest, devoted Christian, a faithful minister of the Lord Jesus, a kind husband, an affectionate father, a sincere and reliable friend, a loyal and patriotic citizen, a man who was loved most by those who knew him best. But he is gone. His place among us is now vacant. We shall see his cheerful face and hear his friendly voice no more on earth. Nor shall we again hear at our annual conference roll-call the familiar name of our worthy and dear brother, Allen Castle.

C. Stone.

Rev. CORNELIUS STONE died April 5, 1866, in Jay, aged forty-nine years. He was born in Jay, and while in college was converted and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church. After a thorough collegiate and theological education, he joined the Maine Conference in 1841. His appointments were: Columbia, Clinton, Brunswick, Kent's Hill, Frankfort, Oxford, Wilton, Kendall's Mills, Richmond, New Sharon, Mercer, and Strong. In 1858 his declining health compelled him to retire from the work of the ministry and seek repose in his paternal homestead. Since that time he was twice elected by his townsmen to represent them in the state legislature, and for the last two years was a member of the Senate.

Brother Stone was a man of modest and retiring disposition, but a man of excellent judgment and unblemished character. He was highly esteemed as a faithful minister of the gospel, and an able and discreet legislator. He maintained his Christian integrity and faith in God to the last, and died in the triumph of faith. "My faith is in my Redeemer," "The Lord is my Shepherd," were among the last of his utterances.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

W. Marsh, C. Phenix, A. S. Adams, Ephraim Wiley—4.

1. Rev. William Marsh was born in Orono May 4, 1789, and died August 26, 1865, aged seventy-six years. His parents were pioneers on the Penobscot. His father held the commission of captain in the Revolutionary war, and acted as interpreter with our Indian allies in Arnold's expedition to Quebec. At the close of the war he returned to his home on Marsh Island, now forming a part of Oldtown and a part of Orono. A few years after a stranger appeared in that county in the person of Rev. Joshua Hall. He preached with what seemed to the people astonishing power. Mrs. Marsh soon after experienced religion, and a class was formed: all of which have passed away.

Brother Marsh was converted in his native town when about fifteen years of age, under the labors of Messrs. Weekes and Pettee, who then labored in that part of the state. For a time he enjoyed peace; but afterward lost the evidence of his acceptance with God, and, to some extent, cast off fear and restrained prayer. A year or two after he was again awakened while on a visit to the town of Sidney, under the exhortation of "Fanny Butterfield," afterward Mrs. Newell. This covenant with God was for all time, and he felt ever after that he was not his own; he had given himself to God, and, living or dying, he was the Lord's. This thought shaped his future course, gave consistency to his character, made him an efficient laborer in the Lord's vineyard, and an honor to the Church. He began to preach before he was twenty-one years of age, and soon after was called to assist Father Wentworth on a circuit which included the present Dresden charge. Those were the days of large circuits, hard work, poor fare, and little money. Yet God was with them, and souls were converted. In 1811 he joined the New England Conference, was ordained deacon in 1813, and elder in 1815. His ministerial life was spent as follows: 1811, Durham, Me.; 1812, East Greenwich, R. I.; 1813, New London; 1814, Bristol; 1815, Tolland, Conn.; 1816, Nantucket, Mass.; 1817, Lynn; 1818 he appears to have been sent to Bath, but for some reason now unknown he spent most of that year in Orrington. In 1820 he was superannuated, and from 1821 to 1828 he was located and resided in Orrington, where he labored as he was able; but he was accustomed to speak of this part of his life as nearly a blank. His soul was not at rest, and as soon as he was able he returned to his much-loved work. In 1829, at the earnest request of the Church at Hampden, he again entered the itinerancy and was stationed with them. It was a year of power. The first protracted meeting in the state was held in Hampden in the fall of that year. A powerful revival was the result, the people coming miles to the meeting, and, being converted, returning to their homes to scatter the hallowed influence in regions beyond. Father Marsh used to say that that meeting seemed to possess a self-moving power, to be a thing of life, whole communities being strangely moved upon by the power of God. In 1830–31 he presided on Penobscot District; 1832, was stationed at Houlton. From 1833–37 he was forced, by continued ill health, to take a superannuated relation and retire from active duty. In 1838 he was made effective, and stationed at Lincoln; 1839, at Monroe; 1840, at Frankfort; 1841, superannuated; 1842, was effective, and stationed at Cherryfield; 1843, at Eddington; 1844, again superannuated. In 1845 we find him again effective and presiding elder of Bangor District; 1846–47, on Portland District; 1848, Bangor District; 1849, superannuated; 1850, effective, and stationed at Oldtown; 1851–53, superannuated; 1854–55, effective, and stationed at Orrington Center; 1856–57, at South Orrington, after which he never sustained an effective relation, but resided with his son, Rev. J. N. Marsh, gradually declining, yet cheerful and happy. The loss of his inestimable companion seriously affected his health; but, under the strengthening power of grace, he was enabled to submit quietly to the bereavement. He visited his friends on the charges he had filled, was everywhere received as a friend, and more than a welcome guest; still the same social, genial, Christian gentleman as he had ever been. Age, affliction, pain, and weariness, all combined failed to infuse the least moroseness of spirit, or the least overweening consciousness of self, but rather made him more tender and sympathetic when others suffered. In the spring of 1864 he was smitten with paralysis, and was for months almost helpless. Late in the fall he went to Canada, East, to reside with his daughter. In July he was again smitten with paralysis, and so sudden and severe was the attack that he fell to the floor, and in his fall fractured the bones of his hip and thigh. He lingered, mostly in an unconscious state, until August 26, when the spirit ascended to God.

Father Marsh possessed great natural abilities. As he had clear perception, good judgment, was apt in illustration, graphic in description, and ready with appropriate language, he could not fail to be an able and effective speaker. It is true that his early educational advantages were not great, nor could we speak of him as a critical scholar; yet, in the best sense of the term, he was learned. If he had not acquired languages enough to have several words for every idea, he had acquired the ideas, and could express them in good, wholesome, forcible English. He has been justly styled a model in the social relations. His religious experience was deep, his affections centered on God. As a preacher, in his prime, he had few equals. He seemed at times to entirely command the thought and feelings of his hearers, yet was this almost unbounded influence entirely consecrated to Christ, and used to promote his glory and the salvation of men. It is needless to add, that under such a ministry many were converted. Father Marsh was an admirer of Wesleyan theology, understood it, and was able to defend it against the attacks then made, which were not few nor wanting in violence. Possessed as he was of a logical mind, error appeared to him in its true character, a logical deformity. He could not be beguiled by it, however great its pretensions, or high the station of its defenders. Hence, through a period of fifty-six years, though scores of delusions rose, flourished, and died, and many men of talent made shipwreck of faith, he was never moved, and never failed to discover where the error was, or to see its real character. Nor was he less true to the institutions than to the doctrines of the Church. Secession after secession carried their thousands out of the Church, but our deceased brother never for a moment faltered in his allegiance. As he was always logical, he was ever true. He was in manner graceful and dignified; in spirit genial and social. At seventy-five years of age, though bowed with grief and broken by suffering, he was as cheerful as a child. It was a privilege to visit his chamber of sorrow and listen to his devout, instructive, and even playful conversation. In soul he never grew old. The sickness and death of our brother was in keeping with his character and life. For several weeks his reason reeled, but in his lucid moments he was enabled to bear a triumphant testimony to the saving power of the gospel in man's greatest extremity. Some of his expressions were: "O what visions of glory God is giving me!" "God is giving me visions of glory such as I never dreamed of!" "Can this be death? If this be death O the pain, the bliss of dying!" Thus gloriously has another of the fathers finished his course, and passed to that rest prepared for the righteous.

2. Rev. Cyrus Phenix was born in Limington, Me., December 19, 1818; converted in Avon when nineteen years of age; served three years as a local preacher, and joined the Maine Conference in 1842. During his itinerant life he received the following appointments: 1842, Philippi; 1843–44, Raymond; 1845–46, Charlotte; 1847–48, West Lubec; 1849–50, Cherryfield; 1851, Bristol; 1852, East Pittston; 1853–54, East Vassalborough; 1855–56, Vassalborough; 1857–58, Wiscasset; 1859–60, Waldoborough; 1861–62, Union; 1863, he was superannuated, and supplied Union. In 1848 the East Maine Conference was organized, and as he was in the eastern part of the state he became one of its members. Before he commenced traveling he resided in Philips, Avon, and Plymouth. From the hour of his consecration to God to the day of his death he sustained the character of an honest man, a sincere and devoted Christian, and an able minister of the gospel. In 1843 he was married to Miss Lucinda Latham, daughter of the late Rev. H. W. Latham, who shared in all the labors and trials of the itinerant life, and now mourns his loss. "My husband," she says, "always received his appointments with cheerfulness, loved the work of the ministry, and was strongly attached to his ministerial brethren." From Pittston, Me., on Sunday morning, January 28, 1866, he entered his long-sought rest. His disease was cancer back of the eye. For several months before his death his sufferings were severe in the extreme. Days of pain and nights of weariness were appointed him, yet he bore all with submission to God, and even with Christian cheerfulness. He seemed at times to forget his own pain in his anxiety for the work of God. In the village in which he lived the Methodist Church was unoccupied. When Bishop Simpson, with some of his brethren of the conference, visited him in December last, his heart turned to that vacant pulpit from which his own funeral sermon was soon to be preached, with sorrow that he was no longer able to supply it. "O," said he, "if I only had strength, how gladly would I take the hardest work! how joyfully go to the poorest charge, that I might preach Christ and see souls converted!" The ruling passion of life was strong in death. He would gladly have lived and suffered in order to preach the gospel.

Brother Phenix was a strong man in every sense of the word. Possessed of a physical frame of more than ordinary strength, he was well calculated to endure the hardships of the itineranсy. His personal appearance was prepossessing, his manners modest, yet dignified, and his voice sonorous, yet pleasant and well modulated. He was a strong man in those moral qualities that make up the Christian character. He had a well-developed, a well-balanced mind. There was no one power developed at the expense of the rest, hence there was nothing startling or calculated to excite particular attention; but he always gained attention by sterling good sense, clearness of thought, appropriate expression. With these qualities he could not fail to be an able preacher, especially when we add, he had a warm, a loving heart. He felt what he said, and his hearers knew instinctively that he was both their friend and the messenger of God to them.

Thus was the watchman called in the prime of life and the maturity of his power and usefulness, and when he could not be spared without apparent loss to the Church. Surely God's ways are not as our ways, nor his thoughts as our thoughts. What he does we may not know now, but hope to know hereafter. Of thus much we are sure, he doeth all things well. We are equally sure, that in all his painful sickness and death God was glorified in him. May his family have the blessing of God and the sympathy of the Church!

3. Rev. Alfred S. Adams was born in Union, Me., December, 1824. He was converted when about twelve years of age, through the blessing of God on parental instruction. At what time he joined the Church we have not learned, probably soon after his conversion. Though young in years his experience was clear, his course decided, and he clearly exhibited those talents which in after years made him a successful minister, a clear expositor of truth, and an able defender of the doctrines and usages of the Church of his choice. At what time he left his father's house in Union we have not learned; but in 1847 he was married and settled in Orono, where he was licensed to preach, and from which place he joined the East Maine Conference in 1850, and was stationed at Brownville. In 1851 he labored on Harmony and Ripley Circuit; 1852, Dixmont and Jackson; 1853, Palmyra and Canaan. In 1854–55 he was located. This relation was given him at his own request, that he might by study better qualify himself for the work to which he had devoted his life. These years were spent at the East Maine Conference Seminary, where he greatly profited under the care and instruction of an able board of teachers. In 1856 he was readmitted to the conference and sent to Steuben and Millbridge Circuit, where he remained two years; in 1858 to Lubec, two years; 1860 to Columbia, where he remained two years; 1862 to Pembroke, and 1863 to Cherryfield, where he labored with great acceptability until December, when he enlisted as a private in the Eighteenth Regiment of Maine Volunteers. In this he acted conscientiously. It was, indeed, a dark time in our country's history, and he felt it his duty to go at his country's call. As he was now in the hands of the Secretary of War, he was located. He served as a private about one year, and then was appointed chaplain of the regiment, at the suggestion of the officers. He had won their notice and regard by meritorious conduct. He went with his regiment on the march for Richmond, and continued with it till the close of the war.

In the spring of 1865, as he hoped to return to his chosen and loved work, he was readmitted into the conference and appointed to Bristol, which appointment he never reached. Before he left the army he was very much reduced by chronic diarrhea; but such was the intensity of his desire to see home and his friends again, that by the utmost effort he arrived at Rockland, and was borne thence slowly and carefully to his brother's in Waldoborough, where he died July 24, 1865.

From the time the dear old flag crossed the Rapidan he nobly stood for his country through all the storm of battle. He wrote to a friend, "I have been on every march, seen all the regiment has gone through, been in every battle and skirmish that our company has been in. I have never acquired the reputation of a coward." His colonel, in referring to the fearful scenes from the Rapidan to Petersburgh, says, "In all this he nobly did his duty. Notwithstanding his light frame and frail constitution, he was probably under fire twenty-five times." "I have found," he writes, "great consolation in the Christian's hope amid my trials and dangers." He was a brave Christian soldier, and as such nobly bore his part in the great conflict which has clothed our country in mourning.

Brother Adams was small in stature, yet had sufficient strength to bear the labor of the itinerancy, and even the harder toils of the war, as well as most men. He had quick sensibilities, was a clear and forcible speaker, and most efficient and industrious laborer in his chosen calling. He was a good sermonizer, and frequently spoke with a power which affected the hearts of his hearers. We hoped to have him for years to come as a fellow-laborer, looking upon him as we did as a rising man who would greatly help us in spreading gospel holiness through these lands; but God has otherwise ordered. He was not satisfied with a superficial experience. He fully embraced the doctrine of Christian perfection, and labored diligently for that holiness without which no man may see the Lord. He preached the doctrine earnestly and with effect. The laborers fall. May the great Master raise up others to fill their places!

4. Rev. Ephraim Wiley died in Jackson, La. September 30, 1864, at the age of seventy-six years. The interruption of communication between the North and the South will account for the delay in noticing his death. He was widely known and greatly beloved in New England, where he labored in the work of the ministry about twenty-five years. He continued to preach till ill health compelled him most reluctantly to cease. He commenced preaching in 1814, in Portsmouth, R. I. In 1815–16–17 he preached in Melrose, Mass. Here the Lord greatly blessed his labors in the salvation of souls. Many were converted, among whom was Rev. Dr. Upham of the Providence Conference, whom Brother Wiley received on trial in the Church. In 1817 he was ordained deacon by Bishop Asbury. In 1818 he was admitted on trial in the New England Conference, in the same class with Dr. Fisk, and was stationed in Wellfleet, Mass., where he remained two years. In 1820 he was ordained elder by Bishop George, and stationed in Melrose; in 1821–22 he was stationed in Boston; in 1823–24 he was stationed in Portsmouth, N. H.; in 1825 he was transferred to the Maine Conference, and stationed in Portland, Me., where he continued three years, being supernumerary the last year; in 1823 he was transferred back to the New England Conference, and again stationed at Boston, where he remained two years; in 1830 he was at Lynn, Wood End; in 1831 at Cambridge; in 1832–33 at Provincetown; in 1834 he was again transferred to the Maine Conference, and stationed at Portland, where he remained two years; in 1836–37 he was stationed at Saco, Me.; in 1838 in Augusta, Me.; in 1839, on account of ill health, he took a superannuated relation, and at the organization of the East Maine Conference, not being a resident of the state, he became a member of this body. As an evidence of his popularity as a preacher, it will be noticed that he preached four years at Melrose, four in Boston, and five in Portland.

In 1860 he removed to Jackson, La., to reside with his son, Prof. George H. Wiley, of Centenary College, for the purpose of educating his youngest son in that institution. About a week before his death he had a paralytic stroke, which deprived him of the powers of speech. The greater part of the last three days of his life were passed in a deep sleep, from which he was with difficulty roused to take either food or medicine. Although denied the privilege of communicating with him in his last hours, his friends have clear evidence that he died relying on the great doctrines of the gospel he delighted to preach, and in the full assurance of a glorious immortality.

Brother Wiley was more than an ordinary man. He had good natural abilities, and more than the usual endowment of popular gifts. He was a sweet singer, and a ready, fluent, and pleasant speaker. In society he was cheerful, genial, and affable, and readily secured the good will of those with whom he was associated. God blessed his labors, and made him the instrument of the conversion of many souls. He served his generation well, died in good old age, and has gone to the Church above to be ever with the Lord.

REV. ANDREW NELSON COONS was born March 20, 1825, and died May 31, 1866.

Brother Coons was of Lutheran parentage, and was educated in the doctrines and usages of the Church of his fathers. After reaching early manhood, he sought the power of saving grace in personal conversion, and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church. For several years he served the Church faithfully and efficiently as a local preacher; and when he left the local ranks for the itinerant work, his brethren parted with him with great reluctance. He was received into the Erie Conference in 1862, and stationed at Brookville, where he had labored a part of the year preceding as a supply. In 1863–64 he was stationed in Luthersburgh. In both of these charges he was successful in winning souls to Christ; but failing health compelled him to desist from pulpit labor, and in 1865 he took a supernumerary relation. Hoping that a residence in the West might be beneficial to his health, he removed to Illinois, and again commence the work of an evangelist. He was soon compelled to desist, and removed to Oak Ridge, Mo., where he died in blissful hope of immortal life.

Brother Coons was a man of more than ordinary talent and culture, and, above all, of deep piety. His memory will long be cherished in the Church below, and we doubt not that many in the Church above will honor him as the instrument of their conversion.

QUEST. 13. What is the number of Church members, etc.?

* Obituary not received.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

E. J. Scott, Alexander M'Mullen, W. E. M'Allister—3.

1. Rev. ELISHA J. SCOTT was born in Greensborough, Vt., August 11, 1803, and died in Montpelier, Vt., January 24, 1866, in the sixty-third year of his age.

Brother Scott was the son of pious parents, and received an early religious training. A father's prayers, and a mother's religious instructions, were among his earliest and sweetest recollections. The principles of our holy Christianity took a strong hold of his young mind, and at the early age of twelve years he gave his heart to the Saviour and joined the Baptist Church, of which his parents were members. He continued in this Church some seven years. When the Rev. Wilbur Fisk, of precious memory, was sent to preach in an adjoining town, while listening to his preaching a change was wrought in his views of Christian doctrine, and ever after in sentiment and sympathy he was a Methodist. He had early convictions that he was sent into the world to be a minister of Jesus, and made preparation to enter upon his life-work. He was received on trial in the New England Conference in 1828; was ordained deacon by Bishop Hedding at Barre, June 27, 1830, and elder by Bishop Roberts at Lyndon, August 12, 1832. He filled with great acceptability and usefulness the following appointments: Cabot, Craftsbury, Barton, Brookfield, and Chelsea Circuits; Woodstock, Chelsea, Newbury, and Barre Stations, all one year each; Montpelier District as presiding elder four years, Montpelier Station three years, the third year as a supernumerary. He was then placed on the superannuated list for nine years, when he was again made effective and traveled the Montpelier District a second term of four years as presiding elder. During the last year of this term his health completely failed, and he took a superannuated relation, which he held during the remainder of his life. During his retirement from the active work of the ministry he performed much useful labor in supplying on the Sabbath appointments near the place of his residence, as superintendent of common schools in the country, and as editor of the Vermont Christian Messenger. He was for several years Secretary of the Conference, and a delegate to the General Conference which met at Cincinnati in May, 1836.

His last sickness was distressing, yet borne with complete resignation to the divine will. He spoke earnestly and clearly of his trust in his Saviour, and was cheered with the bright prospect beyond the chilling waters. When told, in answer to his own inquiry, that the sweat upon his brow was the sweat of death, he said, "I am glad, I am glad." On being asked how the future seemed to him as he was about to leave us, he replied, "All is peace—joy!" and without a struggle he fell asleep in Jesus. "Blessed sleep!"

Brother Scott was a good minister of Jesus Christ. Extensive revivals occurred on many of his charges, and he was permitted to receive many useful members into the Church, a number of whom occupy a place in the Christian ministry. As a preacher he was sound, impressive, and evangelical. As a pastor he was active, dignified, and useful—emphatically a man of one work. All his energies were concentrated to the work of saving men, and in the great day many, we doubt not, will be the stars in his crown of rejoicing.

2. Rev. ALEXANDER M'MULLEN died at his residence in Lyndon, the field of his last two years labors, June 6, 1865, aged forty-eight years. He was born in the County of Lowth, Ireland, and received his early religious training under the Established Church, under whose auspices he taught a parish day-school, and served as clerk in the Church. Attracted by novelty, he traveled several miles to hear a Wesleyan itinerant minister preach. The simple dress and earnest manner of the preacher attracted his attention; his novelty yielded to seriousness, under the heart-searching truth which the preacher's plain address made clear to his understanding. He was convicted of sin, and soon after found peace in believing in Christ his Saviour. Henceforth the Methodists were the people of his choice, and in communion with them he lived and died. He began his public services in the Methodist Church in the capacity of a Mission-school teacher, a calling in which he rendered very efficient service to that Church in Ireland, teaching the children and preaching to the people.

In the year 1848, with his wife and six children, he left his native land, led by the hand of Providence, as is doubted not, to seek his fortune in the New World. Quebec was his destined port. On the voyage he became a favorite with the captain, who himself was a pious man, and on this voyage, at least, "the sea knew the Sabbath." Often has the deceased communed with the writer on the precious Sabbaths spent on that "ocean home." Was God thus preparing him for the fearful trials that awaited him? Before the hill-tops of America became discernible from the mast-head, the "baby" sickened and died. To bury the loved form in the ocean, to be food for the monsters of the deep, produced a pang keener than death itself. But the good captain yielded to the entreaty of the mother, and, contrary to the usual custom, there was no "burial at sea." After weary days of watching, "Land, ho!" from the mast-head thrilled the parents' hearts, "and the babe found a grave on the shore."

Alas! this was only the beginning of sorrows. As soon as landed, sickness prostrated every remaining member of the family, and one after another they fell, till the stricken husband and father was left alone to tell the story of his sad bereavement. In Christian resignation he bore his heavy load alone, for he had now no kindred in the New World. His own health being restored, he found that his work was not done, and he girded up his loins to prosecute the journey yet before him.

After some four years of labor as a local preacher —two among the Wesleyan Methodists of Canada, and two in Vermont—he was received on trial as a traveling preacher in the Vermont Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church at the annual session held at Putney in 1854, and received his appointment at Guildhall and Bloomfield. The second year of his probation was spent at Derby, after which he was received into "full connection," and the following year he was again returned to Derby. He was stationed at Albany at the conference of 1857, and at the ensuing conference he was ordained elder, and returned to Albany a second year. At the conference session of 1859 he was stationed at Craftsbury, where he labored two following years. During the conference years of 1861–62 he labored on the Danville Charge, whence he was removed at the conference of 1863 to Lyndon, where he labored as usual for two years, and where, by the grace of God, he finished "the work given him to do."

Brother M'Mullen was called, as above noticed, to weep over the loss of an affectionate wife and six dear children; he now leaves an afflicted widow and five orphan children to weep over his departure. A wife and six children in heaven, a widow and five children on earth! A family in heaven to greet him, a family on earth weeping his departure!

As a man, Brother M'Mullen was pre-eminently kind, social, and benevolent. It is believed that he had not an enemy on earth. Few men have ever been more generally beloved in their sphere of life than was he in his. His education, though limited, was respectable. A glance at his library is sufficient to establish a high estimate of his literary taste. He had good preaching talent, and was popular on all his fields of labor. His spirit was excellent, and to become acquainted with him as a pastor was to love him. He was most emphatically a man of one work; to preach the Gospel was his delight, and to have souls brought to Christ was his glory. Disease had long been preying upon his constitution; but it was not till last Christmas, when actual prostration compelled him, that he desisted from his ordinary pulpit labors, and it was not till the last stages of his illness that he abandoned the hope of again resuming them.

During his protracted illness he manifested the utmost resignation to the will of his divine Master. He often expressed himself as like a ship in the offing ready to put to sea again, or ready to go into the harbor. He was in a "strait between two." The sight of his wife and children made it desirable to remain; but the thought of his heavenly home, "to be with Christ," rendered departure far better. The last scenes of his life were peculiarly interesting. In prayer his triumph seemed complete. He counseled, cheered, and soothed his wife, took a last fond farewell of his children in turn, giving them his dying charge, till he came to the "baby." She had come daily for her kiss, and when he reflected, "She'll come to-morrow for her wonted kiss, and I'll be gone," the fortitude of the dying saint gave place to the sympathy of the dying father; here was his only dying struggle. His last words to those around him were expressive of faith, hope, and love. Thus fell another watchman from his post.

3. Rev. William E. M'Allister departed this life in holy triumph May 1, 1865, aged twenty-eight years.

When assembled one year ago in annual conference, Brother M'Allister, being young and vigorous, seemed to have as fair prospect of long life and usefulness as any member of this conference. He received his appointment, returned home, and began to make preparations for immediate removal; but the hand of disease arrested and laid him low, and in less than one week raised the curtain which vails eternity, and permitted him to pass to his reward. He experienced religion in Newbury, his native town, when about nineteen years of age, under the labors of Brother Haynes Johnson, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, in which Church he was licensed as an exhorter and local preacher. In the fall of 1857 he went West. For six months he was engaged in teaching and going about doing good, preaching Christ and him crucified. In the spring of 1858 he joined the Wisconsin Conference on trial, and was appointed to Patch Grove Circuit. The next year he was transferred to the Vermont Conference, in which he labored as follows: At Kirby, one year; Topsham, two years; Middlesex, two years; Fairlee and North Thetford, one year. He was a preacher of great earnestness, piety, and success. In every field of labor he witnessed fruit in the salvation of souls. In the five years since his ordination as deacon, the baptisms reported by him were twice the average number reported by members of the conference. We deeply mourn his loss, and earnestly pray God to sustain his widow and children, and aid us in following his earnest and devoted example.

B. A. Webster, William J. Peck, Fielding L. Harper—3.

1. Rev. BARTON AUGUSTINE WEBSTER was born January 2, 1826, near Edwardsville, Madison County, Ill.. He was converted at Mount Sterling, Madison County, Ohio, in the year 1839, in the thirteenth year of his age. He was received on trial in the Delaware (now the Central Ohio) Conference in 1856, and appointed to the Westfield Circuit, which he traveled one year, after which he was appointed to the following named circuits: Galena, with Rev. S. Fant, one year; Stratford, two years; St. Mary's, one year; Wapakoneta, one year; Van Wert, one year. At the close of this year his health failed, and he reluctantly consented to take a superannuated relation. For the two past years he has filled the office of deputy-treasurer of Van Wert County with great acceptability to the people.

Brother Webster was a good preacher, instructive and impressive in his preaching, excelling in prayer, living daily in communion with God. A few weeks ago he had to give up the office, and soon took his bed never to recover. I visited him the morning of his death, spending some time in attending to some business for him. After these matters were attended to, I inquired of him how the matter stood with him religiously in view of death, to which he replied, "I have a calm trust in Jesus as my Saviour; but I have no ecstacy, not as much light as I desire. Pray," said he, "that I may have more light." I left him for a short time; during the interval Brother Herbert called to see him, and Brother Webster said to him, "Brother Herbert, I want you to take a seat at the instrument and play and sing once more for me the 'Glory of the Cross,'" and while this beautiful hymn was being sung his soul was filled with light and he rejoiced aloud, saying, "All is light now; I am going home!" I returned and approached him again. Said he, "All is light now, brother." He seemed to be absorbed for a time in deep study, after which he opened his eyes, and, looking me in the face, said, "Brother, I have been looking for the 'dark valley and shadow of death,' but I cannot find it. All is light now." In this happy frame of mind he passed away August 22, 1866, leaving a wife and five children, and numerous friends to mourn his loss.

2. Rev. WILLIAM JOSEPH PECK was born in Wethersfield, Conn., December 11, 1823, and died March 29, 1866. As far as I can learn, at the time of his death he was without father, mother, sister, brother, uncle, or aunt. Hence there is but little reliable information as to his early history. He was raised principally in Dresden, Ohio, and received a respectable English education under the fostering care of A. W. Hinds, who, it appears, was his adopted father. In early life he made a profession of religion, and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church. He maintained a consistent Christian character up to the time he was licensed to preach. In 1855 he was admitted on trial in the North Ohio Conference at Sandusky City, and appointed to Fort Recovery Circuit. The next year, the Conference being divided, he became a member of the Delaware (now Central Ohio) Conference. In 1856 he was appointed to Arcanum Circuit; in 1857 to Granville; in 1858 to Port Jefferson, where he remained two years; in 1860 to De Graff; in 1861 to Zanesfield, where he remained two years; in 1863 to Patterson, where he remained two years, and was appointed the third year, the name of the circuit being changed to Dunkirk.

Brother Peck was a noble Christian minister. As a sermonizer he was concise, interesting, and successful. As a pastor he was well acquainted with his flock, visiting the poor as well as the rich. In his labors he was indefatigable, attending to all the interests of his charge; and hundreds were converted and added to the Church through his instrumentality. He appreciated the charms of music and the beauty of poetry. In the Sabbath-schools the little ones were delighted with his singing, and often were his audiences enraptured with his select melodies. Wherever he went he was admired by the children, and respected by both saint and sinner. He was a kind husband, and an affectionate parent. He was a child of Providence, subjected to poverty and affliction, having but little of this world's goods. He was the husband of two wives: the first, Caroline Johnson, who died in the early part of his ministry; the second, Louisa Morton, who survived him but a few weeks, dying May 11, 1866. Five children, two by his first, and three by his last wife, are left to mourn the loss of their affectionate parents. The last three are dependent on the Church and conference for a support. Brother and Sister Peck were buried in the cemetery at Kenton, Ohio; and soon the membership of Dunkirk Circuit will erect a fine monument to the memory of their beloved pastor and his amiable Christian wife, who sacrificed their lives for the good of the Church, and have now entered upon their reward on high in heaven. Peace be to their memory.

3. Rev. FIELDING L. HARPER died at the parsonage in Bowling Green, Ohio, Jan. 22, 1866. He was born in Tennessee, Feb. 25, 1831. After the death of his father, which occurred when he was quite young, his mother removed to Virginia. At the age of fourteen he came to Zanesville, Ohio, to live with an uncle. Subsequently he went to the Ohio Wesleyan University, with the purpose of graduating in the biblical course; but after two years' study he so declined in health that he was compelled to abandon his cherished purpose. At twenty-two he was employed as a supply on Irville Circuit, Ohio Conference. He was married, June 19, 1856, to Miss Hannah M. Witty, of Pittsburgh, Penn. In September, 1857, he was admitted into the Central Ohio Conference. He filled the following appointments in the Conference: Shannon and Ottawa circuits; Bryan, Wauseon, and Greenville stations. When at Greenville he was attacked with a severe bronchial derangement, and it was with much difficulty that he completed the labors of the year. At the close of that year he took a superannuated relation. At the session of the conference in 1865, it was very difficult for him to decide whether or not duty called him into active service. He desired to be with his brethren in the ministry, but feared his health would not be sufficient. His desire to preach prevailed, and he said, "Give me work; I will do the best I can, and leave the consequences with the Lord."

He was appointed to Bowling Green Circuit, and commenced the labors of the year cheerfully and hopefully; but after having preached a few times he was attacked with severe hemorrhage of the lungs. After a few weeks this difficulty ceased and he began to improve, and became hopeful of resuming his labors. But after having hoped against hope, and patiently suffered much pain, the Divine Master called him home. Neither he nor his companion could believe, until the event was very near, that he must die. When informed that his end was drawing very near, he calmly reflected for a moment, and said, "If it is God's will I am ready and willing to die." The writer asked him if he had any message for his brethren of the conference. "None, further," said the dying minister, "than that all is well." Just before he died he exclaimed, "O how bright!" and looking in the face of his companion, he exclaimed, "My dear wife, blessed be God!" and in a few moments his happy spirit took its flight to the realms of bliss.

A wife and two children, to whom he was affectionately attached, mourn their irreparable loss. Brother Harper was a young man of much promise to the Church. Few ministers of his age possessed a better knowledge of Methodist history and economy than he; and in general knowledge he had few superiors. He was a man of sterling qualities of mind and heart. He possessed a sociality of nature and a sweetness of spirit which peculiarly endeared him to all who knew him. As a minister he was always popular with his people. His style was chaste, his diction earnest, and his labors successful in the vineyard of the Lord. He cherished a constant faith in a living God and a Divine Providence, and "endured as seeing Him who is invisible."

1. Rev. DAVID WHITCOMB was born in 1797, in West Virginia, where he was happily converted to God under the ministry of the Rev. Mr. Strother, and he united with the Methodist Episcopal Church. From the time of his conversion, such was his consistent Christian life that although he was in the midst of a community many of whom were irreligious, they were constrained to say that David Whitcomb was clearly converted. Hence he had the confidence of those who knew him, both in and out of the Church. His call to the work of the holy ministry was strong and convincing to himself, and so satisfactory to the Church that he was soon authorized to preach the gospel, and was recommended to the Ohio Conference, to be holden in Hillsborough September, 1826, where he was received into the traveling connection, and soon gave such proof of his divine call to the work of the ministry as to satisfy the Church that she had not laid hands suddenly or imprudently on him, but that he gave early evidence that he would be an effective laborer in the vineyard of the Lord, which his subsequent life and labors demonstrated. He labored successively and successfully in the following fields: In 1826, Logan Circuit; 1827, Nicholas; 1828, Kenawha; 1829–30, Burlington; 1831, Portsmouth, supernumerary; 1832, Cincinnati; 1833, Lebanon; 1834–35, Zanesville; 1836, Westchester; 1837, New Richmond; 1838, Batavia; 1839, superannuated; 1840, Dayton; 1841, Hamilton and Rossville; 1842, Columbus; 1843-44, Columbus District; 1845, Chillicothe Charge; 1846–47, Portsmouth; 1848, superannuated, and in 1847 removed to Indiana, and settled on a farm near Shelbyville, where he labored for the support of his family, and to have something to give to the needy and to the support of the gospel, relinquishing his claims on the funds of the conference. On all of his fields of toil he added seals to his ministry, who will come forth in the resurrection morning to call him blessed, and be stars in his crown of rejoicing in the day of the Lord Jesus. Last fall, while on a visit to his friends in Butler County, he preached frequently in Monroe Station and in the vicinity. He frequently said that he was conscious that his bodily strength was failing; but he would add, that "my confidence in God, and my hope of eternal life is unshaken." On the 17th day of May 1866, he was suddenly attacked with paralysis, which in six short hours of unconsciousness ended his toil and sufferings in this vale of tears.

* See page 261.

Thus closed the long and useful life of one who lived to be and do good. None knew David Whitcomb but to love him as a pure minded honorable Christian gentleman, and we should rejoice that he has finished his course with joy, and the ministry that he received of the Lord Jesus. May we meet him in heaven, where all our sufferings will be over! Amen.

3. Rev. William E. Spahr was born in Green County, August 1, 1843. From early childhood he was accustomed to retire for secret prayer. His parents were members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and he had the advantages of their Christian training. He was a regular attendant upon the Sabbath-school, and had especially one faithful teacher to whom he often referred with great pleasure. At fourteen years of age he united with the Church, and about four years afterward was happily converted to God while at secret prayer. He was a man of deep piety, and seemed never to have lost the simplicity of childhood, for in the world he was as unsuspecting as a child. There was manifest the innocence of childhood in all his life and labors. His life was truly exemplary, and all could "take knowledge of him that he had been with Jesus." He soon became impressed that it was his duty to preach, and the Church, recognizing in him ability for usefulness, licensed him to preach in 1861. And in 1861–62 he was employed on Bloomingsburgh Circuit, and in 1862–63 on Stanton Circuit, Ohio Conference. In the fall of 1863 he was admitted on trial into the Cincinnati Annual Conference and appointed to Lewisburgh Circuit, where he labored successfully in winning souls to Christ, and was highly esteemed. In 1864 he was appointed to New Carlisle Circuit. This was to him a year of great feebleness and suffering; disease had marked him for an early prize; but during his sufferings he enjoyed much of the grace of God in his soul. During the winter, at one of his meetings, God gave him a powerful blessing, and he became very happy; God was thus preparing him for a better world. He remained on the circuit most of the year, and labored beyond his strength. He was very much loved, and his name is still embalmed in the memory of that people. He loved the work of the ministry and clung to it. He desired to live to preach Jesus and save souls. At the Conference session of 1865 he passed a creditable examination with his class, and was admitted into full connection, and ordained deacon. While taking the ordination vows his strength seemed to fail, and he was compelled to sit down, which, as he afterward said, was not so much owing to physical weakness, as an overwhelming sense of the responsibility he was assuming. Fatal consumption had seized him, and from this conference he went home to his parents to be nursed and to die. He failed rapidly, suffered patiently, and was often very happy. On the 30th of November he sweetly fell asleep in Jesus, saying to his father, after he had entered into the valley, "If this be dying 'tis sweet to die." He was humble, modest, teachable, and kind, loving and loved. With talents far above mediocrity, and full of zeal, he wielded a power over an audience seldom witnessed. He was often flattered, but never vain. He promised much to the Church; but, "nipped by the wind's untimely blast," he has faded away from earth to bloom in heaven.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year

Giles N. Belknap.

REV. GILES N. BELKNAP died April 13, 1866, of pneumonia at Napoleon, Jackson County, Mich.

Brother Belknap was born in Randolph, Vt., May 13, 1811. Soon after his birth his parents removed to Genesee County, N. Y., where in 1832 he was converted to God. In 1840 he was licensed to preach. In 1848 he came to this state and settled in Shiawasse County. The same year he was admitted on trial in the Michigan Conference. For eighteen years he has been a member of our conference, receiving his appointments cheerfully and doing his work well. He held a superannuated relation in 1857 and 1858 on account of his health; but even then his heart was in the work, and he was more active than others thought duty required or prudence dictated. He possessed great energy and force of character, and could not rest when there was so much work to be done. His preaching was always earnest and sympathetic. He disarmed criticism by speaking directly to the hearts of his hearers, making them feel that he loved them and desired their salvation. He spoke from a heart so full of the constraining love of God, that all were ready to say of him, "He is a good man." His pulpit labors were acceptable and profitable to the people he served, and were blessed of God in the conversion of many souls. It was, however, as a pastor he excelled. His cheerful countenance, his easy and homelike deportment, his generous, kind, and loving heart, and his superior social talent, gave him a hearty welcome to the homes and hearts of the people. He will live in the memory and hearts of many as the minister of the gospel of Jesus Christ who visited from house to house.

Brother Belknap used to say in regard to his conversion, "It was as clear as the noonday sun." He knew the time when, and the place where, God for Christ's sake forgave his sins; and his subsequent Christian experience was a blessed illustration of the declaration of the word of God, "The path of the just is as a shining light, which shineth more and more to the perfect day." In his death the bereaved family have lost an affectionate husband and father, and the conference has lost a faithful and devoted fellow-laborer in the bonds of the gospel. We are mourners with them over his grave, our tears fall with theirs in this bereavement, but with them we expect to meet him in our Father's house. In the exercise of this blessed hope we bow in submission to the will of God, and, adopting the dying words of our departed brother, say, "All is right."

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

Hiram Law,* Peter Greensky—2.

Rev. PETER GREENSKY died in Sun Sun Lake, Emmett County, Mich., April 8, 1866, aged 59. The deceased was among the first Indians converted under the labors of Rev. John Sunday, in the Lake Superior country, in 1830. He received his first license to preach September 21, 1844. Subsequently he was employed as an interpreter to Rev. Mr. Daugherty, of the Presbyterian Board, for several years. June 18, 1859, he was again licensed as a local preacher in the Methodist Episcopal Church. During the following conference year he was employed by the presiding elder, Rev. Salmon Steele, on the Pine River Indian Mission. At the session of the Michigan Conference, held in September, 1860, he was received on trial in the traveling connection, and was appointed to Pine River Mission. In 1861 he was appointed junior preacher on the Isabella Indian Mission. In 1862 he was admitted into full connection in the conference, and ordained deacon by Bishop Scott. For the two years following he was in charge of the Oceana Indian Mission. In 1864 he was again appointed in charge of the Pine River Indian Mission. In 1865 he was ordained elder by Bishop Ames, and returned to Pine River.

* Obituary not received.

He was attacked in November with what was supposed to be inflammatory rheumatism. He suffered exceedingly during the entire winter. About the first of March his disease assumed the form of quick consumption, and he gradually sank away, until Sabbath morning, at half past ten o'clock, April 8, when he fell asleep in Jesus. He was triumphantly happy during his many months of suffering. As he drew near the closing scene his prospects of heaven grew brighter and brighter. Just before he breathed his last, aroused as if by a shout of angels, he cried out, "Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God. Come, ye sinners—" and his voice was hushed in death. Brother Greensky was a strong preacher, a faithful pastor, a rigid disciplinarian, and a man of great influence. He was a powerful man in argument, and hence in council among his people he was generally the ruling spirit. This contributed much to his influence as a missionary. The Indians in Northern Michigan are greatly indebted to him, under God, for their status of intelligence, civilization, and piety. As a student Brother Greensky was a model. A given amount of his time was sacred to study. In those hours he did not read merely, but he studied. He became well versed in history, both sacred and profane. He was a good theologian, and I never saw any other Indian who was as well acquainted with English grammar. He had collected a library which would be an honor to any man. In his library I found the complete works of Clarke, Wesley, Fletcher, and Watson; and in his preaching he gave evidence that these authors had been well studied. In short, he was a noble specimen of a Christian gentleman and minister. His death is a great loss to our Indian missions; but we realize that our loss is his eternal gain.

C. Shelper.

REV. CHARLES SHELPER was born in Bovington, kingdom of Hanover, January 10, 1800. In 1836 he emigrated with his wife to this country, and settled in Wheeling, West Virginia. The following year he was, under the English ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church, convinced that he must be born again to enter the kingdom of heaven. After a painful and protracted struggle he obtained the witness of the remission of his sins, and out of the abundance of his heart his mouth spoke. He could not refrain from telling his countrymen what God had done for his soul. When, soon after, a German Mission was established, the Church called upon him to give up his secular business and enter the traveling ministry. With great fear and trembling, but trusting in the Lord, he accepted the call. His appointments were as follows: Dayton, Ohio, one year; Madison, Ind., two years; Fort Wayne, one year; Woodville, Ohio, one year; Defiance, one year; Portsmouth, one year; Batesville Circuit, Ind., one year; Evansville, two years; Louisville, Clay-street Station, two years; Terre Haute, Ind., two years. His last appointment was Lawrenceburgh. In his second year there, in April, 1860, while he was preaching on Sabbath evening, on Isa. xxxiii, 12, he had a paralytic stroke His effective relation to the conference then ceased. In the fall of that year he made Albany his home. Sometimes he felt well enough to preach; but his cup of suffering was not entirely emptied. In March, 1865, he had a second paralytic stroke, by which he lost his speech. Yet after a while he recovered a little, but in July of the same year the third stroke followed. From this time he lay as helpless as a little child, and could signify his wants only by signs. But in all his sufferings he exhibited great patience; with a smiling face he received every visitor. His departure took place September 4, 1865; at the very time when Bishop Baker read out the appointments of our conference at Delaware, the great Shepherd and Bishop of his soul called his soul away to join the blood-washed assembly in the triumphant Church.

Brother Shelper was a faithful servant of God, unwearied in labors in season and out of season. He was distinguished by a sweet temper; brotherly love was the element in which he lived, and which made him successful as a pastor. He has left an affectionate widow and five children. May the Lord comfort and bless them, and reunite them as a family in heaven!

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

O. B. Gardner.

Rev. OZENE B. GARDNER was born in Franklin County, Ohio, April 13, 1831, and was born again in August, 1858, in Johnson County, Kansas. He was licensed to preach in August, 1859, and traveled on Olathe Circuit the winter of 1859–60. In March, 1860, he was received on trial in the Kansas Conference, and appointed to Wathura Circuit, where he labored two years with much success. His next field of labor was White Cloud Circuit, where he labored one year with acceptability and usefulness. He was reappointed to this work, but remained on it but a few months, leaving it to enter upon the duties of chaplain to the Thirteenth Regiment Kansas Infantry. In the army, as on the circuit, he was a faithful and affectionate pastor, and a tireless worker in the vineyard of the Lord. His praise is on the lips, and his memory fondly cherished in the hearts, of the soldiers whom he so faithfully served. Amid the excitements, temptations, and corruptions incident to a state of war, and to camp life, he not only maintained a spotless character as a Christian and a minister, but he was above suspicion. To the sick and dying soldier, in the hospitals on the Arkansas river, he was a ministering angel. The poor refugee, scattered and peeled by the minions of rebellion, found in him a sympathizing friend. His last visit to Kansas was in company and in charge of a large number of these afflicted people. Having faithfully discharged his duty, he was on his return to Fort Smith, in company with a few men, when, on the 19th of October, 1864, they were surrounded by a party of "Bushwhackers," and four of the party were killed, Brother Gardner being one of the number; and one of those who escaped says, "The last we saw of him he was surrounded by the murderous fiends, looking as calmly and talking as mildly as if with his friends."

Thus fell in early life, as another victim to the Moloch of slavery and rebellion, a man who, as a patriot, Christian, friend, husband, and father, will be long and affectionately remembered by those who so keenly feel the loss they have sustained. As his fellow-laborers in the Gospel, while we bow submissively to the providence of Him whose ways are past finding out, we can but give expression to our deep sorrow at this afflicting dispensation; and we commend to the benediction of the heavenly Father, and to the benevolence of the Church which he faithfully served, his sorrowing widow and fatherless children.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

Warren Taplin.

Rev. WARREN TAPLIN was born in East Corinth, Vt., June 16, 1834. Converted in 1852. Called of God to the work of the ministry, he took every means to make himself a workman that needeth not to be ashamed. He graduated at the Garrett Biblical Institute in November, 1860, and at the Northwestern University in June, 1861. Taught in the University two years. In October, 1862, he was sent to Yorkville, where he labored till his health gave way under his overwork for Christ. He preached his last sermon August 13, 1864, and was removed to the Church above October 19, 1865. His death was surrounded with all the glories of Christian triumph. He said, "The greatest thing to me has been a faith childlike and unbreakable in the word of God." The gospel he preached did not fail him in the hour of trial. His nature was genial and friendly, his heart was pure and generous. His mind was logical, clear, accurate, and vigorous. His culture was high and thorough. He had great persistency and concentration of thought. As a friend, he could be relied on anywhere; as a thinker, he was safe; as a scholar, he was comprehensive and accurate; as a preacher, he had unusual power in convincing and moving; as a pastor, he was above fault.

At his death he left a heart-broken wife, who has since joined him in "the excellent glory." By his death the University and Institute have lost an honorable alumnus, the Church a godly man, the conference a strong and faithful laborer, and his family a loving brother.

J. Mandeville, J. Pearsall, J. E. Hyde, E. O. Hall—4.

1. Rev. JOHN MANDEVILLE was born in the eastern part of this state, September 25, 1810, and at an early period of life removed with his parents to the town of Penfield, now Webster, where, at the age of twenty years, he was converted, under the ministry of Rev. Seth Mattison and Rev. Joseph Tompkinson, and soon after united with the Methodist Episcopal Church. In 1832, two years after his conversion, he was licensed to preach by Rev. Jonathan Heustis, and in 1838 was recommended to the Genesee Conference and received on trial. His first appointment was Palmyra, where he remained two years. His second charge was the Old Ontario Circuit, with Rev. George Wilkinson as his colleague. He remained two years. He was stationed in Pittsford in 1842–43, where he contributed his personal labor as a mechanic in the erection of a substantial and convenient church edifice. His appointment for 1844–45 was Rush and Henrietta. His next field of labor was Port Gibson and East Palmyra, one year. Next, Waterloo, where he remained two years. His appointment for the next two years was Vienna, where he was prostrated by severe illness, from the effects of which he never fully recovered. At the following session of the Conference he was appointed to a mission charge in Elmira, where he aided in developing the enterprise, and securing the subscription for building Hedding Church. In 1852 he was appointed to St. John's, in Rochester, where he officiated for two years. During 1854–56 he was the pastor of North-street Church in the same city. At the conference of 1856 he was appointed to Dansville, where he remained one year. From 1857–59 he was stationed at Avon, where, under the severe pressure of abundant labors, his health so failed that at the ensuing conference he received a superannuated relation. During a part of the year he officiated as chaplain in the Monroe County Penitentiary, and was appointed to the same position at the next conference. At the conference of 1861 he was appointed to the charge of Corn Hill Church, Rochester. In 1862 he was made presiding elder of Canandaigua District. But the labor was too severe, and the result was a partial paralysis, which disabled him for the last three months of the year. Released from work he rallied, and at the ensuing conference was appointed to the charge of Rochester District. Near the close of his third quarter, while officiating in Asbury Church, he was prostrated by a severe stroke of paralysis, from which he never fully recovered. At the next session of the conference he was made superannuated, which relation he sustained until removed to the Church triumphant. He was connected with the conference nearly twenty-eight years, during twenty-five of which he did effective service. Probably no minister in this conference has received a larger number of members into the communion of our Church in the same number of years. His executive powers were of a very high order, as may be seen in the numerous important church enterprises which he has supervised and accomplished. He possessed the remarkable power of imparting his own energy to the agencies and appliances with which he became connected. He died in great peace in Rochester, March 29, 1866.

2. Rev. JOSEPH PEARSALL joined the Genesee Conference in 1826. Little is known of his personal history before that time, except that he had been made a cripple for life by the severity of disease. He was at the commencement, and through all of his subsequent active ministry, which continued more than thirty years, both diligent and useful. Few have been more laborious or more successful. He went to his work wherever it might be assigned, in his Master's name, and rarely did he return without bringing abundance of sheaves with him. His record as a minister is a noble one, and long will he be remembered by this conference as one of its most devoted and faithful members. Thinking that he might be of greater service to the cause in the West, he was transferred to the Rock River Conference about fifteen years ago; but it soon became evident, to himself at least, that he had misjudged the case, and he returned to this conference, resuming his work with the earnestness, if not with the efficiency, of former years. His superannuation, necessitated alike by physical and mental infirmity, was regarded as an affliction. His heart was in the work but nature failed, and during several years both mind and body were a mere wreck of manhood. His death was melancholy, and supposed to have occurred through his own agency, after many manifestations of insanity. On the 22d of September last he precipitated himself into the well on his premises, and, though speedily removed, he survived the fatal plunge but a few hours. Notwithstanding this unhappy termination of a life which had been for the most part so bright and blameless, we cannot but regard the event with confidence that God, who protected our brother through so many years of ministerial labor, still upheld him in integrity of soul, though the outward man perished.

3. Rev. John Emory Hyde was born in Oxford, Chenango County, New York, September 29, 1829, and died in Canandaigua, New York, October 5, 1865. He was given to God in baptism in childhood, and grew up with such uniform religious life that he never could date the time of his conversion. His childhood was marked by two features—his delicateness of health, and his religious goodness. His parents cannot now recall a single instance of his life when he disobeyed them, or knowingly grieved them. The only religious decline of his life was from fourteen to fifteen years of age, when, though his outward life and religious habits remained unchanged, he suffered a loss of inward enjoyment. He sought, however, and obtained, the renewal of the witness of the Spirit, and was powerfully blest.

At the age of twenty-two he was licensed to exhort, while at the Cazenovia seminary. The great ambition of his life was to preach the gospel, and when, at length, his health obliged him to suspend his academic life, and, as it then appeared, his hopes of preaching, he received it as a severe trial. One day, while at home, and after a season of absence, he returned to the house, his eyes swollen with weeping, and with great emotion said to his parents: "I have got the answer —I shall preach! The Lord has given me my commission on my knees!" He had been in the barn and wrestled it out with the Lord.

He joined the East Genesee Conference in 1852, and for eleven years maintained an effective relation against much bodily infirmity, which none could appreciate but his own family friends. In 1863, immediately after the session of the conference at Penn Yan, he was taken with bleeding at the lungs, and, after lingering two years, died in perfect peace and holy triumph.

Brother Hyde was a man of sound and deep Christian experience, daily living in sympathy with the higher graces of the Christian life. He possessed a sound judgment and understanding, respectable scholarly attainments, and good general information in literature and the topics of the day. His pulpit abilities were always respectable, often markedly powerful and effective. All his powers, all his acquisitions, were available for the pulpit. Nothing but his bodily infirmity and his constitutional diffidence prevented him from rising to the first rank in his office. He was sound and evangelical in doctrine, earnest in spirit, persuasive and affectionate in manner, a good expositor, dignified and chaste in style, with a lively imagination, and always in earnest to save souls. His ministerial labors were crowned with much good fruit, which our limits cannot detail. On his death-bed he often exclaimed, "O that I could once more preach to the people from my present standpoint, as I now view things." Frequently he exclaimed, "O a lost soul! a lost soul!" As his body sank rapidly under the force of disease, his soul was "renewed day by day," and his last utterance was a testimony that Christ was with him. He died in full sympathy with his work, in ardent fellowship with his brethren, and in "full assurance of hope."

4. Rev. Edward O. Hall was born in Bristol, Ontario County, New York, in the year 1813, and died in Rogersville, Steuben County, New York, March 2, 1866. Of the early history of Brother Hall we have been able to gather but little. When very young, he, with three other boys, resolved to meet together to read the Bible, and this they continued to do for some time, until Edward was separated from the others by his father's removal to another neighborhood. Shortly after this event a powerful revival of religion occurred in the vicinity of his former residence, and his three companions were among the first converted. This gracious work spread through the adjoining country, and young Hall was also converted. These four young men subsequently became ministers of the gospel in the Methodist Episcopal Church. Brother Hall was received on trial by the Genesee Conference at its session held in Lockport, October 14, 1835, and appointed to the Catharine Circuit, Seneca Lake District. In 1836 he was appointed to Warsaw and Wyoming. In 1837 he was received into the conference, and appointed to Parma. In 1838 he was sent to Buffalo. In 1839 he was ordained an elder, and because of ill health was superannuated, which relation he sustained for three years. At the conference held in Rochester, 1842, he was granted a location, and his name disappears from the records of the conference for fourteen years. At the session of East Genesee Conference held in Palmyra, 1856, he was readmitted. During the period intervening between this date and his death he received the following appointments: Potter, one year; Avoca, two years; Coke's Chapel and Bristol, one year; Springfield, Pa., one year; Jackson, Pa., one year; Pultneyville, two years; Canoga, one year; Rogersville, from September, 1865, till March 2, 1866, on the morning of which day he departed this life in great peace. He remarked to his daughter that none but himself could ever know how glorious had been the hours of the preceding night.

Brother Hall possessed rare natural endowments. His mental characteristics were perspicuity, power, and sincerity. His ordinary pulpit efforts were deliberate and logical, aiming always to convince the judgment and win the heart. His mode of thinking was, like his preaching, original and profound. He accepted nothing without proof, and was always ready to give a reason for the hope that was in him. When fully aroused, and under favorable circumstances, his power over his audience has been at times almost terrific. He was modest in social intercourse with others, sincere in his personal friendships, and constant in his love for the cause of Christ and the Church of his choice. Faithful in life, happy in death, among the most thoughtful and efficient of our number, we mourn his loss and will strive to imitate his virtues, in hope, to meet him in the better land.

"When the lame-footed race of life is o'er,"

1. Rev. CALLAHILL G. HEATH was born in 1832. In early life he was converted, and connected himself with the Church. Religious training in youth impressed his mind deeply with love for the Church and the worth of souls. In his twenty-second year he went not only to the Lord, but to the Church, saying, "What wilt thou have me to do?" This year he was employed by the presiding elder, and commenced the work of an itinerant preacher, traveling the Mount Sterling Circuit. In September, 1855, he was admitted into the Southeastern Indiana Conference, and appointed to Canaan Circuit; in 1856 to Southport Circuit; in 1857-58 to Westport; in 1859 to St. Omer Circuit; in 1860-61 to Elizabeth Circuit. His health failed, and he was granted a superannuated relation, which he sustained for four years, but not without going about doing good. Last fall he was made effective, and appointed to Canaan Circuit. His health failed him again, and he was compelled to quit the field groaning with a golden harvest. June 2, 1866, he retired with the discharge, "Well done, good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

Brother Heath was a good man, eminent for piety and devotion to the work of the ministry. His manner of preaching was clear, and his constant theme was holiness of heart. He was truly a burning light and waymark to the kingdom of heaven.

2. Rev. JOHN M'CLURE SHARP was born in Rush County, Indiana, in 1825. In 1841 he united with the Methodist Episcopal Church on Milroy Circuit, under Lewis Hulbert. He felt that he was called to the work of the ministry at the early age of sixteen, but he refused to go. In refusing to obey Heaven's call he grieved the Spirit, and relapsed again into sin, in which condition he remained until he consented to go and preach. After years of great mental agony he gave his whole heart to God and the work of the ministry. He received license to preach in 1854. He continued in the local relation for four years, two of which years' time he served on Milroy Circuit as supply under the presiding elder. He was admitted into the Southeastern Indiana Conference in 1860, and was placed in charge of Crothersville Mission. In 1861 was appointed to Manilla Circuit. The three following years he traveled the Palestine Circuit. In 1865 he was appointed to the Hartford Circuit, where he remained but a short time, when his work was cut short by the hand of affliction, and he retired from the field. His sufferings were very great, but like a Christian he bore them all without a murmur. In September 15, 1866, God took him to himself.

Brother Sharp was a good preacher, and was never afraid to tell the whole truth. He loved the Lord, he loved the Church, and he loved his country. His course was often disapproved by many setting claims to loyalty, yet far above their name his will go down to posterity written high on the monument raised to the memory of the men who saved our beloved country.

3. Rev. J. H. Davidson was born of Christian parents in Westmoreland County, Pennsylvania, in the year 1836. In the year 1856 he removed to Indiana, and united by letter with the Methodist Episcopal Church. Soon after he received license to preach, and entered the traveling connection, and in 1859 was appointed to Manilla Circuit. In 1860 he was appointed to St. Louis Circuit; was returned to the same work the second year; remaining about six months, he was changed to Foreland, and before the close of the year entered the army with the Seventieth Regiment Indiana Volunteers. He served in the army about one year, returned and re-entered the itinerancy, and was appointed for the two following years, 1863–64, to Shelby Circuit. His last appointment was Liberty and College Corner, where he closed his life on June 18, 1866. He ended his race in great peace, and in holy triumph closed his eyes on all but heaven.

D. Worthington.

Rev. DAVID WORTHINGTON was born at Williamstown, Vermont, February 13, 1815, and died in Mount Pleasant, Iowa, March 1, 1866, aged fifty-one years. When fifteen, he accompanied his parents to a camp-meeting, where he was awakened and powerfully converted to God. Uniting immediately with the Methodist Episcopal Church, he commenced a career of usefulness, which he followed with undeviating purpose until the close of his life.

In 1835 he emigrated to the West, and settled in the wilds of Wisconsin. Separated from the associates of his childhood, the endearments of home, and to a great measure deprived of the privileges of the sanctuary, instead of declining in religious enjoyment and casting away his confidence, he at once began to seek for the blessing of perfect love, nor did he seek in vain—a light brighter than the noonday sun dawned upon him, and in his own language he found a pearl more precious than he had before enjoyed. He now began to visit the settlers around Milwaukee, talking with them at their work, or praying with them in their rude home, or, wherever a sufficient number could be gathered together, he would hold a prayer meeting. His diligence and success soon attracted the attention of the Church, and he was licensed to exhort by Rev. J. R. Goodrich, then of the Illinois Conference. At a quarterly meeting held in Chicago, December 2, 1839, he was licensed to preach, and by Rev. John Clark, presiding elder, was employed as an assistant on Troy Circuit the ensuing year. He was received on trial in the Rock River Conference August 26, 1840, graduated to full membership, and was ordained deacon by Bishop Roberts at a session of the same conference held in Chicago, August 3, 1842. By division of the conference he was placed upon the west side of the Mississippi, and was one of the little group who organized the Iowa Conference at Iowa City, August 18, 1844. At this session he was ordained elder by Bishop Morris.

His active ministry of twenty-six years was occupied for seventeen years as pastor, eight years as presiding elder, and one year as agent of the Iowa Wesleyan University. For more than ten years he acted as president of the board of trustees of the University, and in every relation which he sustained to society he won and retained both the confidence and esteem of all connected with him. As a preacher, his object was to instruct, not to dazzle his hearers. Ostentation or display never entered his mind. As a pastor he was faithful and affectionate. As a presiding officer, he had but few equals and no superior in his conference. His great spirit, swayed only by the highest principles of justice and right, led him to the strictest impartiality in all his rulings as a presiding officer, and in the filling of the various charges within his district. But the sublimest trait in his character was his unswerving Christian integrity. Nature had endowed him with a keen perception, a sound judgment, and a strong will. But grace had created him anew, and had infused into every faculty of the soul the life and spirit of Christ. His sole object seemed to be to glorify God, and in his daily round of duty

> "He tried each art, reproved each dull delay, > Allured to brighter worlds and led the way."

Soon after his appointment to Mount Pleasant District he was thrown from his carriage, which resulted in fracturing his leg just above the ankle; this was the "beginning of the end" with him. A violent attack of lung fever followed, from which he never recovered. Although able occasionally to attend his quarterly meetings, yet it became more evident day by day that his labors were drawing to a close. A few weeks before his death I visited him, and while in conversation he said, "I have just finished arranging my temporal matters, all is now as I desire it; and as to my spiritual state, all is well. I have often enjoyed great peace and happiness, but I am looking to the hour when some friend shall come to my bedside and say, 'You are dying now.' O, that will be the most triumphant of all my experience! It would be pleasant to remain awhile as company for my family; but my work is done, and I am ready to go at any time the Lord shall call me." On the morning of the first of March it became evident that he was approaching his end. The weary wheels rolled sluggishly, the dews of nature's night were distilling upon his brow, and the roar of the chilling waters sounded in his ears. Feeling that his hour had come, he waved his hand and said in holy triumph, "O, it is pleasant to die!" A few moments more and he entered the shadow, and when it seemed as if he were passing the Jordan, his lips began to move, and he whispered back to those around his bedside, "Down in the valley." These were his last words as his triumphant spirit passed to his rest in the skies.

Thus lived and died one of the most untiring and faithful laborers that ever entered the Western field. Amid the difficulties and privations of the early settlements of the West, he had been sustained by divine grace, and led by the Spirit of divine wisdom, and at the close of his career it might almost be said that he > "Sank to the grave with unperceived decay,

> While resignation gently sloped the way;
> And, all his prospects brightening to the last,
> His heaven began before his earth was past."

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

Thomas P. Morse, M. Springer, F. W. Berry—3.

1. Rev. THOMAS P. MORSE was born in Delaware, N. Y., in April, 1830, and died in Augusta, N. Y., April 22, 1866, of typhoid pneumonia.

Brother Morse was not favored in early life with advantages for intellectual culture, but when converted turned his attention to qualifications for usefulness in the Church. His conversion took place at a camp-meeting held in Preble, N. Y., in 1851. He at once united with the Methodist Episcopal Church at Cortland, N. Y., and began an active life in the cause of Christ. He prospered in nothing he undertook in secular enterprises, which he atiributed to their lying outside of his true calling. He grew up to Christian manhood with remarkable celerity. He was licensed to preach in 1856, and came to Minnesota in 1858, in response to a call made by the writer through the Northern Christian Advocate. He came alone and almost pennyless, so anxious was he to enter the work of the ministry in the itinerant field. After spending some three weeks in visiting and laboring at camp-meetings, within the bounds of Winona District, he was sent to High Forest by the presiding elder of the district, and encouraged to test his call to the ministry on ground where no foundation had been laid, or at least where no circuit had been formed. The promise of board and co-operation by a Congregationalist residing in that place was his only earthly encouragement. He was emphatically a stranger in a strange land. We shall never forget his look of sad anxiety as we parted, at a point of divergence in the roads, to go to High Forest among strangers, where there was no Church to receive him, his family more than one thousand miles away, moneyless, or nearly so.

Brother Morse was a man of marked fidelity and prudence. He soon gained a large number of valuable friends, and returned at the session of Conference the following spring some eighty members and probationers within the bounds of High Forrest charge. He succeeded, in the fall of 1859, in getting his family to this country, and was successful in providing comfortably for them during his ministry among us. A young man within the bounds of his first charge gave him forty acres of land as a token of gratitude for his labors in his conversion. He was appointed successively to High Forest, Mantorville, Oronoco, Pine Island, and Cannon City circuits. On all these charges he enjoyed more or less prosperity. At Mantorville he built the stone church we have there; and at Pine Island a beautiful brick church and comfortable parsonage. On these charges his name is a sweet odor.

Brother Morse was an acceptable preacher, a good pastor, and emphatically a peace-maker. After the failure of his health in the fall of 1865, he went to New York to visit his family friends, and those of his wife, taking his family with him, hoping in a few months to return to his conference and work with recovered health. But, alas! his hopes were blasted in this, but brightened and strengthened for that country where the inhabitants never say they are sick. He died suddenly, on Sunday evening, April 22, 1866. He conversed much about dying, was calm and trustful, saying as his wife laid him down from a sitting posture, "I must give up—I want to rest." His head drooped, he drew a lengthened breath and was no more.

He left a wife and four children, one of whom has since joined him in the skies. His eldest child, a son, is deaf, dumb, and blind; and as a family they will have strong claims on the sympathy and aid of the conference of which he was a member.

2. MOSES SPRINGER died at Winchendon, Mass., December 21, 1865, in his seventieth year.

Brother Springer was converted in his eighteenth year. In 1840 he was, after the usual probation, admitted into full connection in the Maine Conference, and immediately after located to take the editorial chair of the Maine Wesleyan Journal, which paper he continued to edit with ability until it was united with Zion's Herald. In the autumn of 1859, having previously removed to Minnesota, he applied for and was granted admission into this conference, and placed in a superannuated relation, in which he remained until his death. On account of physical infirmities, from which he suffered much, Brother Springer never gave himself wholly to the work of the ministry. But his heart was with his brethren, and he earnestly desired to have a place among them, and to have his name stand among them, on the rolls of an annual conference. Brother Springer was a man of superior intellect. He possessed in a large measure the true scientific spirit, and had made great proficiency in most of the Natural Sciences. To the science of Astronomy he especially devoted himself, delivering numerous lectures upon it to popular assemblies and literary institutions, which lectures were generally quite favorably received by the lovers and students of science. The last years of his life were spent in his favorite pursuits, in the employment of government, in the National Observatory at Washington. He was not only a man of science, he was also a man of faith. In the beauties and glories of the natural universe he saw the visible symbols of the uncreated glory of "the King eternal, immortal and invisible." While he loved to study the great book of nature, he loved still more to study that revelation from which "the light of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ" shines upon the souls of men.

In his last illness, though his sufferings were great, no impatient utterance escaped his lips. His soul was serenely and steadfastly stayed upon God; and testifying that the rod and staff of God did comfort him, and that Christ was near and precious, he passed through the dark valley "fearing no evil."

3. Rev. Francis W. Berry was born in Canada in 1842. Of his early life we know but little. He was converted while quite young, and in his seventeenth year received a license to preach. At the age of twenty he went to Garrett Biblical Institute, where he spent some time in preparation for the ministry. Failing health induced him to leave the Institute without graduating, and take an appointment in the Detroit Conference, into which body he was, after two years, admitted into full connection, and then located. Six months before this, however, he had resumed his studies at Evanston; but his health again failing, he left the institution and came to this state, with the hope of recovering his health. He was admitted to this conference at its last session on his certificate of location, and appointed to St. Anthony. He entered earnestly upon the duties of his office in this charge, and by the sweetness of his spirit and preaching soon won the respect and love of his people, and his work among them promised to become a great success. But in December he was again prostrated by disease, and after lingering about two months, on the 19th of February, 1866, he passed peacefully and triumphantly away. Brother Berry was a young man of rare symmetry and maturity of character; purity, patience, meekness, gentleness, and spiritual wisdom were his in no ordinary degree. His treasure was in heaven, and his heart was there also; and upon all who came in contact with him, he made the impression that he was seeking a permanent home in that city which hath foundations whose builder and maker is God. His stay among us was very short, and but few of us were permitted to know him intimately; but he has left behind him, in the charge to which he was sent and in which he died, a name and memory which will long be as ointment poured forth. A brief but beautiful life is ended; a soul early ripe has been gathered into the garner of God.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

W. S. Lewis.

Rev. WILLIAM S. LEWIS was born at Upper Sandusky, Ohio, March 28, 1827. Some of his earliest religious impressions were from Rev. J. B. Finley, then missionary among the Wyandots, where the parents of Brother Lewis resided. But in the godly instruction of a pious father were deposited the seeds which germinated in his conversion, and bore fruit during his subsequent life. At the age of nine years he obtained the witness of his acceptance with God, and soon after felt that he was called to preach the Gospel.

He was licensed as a local preacher in 1853, and in 1856 admitted into the Ohio Conference. After serving his first charge about five months he was called by the Church, through Bishop Scott, to the work on the Pacific Coast. After several days of deliberation, and fervent prayer for divine guidance, he accepted the call, and started, with his wife and child, March, 1857. He arrived in Salem in the following month, and immediately entered upon his ministry in that charge with the zeal and faith of a true evangelist. During his pastorate of less than eighteen months, Salem and other points on the circuit were visited with gracious revivals. His ministry in Portland, Corvallis, Albany, and Oregon City was marked by the same zeal and faith, and in almost all these places God wrought with him in the salvation of many souls. In 1865 he was appointed presiding elder of Walla Walla District, but on the way to his first quarterly meeting was taken sick and compelled to return to Dallas. Here, at the house of Rev. I. D. Driver, he received all the relief which the kindness of friends, or skill of physicians could suggest, but after lingering a few weeks he fell asleep in Jesus on Friday, December 1, 1865. His family, absent in the Atlantic states at the time, mourn the loss of an affectionate husband and father.

1. Rev. WILLIAM CLIFFE came from England in the year 1840, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church soon after his arrival. He was in England a local preacher in the Primitive Methodist Church. He was admitted into the Illinois Conference in 1843, and served the Church as an efficient minister for twenty-three years, eight years of which was as presiding elder. His two last years were in the Jerseyville Station. Those who knew him best loved him most. He was a good minister, a kind father, a loving husband, and a Christian gentleman. His death occurred on the 17th of September, 1866, at Olney, Illinois; and though he died suddenly, yet he died as the good man dies, full of faith and the Holy Ghost.

2. Rev. JOHN HOLT was admitted on trial in the fall of 1853, and served the Church faithfully as an itinerant preacher thirteen years. His last appointment was to Hebron Circuit, in the Olney District. He entered at once with his wonted zeal and efficiency upon the work. On the tenth day of February, 1866, he fell sick; suffered intensely for ten days, then died in great peace. We lament his early fall, but we bless God that his ministers not only show the people how to live, but also how to die.

QUEST. 13. What is the number of Church Members, etc.?

J. Hooper, H. T. Magill, W. C. Filler—3.

1. Rev. JAMES HOOPER, son of Jacob and Mary Hooper, was born near Baltimore, Maryland, 1788, and with his parents came to Ohio in 1804, and settled in Perry County. In 1809 he was awakened to a sense of sin, and earnestly sought religion, and was clearly and powerfully converted, and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church. Soon after his conversion Bro. Hooper was impressed with the conviction of duty to preach the Gospel. He was soon licensed to preach, and for some years remained a faithful and successful local preacher. His success in this relation to the Church gave evidence of his call to the full work of the ministry. Many souls, through his instrumentality, were led to the Saviour. In 1835 he was received on trial into the Ohio Annual Conference. From 1857 to 1865 he sustained a superannuated relation to his conference. Whenever health, however, would permit, he continued to preach and labor for the conversion of sinners in the vicinity of his home as a good and faithful servant of his Lord, waiting the coming of his Master.

Brother Hooper was full six feet in height, and compactly built, weighing two hundred pounds, and of great muscular strength, and remarkable power of endurance. As a minister of Christ he was well read in Christian theology, and had a thorough acquaintance with the doctrines of his Church, which he preached clearly and faithfully to his congregations, with much success in awakening sinners and bringing them to Jesus, and establishing them in the faith of the Gospel. He was a man of strong faith in God, in Christ, and in the Holy Spirit as the agent in man's salvation from sin. He was powerful in his pleadings before the throne of mercy, and a holy unction often descended upon him and upon his congregations. In pastoral labors he was abundant and faithful, visiting constantly from house to house, and affectionately entreating all with whom he conversed, to a life of holiness and devotion to God. While catholic in spirit and in Christian fellowship, he was still ardently attached to the doctrines and discipline of the Church of his choice to the close of his life. As a Christian the piety of Mr. Hooper was deep and uniform. The love of Christ dwelt richly in his heart. He was a man full of faith and of the Holy Ghost. In the history of our beloved brother there is no device to deplore, no error to lament. A world of such men would liken earth to heaven. We say not that he had no infirmities, no human frailties, but do say that his self-sacrificing spirit, his humble, holy, useful life and labors, his unwearied zeal, and his Christian example, are to his descendants a noble patrimony. Alive, he was a demonstration of the truth and the power of Christianity. Being dead, he yet speaketh, proclaiming to all that God is faithful. He was distinguished especially for his noble, generous liberality in contributing to the support of the institutions of the Church, particularly in the erection of houses of worship in the several fields of his labors, giving often his entire salary for this and other benevolent objects of the Church, and by industry and economy living upon the income of his farm. He was pleasant and cheerful in all his family relations as husband, father, and brother, an example to the flock. The law of kindness ruled in his heart and dwelt upon his tongue. His last sickness was brief but very painful. He suffered severely, but with Christian patience. A sudden cold caused congestion, and soon hemorrhage of the lungs. He retained the full use of all his faculties of mind to the last moment, often remarking that his work was done and he was ready to depart and be with Christ, saying, "My trust is in the merits of a Redeemer's blood, and in that alone, for my salvation." At home, and surrounded with wife and children and Christian friends, on Thursday morning, November 23, 1863, he finished his course, closing his long and useful life in great peace and in holy triumph through our Lord Jesus Christ. His funeral sermon was preached by his intimate friend and colaborer, Rev. Benjamin Ellis. His remains sleep in the cemetery at New Salem, Ohio, the place of his late residence.

2. HENRY T. MAGILL. It was my privilege to know him and love him in his school-boy days. He early in life made the happy choice of God's service, and having given himself to God and his Church, he lived with wise reference to his present and future well-being. After graduating at Woodward College, he entered the Ohio Conference, and was appointed to work in my district. He began well. His colleague, Brother N. Westerman, helped him with needful counsel and instruction. The next year he labored on the Portsmouth District; the third year on the Zanesville District, and I was his presiding elder. This year he married the daughter of Brother N. Westerman. They were a happy pair, well mated, and both devoted to God and his Church. She was an ornament to the Church, a helper of her husband, and wears not a starless crown in heaven. Several happy and useful years passed them by, and God's smile rested upon them. But the days of affliction drew a dark shadow upon their home circle, and a lovely boy of seven years was taken from earth to heaven, May, 1858. I was with and tried to comfort them in their sorrow. The sun did shine; no murmur was heard; yet sometimes "My boy" would escape the lips, while the eye seemed to be gazing at objects on the other side of the river. Sister Magill's frail constitution began to show evident signs of an early release from service and affliction; and in Washington, Fayette County, Ohio, April 19, 1859, I assisted in the burial services, when her body was laid in the grave. At this time Brother Magill was himself very unwell, but none of us thought of lung disease assaulting him. With great Christian fortitude he endured his afflictions, and with cheerful resignation commended his all to God. In a short time after this he left for Minnesota, stopped in Wisconsin, and spent the last years of his life in the Northwest. Amid all his afflictions in life he was a happy Christian. He was an interesting and profitable preacher, not brilliant, but sound, sensible. A good pastor, God honored his work, and gave him seals to his ministry. His social qualities were good; he shared the respect and affection of his brethren in the ministry; he shared their confidence when able to work, their sympathy when disabled, witnessed by their prayers and their means. Though dead they cherish his memory. He has joined his loved ones—O happy meeting! should like to have witnessed it; joined Connell, Heath, Spencer, and others of his ministerial brethren. Shall we murmur? No, no; God had a right to take him. Heaven was prepared for him; 'tis right he should be there. What then? My prayer: Heavenly Father, help us to do up well all our work; then, as one by one we pass away, we too may exchange earth for heaven. J. M. T.

3. Rev. WILLIAM C. FILLER was born in Loudon County, Virginia, Feb. 20, 1811, and died in Lancaster, Ohio, July 21, 1866. Of his early history we know comparatively little. In a very brief diary of his own, made during his affliction, we find the following:

"I served a regular apprenticeship at the carpenter business in my native state, and in September, 1832, I left the Old Dominion for the West, and landed in Zanesville, Ohio. Here," he says, "under the ministry of Joseph M. Trimble, I was awakened to a sense of my lost condition, and my need of salvation through the atonement of Jesus, and on the evening of January 2, 1833, it pleased God to reveal his Son in me, and give me immediately joy and peace in the Holy Ghost; and whenever I think of that hour my heart says:

> O happy day that fixed my choice
> On thee, my Saviour, and my God!
> Well may this glowing heart rejoice,
> And tell its raptures all abroad."

On the 14th of April, 1836, he was united in marriage to Miss Elizabeth Woodward, who still lives, and who shared with him the joy and sorrow, the pains and pleasures of life as a faithful and devoted companion. God gave them nine children, three of whom he has taken home; while six remain, one son and five daughters, to feel the loss of a beloved and devoted father.

Brother Filler was respected and honored by all who knew him. He served the people where he lived as justice of the peace, and other offices of trust, until he had their most implicit confidence. In 1850 he was elected representative of Muskingum County in the Ohio Legislature, in which capacity he served two years, with honor to himself and satisfaction to the people.

In 1835 he was licensed to preach, and in April, 1846, he was ordained deacon at Zanesville by Bishop Hamline, and at the conference held at Marietta, Ohio, in 1858, he was ordained elder by Bishop Janes. In 1854 he joined the Ohio Annual Conference, and received and filled successively the following appointments, namely: In 1854, Barlow; 1855, Roseville Circuit; 1856-57, West Rushville Circuit; 1858-59, Etna and Granville Circuits; 1860-61, Pickerington; 1862-63, Tarlton Circuit; 1864, Alexandria. This was his last appointment. At the conference at Portsmouth last September he was compelled by that terrible disease, cancer, to desist from labor and be placed on the superannuated list. The first appearance of this disease was in its acute form in the lower lip, and after some effort to remove it by surgical operations, it reappeared in the lower maxillary, and spread so rapidly that it soon involved not only the jaw, but the entire side of the face and neck. It showed its malignance and determination by answering, in violence and increased severity, to every effort put forth to stay its progress or relieve its victim.

Brother Filler was a man of strong physical proportions, above ordinary weight. His manners were graceful and dignified, his spirit kind and genial, his bearing among his brethren and friends affable and gentlemanly. His deference for age, his respectful and courteous habits toward strangers, and his general circumspect intercourse and walk in society, caused him to be admired and loved by every circle; while his deep piety and heartfelt devotion to Christ gave him power, and a name like precious ointment in many of the families of our people.

Though naturally fond of jesting and amusing illustrations, he chose those themes and talked on those subjects which tended to edification and improvement of heart and life. His early education, though limited, was in some respects thorough and critical. His knowledge of the Bible and our standard works on theology was more than ordinary. While decidedly Methodistic in education and feeling, he was kind and catholic in heart and spirit. If in the pulpit he may to some have appeared to lack energy and power, his careful, deliberate, serious, and impressive mode of delivering his sermons gave them an earnestness and might that could not fail of good. His life was no less Methodistic and devout than were his sermons and sanctuary services. And this spirit accompanied him wherever he went, and enstamped itself on all the circles of society where it was his privilege to live and labor.

Brother Filler's death (though it approached slowly and amid great suffering) answered precisely to his life. His last months presented the evidence that there are instances in which it requires more grace to endure and suffer than to do the divine will. But God made him a constant victor; and although assailed by pain and temptation and dark hours combined, he vanquished them all, and the nearer he approached the dark valley, the more signal were his triumphs. We often, in company with Rev. B. N. Spahr, his presiding elder, and other brethren, had the privilege of visiting him. These were occasions of sorrow and joy; for while we saw the evidences of his sufferings, we shared his triumphs and his joys.

On one of these occasions, when I had spoken of his acute sufferings, he said in reply,

> "Affliction is a stormy deep,
> Where wave succeeds to wave:
> Though o'er my head the billows sweep,
> I know the Lord can save."

With peculiar calmness he suggested the arrangements for his funeral, and selected the spot where he wished his remains to be deposited. On another occasion, after having joined, himself, his family, and a few other friends, in partaking of the Lord's supper, and feeling much of the presence of the blessed Master, he asked for the Bible and Hymn Book, pencil and paper, and wrote the following: "I shall die soon, and when I do, I want you to attend my funeral and use this hymn, [748th,] and preach from this text, 'My flesh and my heart faileth, but God is the strength of my heart, and my portion forever.' Tell my brethren of the Conference that the Gospel I preached to others sustains me now, and that I know I am a sinner saved by grace." The day before he departed I asked what he most desired next to the sustaining grace of God; when he replied, 'That I may have ease, and not suffer in my last hour.' For this we besought God with him. He heard and answered; ease was granted him; peace was on his face; and in the last struggle he was victorious. So he fell asleep in Jesus.

On the morning of the 23d of July, after a sermon from the text he had selected, his remains were deposited in the chosen place, to await the trumpet's call. Brethren, our roll of death has received another sacred name, and the joys of heaven are being realized by one more of our number.

[Rev. D. H. CHERRINGTON has died during the session of the Conference. We have no information at this time to furnish in reference to his life and death. His Memoir will be furnished in the next Minutes.]

LEONIDAS L. HAMLINE* was born of praying parents in Burlington, Conn., May 10th, 1797. His early mental culture was with some thought of the Christian ministry as a profession. Arriving at manhood, he studied law, and was admitted to the bar in Lancaster, Ohio. He married a Miss Price, of Zanesville, O., and settled there to practice his profession. The death of a lovely little daughter in 1828 led him to seriously consider his own moral state, and by God's blessing and the help of a few Methodist friends he was led to a saving knowledge of the truth in the fall of 1828. Soon after his uniting with the Church he was licensed to exhort, then to preach. In the fall of 1832 he was received on trial in the Ohio Conference, and appointed with Rev. H. Fernandes to Granville circuit. In 1833 he traveled Athens circuit, with Rev. Jacob Young. In 1834 and 1835 he was stationed at Wesley Chapel, Cincinnati, with Rev. Z. Connell. On the decease of Rev. W. Phillips, assistant editor of the Western Christian Advocate, he was appointed to that position. When the Ladies' Repository was inaugurated in Jan. 1841, Brother Hamline was assigned to the work of editing that monthly. In 1844 he was elected one of the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church. His health declining, he resigned his episcopal office to the General Conference of 1852. His name was reattached to the list of members of the Ohio Conference, and he, by the Conference, granted a superannuated relation. He spent the evening of his life in Mount Pleasant, Iowa. On the 22d of February, 1865, he passed to the spirit-world.

We cannot better close this memoir than in the words of Rev. Dr. C. Elliott: "On reviewing the long period of our intimate acquaintance, from 1836 to 1865, each succeeding year only binds us the more closely together. But my pen is wholly incompetent to draw out in full extent an adequate portrait of his high and holy character, whether it regards his natural talents or his extensive attainments; but especially the sanctity and purity of his religious life. As a preacher he was in the first rank in all respects that regard the finished pulpit orator. His style as a writer would compare favorably with the best writers in the English language. He had no superior for logic, argument, or oratory. He was the subject of much bodily affliction, and yet amid excruciating pains he retained the full exercise of his intellectual powers to the very last hour of his life. The leading characteristic of him in his sufferings was his complete patience and resignation to the will of God." How true that through tribulation the good and the great enter into the kingdom of heaven!

1. Rev. JOHN KENNARD. Another of the stalwart members of the Genesee Conference has fallen. Rev. John Kennard died October 12, 1865, of typhoid fever. Brother Kennard was born in Windsor, Me., April 9, 1812, a year memorable in our national annals as that in which began the last war with England. His parents were Quakers of the straitest sect, and with Quaker assiduity and carefulness they sought to rear their son in their own faith. Among his first recollections, as he often remarked to us, were the quarterly meeting gatherings of the members of this sect, when his father's doors were thrown open to the demure "Friends" of both sexes, who came from far and near to enjoy these religious reunions in those days of New England simplicity and hospitality. Early in life, however, he contracted an intense and unconquerable dislike to the austeri-ties of the Quaker faith. When a lad, he left his father's house, and, freed from the restraints of parental authority, he at once renounced his ancestral religion, and became an attendant upon the services of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Like most boys reared in New England in those days, he was brought up to labor, and was taught a trade. Like his divine Master, in youth and early manhood he wrought as a carpenter. He was soon distinguished as a skillful workman, and at length became a master builder and contractor. For a time he seems to have been dissatisfied with his trade, and turned aside from it to study the profession of medicine, for which he had rare mental qualifications, and very nearly perfected the prescribed course preparatory to entrance upon medical practice. Ever after through life he gave more or less attention to medical studies; and, in his pastoral visitations among the sick, often rendered valuable assistance in the treatment of diseases by his judicious counsels and prescriptions.

While yet young he removed to Western New York, settled in Steuben County, and engaged in business as a master builder. While thus engaged he also devoted considerable attention to military affairs, for which he seemed to have a strong relish, amounting almost to a passion. For sixteen years he was an officer in the New York State Militia, for several years holding the office of Brigade Inspector, with the rank of major. In the winter of 1844–45, as nearly as we can learn, he became the subject of God's converting grace, and immediately connected himself with the Methodist Episcopal Church. Two years after he was received into the Genesse Conference as a traveling preacher, and continued to labor therein with fidelity as a Gospel minister until he

> "His body with his charge laid down,
> And ceased at once to work and live."

Such is a brief and imperfect outline of his history. The fruits of his earnest and devoted life in the ministry cannot be gathered up and unfolded until they shall be made known in the revealings of the judgment day. But there are hundreds on earth and in heaven who have to thank God that such a man as John Kennard lived and was called to the Christian ministry; for he was ever about his Master's business, and was successful in winning souls to Christ.

Brother Kennard ever occupied a high place in the esteem and affection of his brethren of the conference. And especially did he gain upon their regard and consideration during the last few years of his life. His extreme modesty, bordering upon painful diffidence, for long years hindered him from taking that rank among us to which his talents and virtues entitled him. He was bravely surmounting this great barrier to individual progress and eminence, and was beginning to take that high position which of right belonged to him, as he was called away by death.

He was a man of no ordinary mould, and could but pass for such in any community or association, notwithstanding his extreme modesty. Nature had richly endowed him. Physically he was a noble specimen of manhood; a man of wonderful majesty of presence. Intellectually, Brother Kennard possessed a comprehensive and well-furnished understanding, great versatility and activity of intellect, a powerful imagination, extraordinary originality of thought, united with great good sense and practical judgment. Socially, he was a great-hearted man, genial and kindly in his intercourse with all, and exceedingly ardent and reliable in his friendships. Morally, he was distinguished for his artless honesty and his unbending adhesion to principle. Religiously, he was ardent, though not remarkably demonstrative; his great soul was full of Christian sympathy and benevolence, which ever impelled him to earnest and practical effort for the conversion of sinners and the edification of believers.

His style of preaching was more than ordinarily interesting. As a sermonizer, he followed no model, but was a law unto himself; and all his discourses bore the stamp of his own original genius. His rare versatility of mind was ever displayed in his preaching. Though he might preach time and again from the same text and upon the same theme, it was always to present something new, with new lines of argument and new methods of illustration. At times, in hortatory discourse, he was very powerful, and carried away his audiences with resistless force. In his appeals to the unconverted, his whole soul would become aroused, his imagination take fire, and in short, terse sentences he would condense startling figures and comparisons to represent the scenes of the judgment day or the miseries of the lost, in a manner to flash upon the thought and burn upon the heart of the ungodly with almost appalling effect.

But now, in the full strength and glory of his manly maturity, and in the midst of his highest usefulness, he is laid low. His deep-toned and mellow voice is hushed in death, no more to give encouragement to saints or warning to sinners. But he yet lives, and will ever live, in the hearts of those who knew him; and being dead, he continues to speak. His Christian life was a noble commentary npon his Christian profession, and his end was peaceful and glorious.

Frequently during his last illness did he express to his beloved wife his entire readiness to depart, saying, "For me to live is Christ, but to die will be gain." He exhorted his companion to bear with resignation the loss she would sustain in his death, and sought to console her with the hope of a more blessed reunion hereafter. The sole source of anxiety he semeed to feel in view of his approaching end, related to his companion, to whom he was most devotedly attached. His death-bed solicitude for her commends her all the more strongly to the sympathy and protection of the brethren of this Conference.

2. Rev. SCHUYLER PARKER died in Warsaw, N.Y., Feb. 3, 1866, aged forty-nine years. He was born in Utica, June 26, 1816. His parents removed from that place to Steuben County when he was eight years of age. In his fourteenth year he gave his heart to Christ, was baptized by Rev. Asa Orcutt, and united with the Church, of which he remained a faithful member until called to his reward.

His convictions from youth were, that to secure his own salvation he must preach the Gospel to a dying world; and so strongly was this impressed upon his mind, that lost souls would seem to rise up to condemn him for unfaithfulness in the silent watches of the night, leading him to feel "Woe is me if I preach not the Gospel." But his characteristic sensitiveness caused him to shrink from so great a responsibility, feeling unqualified. The Church saw his position, and the presiding elder sent him out without his consent. Thus painfully exercised, he went forth, and remained a faithful laborer in the field for twenty-one years.

Brother Parker, as a preacher, possessed more than ordinary ability, and occupied acceptably appointments that ranked among the best in the conference. As a pastor, he was faithful and beloved. Being a sweet singer, his songs of praise lent a charm to the prayer and class room as well as to the social circle and the Sabbath-school. As Christian, his experience was deep and fervent. His earnest piety impressed itself upon the hearts of all, and led them to feel that with him religion was a vital principle.

When disease laid its withering hand upon him he endured its pangs with Christian patience and fortitude. The religion by which he had lived was his hope and consolation in death; and his latest words gave evidence that all was well; for beyond the dark river he discerned the blissful mansions of eternal rest. So departed another fellow-laborer to join the number gone before. In his death the Church lost a true and efficient minister; but our loss is his infinite gain, for he rests from his labors. "The memory of the just is blessed;" so the odor of his useful life and peaceful death will linger as sweet incense upon the hearts of those who knew and loved him. He rests peacefully in the quiet cemetery at Warsaw, Wyoming County, New York.

CINCINNATI CONFERENCE.

Rev. Levi White was born in Hamilton County, Ohio, May 21, 1798. Like most of the great and good men of our race, he had a noble mother, who, in the providence of God, blessed the world with eleven children, eight sons and three daughters. Through the instrumentality of our pioneer ministers, at an early period Methodism was introduced into the vicinity of where the town of Carthage now stands, and attracted the attention of Mr. White's family, and soon the excellent wife and mother and one daughter became members. In 1815 Levi, then in his seventeenth year, and some of his brothers, experienced religion and united with the Church. It was not long before the father and all the children who had come to years made choice of the same religion and the same Church, and their house became a preaching-place in the old Miami Circuit. Levi, warm in his first love, received a clear conviction that it was his duty to warn sinners of their danger, and urge them to repent and come to Christ for salvation. The Church recognized his gifts as well as his grace, and encouraged him to exercise those gifts in exhortation. He was licensed as an exhorter by Alexander Cummins, one of the early pioneers of precious memory. For several years he was an efficient and successful exhorter in the Church, and then received authority to preach. Having consecrated himself to God, he determined to devote his time and talents wholly to the work of the ministry. In the fall of 1822 he was recommended by his district conference to the Ohio Conference, as a suitable person to be admitted into the traveling ministry of the Church. He was cordially received, and appointed to Oxford Circuit; 1823–24 to Whitewater, Ind.; 1824–25, Bellefontaine; 1825–26, Mad River; 1826–27, White Oak; here he labored two years; in 1828–29, Milford; 1829–30, Mad River; 1830–31, Piqua; 1831–32, returned to Piqua; 1832–33, Lebanon; 1833–34, continued on Lebanon; 1834–35, Lancaster; 1835–36, continued; 1836–37, Xenia Station; 1837–38, Piqua; 1838–39, New Richmond; 1839–40, returned to New Richmond; 1840–41, West Chester; 1841–42, Miami; 1842–43, North Bend; 1843–44, North Bend; 1844–45, Milford; 1845–46, reappointed to Milford; 1846–47, Madisonville; 1847–48, Franklin; 1848–49, continued on Franklin; 1850–51, at Eaton two years; 1852–53, two years on Camden; 1853–55, two years on Union; 1855–56, Jamestown; in 1857–58, two years on Miami; 1858–59 and 1859–60, Port Union; 1860–61, North Bend; and 1862–63 and 1863–64, Madisonville; in 1864–65 and 1865–66, Miami; and with the end of this conference year he closed his mortal life and labors. It will be observed he receceived forty-four annual appointments from the authorities in the Church, and cheerfully accepted them all, and applied himself with untiring zeal, energy, and industry to promote the cause of his divine Master. His great and constant aim seems to have been to rescue undying souls from sin and death, and have them embraced in the bright rolls of salvation. He sustained an effective relation to the conference throughout his whole career, never suspending his itinerant labors for a single year. He was always acceptable to the people among whom he labored, and, judging from his abundant fruit, we must say he was a good preacher.

Brother White had many excellent and attractive qualities of heart, mind, and character. The children of his congregations loved him, and received him into their Sunday-schools and home-circles with a hearty welcome. His sermons were plain, practical, and useful, and often delivered in the demonstration of the Spirit and with great power. As an exhorter he certainly excelled. His exhortations were usually pathetic, eloquent, and powerful. His earnest and forcible appeals to the irreligious of his congregations, urging them to escape the wrath to come and be reconciled to God, will be long remembered. Many can now testify with what skill and pathos he would invite penitent sinners to approach the altar of prayer, that the assembled multitude might pray for them. His method of urging penitent souls to come out from the world and join the Church, and follow the meek, lamb-like Lord, and imitate his life and spirit, was most effective. It would be an interesting item if I could give the number he received into the Church during the forty-four years. The light of eternity can alone disclose that multitude. After receiving them, he was a good pastor to build them up in the faith and hope of the Gospel. In the administration of discipline, the tendencies of his sweet nature always inclined him to be lenient; and if he erred at all, it was sure to be on the side of mercy and according to the judgment of charity. We think what was said of Barnabas may be fitly applied to our brother White: "For he was a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost and of faith; and much people was added unto the Lord." He loved his family with most intense affection, and, next to his home-circle, he loved the society of Methodist preachers. He felt a great interest in our annual meetings, and seemed to have rich and indescribable pleasure in associating with his brethren. His full heart flowed out in ardent affection to the membership of his Church, and toward all who love our Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity of every denomination. The death of Brother White was unexpected to himself and his friends till it was near at hand. Ten days before it occurred he filled his appointments on the Sabbath, preaching twice. He kept about till Saturday, the 18th of August. He had a tooth extracted some days previous, which proved to be perfectly sound; the pain, however, continued, inflammation set in, and soon the presence of erysipelas was manifest, producing indescribable suffering. On Monday morning his colleague, Brother Shannon, called to see him, to whom he said, "For twenty-four hours I have suffered more than at any period of my life, but I am now much relieved." It was evident he supposed the disease had passed the crisis, and that he would soon be up again. Neither of them thought there was any immediate danger in the case. The interest of the circuit was the subject of conversation, contemplating soon to leave for conference. During the night he became much worse, and at four o'clock A. M. it was supposed paralysis of the brain took place, and he passed into an unconscious state, and so remained, something like one asleep, till two o'clock P. M., August 21, 1866, when he expired.

Though he was unable to report to his family and colleague a victorious triumph over death, yet we are assured, from a long and useful life devoted to God and his cause, that all was well with him in the last struggle.

"Servant of God, well done!
Thy glorious warfare's past;
The battle's fought, the race is run,
And thou art crowned at last!"

Rev. MICHAEL MARLAY, D. D., was born in Berkeley County, Va., June 21, 1797. His father, John Marlay, a native of Ireland, was a fine scholar, and himself superintended the education of the older children of the family. When Michael was three years old his father was drowned, and the whole family was left to the care of a widowed mother. In consequence of this calamity the educational advantages of the younger children were very limited.

When about twelve years old the subject of this memoir was converted, and for a time lived in the enjoyment of religion; but having been brought up in the faith and usages of the Roman Catholic Church, his surroundings were not favorable to a life of piety, and he soon lost the comforting assurance of pardon, and remained in a very unhappy state of mind for several years. In 1818 he emigrated to the West, and settled near Dayton, Ohio.

The following year he was married to Miss E. Clymer. Two years later, he and his wife attended a camp-meeting in their vicinity, at which he was reclaimed and she was converted. These great blessings were realized under a sermon preached by Rev. John P. Finley. This happy couple soon identified themselves with the Methodist Episcopal Church. Mr. Marlay almost immediately received a clear conviction that it was his duty to preach the Gospel to a perishing world; and the Church, recognizing his gifts as well as his graces, soon conferred on him the office of class-leader, exhorter, and finally licensed him as a local preacher. In the mean time he became a very close and diligent student in theology, and made good proficiency.

In the fall of 1831 he was recommended by the quarterly conference of Union circuit as a suitable person to be received into the traveling connection; he was cordially received and appointed to Darby circuit. We find he has in all received thirty-five appointments from the authorities of the Church, having labored on circuits eight years, in stations five years, and as presiding elder on districts twenty-two years; making the whole of his itinerant labors precisely thirty-five years.

In all the fields of labor assigned him he was very acceptable and eminently useful. Very few men have occupied the position of presiding elder during a ministry of thirty-five years as long as he did. As an administrator of the government and discipline of the Church he had few equals.

As a preacher Dr. Marlay was thoroughly Wesleyan in his doctrine, and didactic and argumentative in style. His sermons usually abounded with arguments, and generally such as were very clear, consistent, and potent; his conclusions were legitimately reached and well sustained. He almost utterly discarded every kind of theological embellishment in his sermons, directing his appeals to the thought rather than the feelings of his hearers. He has left few ministers among us who are more skilled in doctrinal discourse, or who are better prepared to "contend earnestly for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints." His manner was conversational rather than declamatory; but there were times when, becoming warm and animated with his theme, his exhortations were powerful and eloquent.

Dr. Marlay was a vigorous and close thinker, and held a high rank among the great minds of his day. He was eminently a man of quick perception, sound judgment, and retentive memory. These strong powers of mind enabled him, after nearly forty years of almost incessant study, to rank among the best and soundest theologians in the Church.

Dr. Marlay labored mostly within the bounds of what is now the Cincinnati Conference; but before the division of the Ohio Conference he was four years presiding elder of the Chilicothe District. These were years of wonderful prosperity to the Church within that district, and indeed throughout the whole country. Every quarterly meeting of that quadrennial period at every charge was attended with a gracious revival, and more than eight thousand persons were received into the Church. We are assured there are many ministers and members now in both Conferences to whom he was greatly endeared.

Having closed his third year on the Springfield district, he left for Ripley, the place of our annual session. On the way he spent Monday night with his son and family in Cincinnati. About noon, on Tuesday, he and many of his brethren embarked on board the steamer for Conference, where we arrived that evening. Dr. Marlay was received as the guest of Mr. Nathan Credit and family, where he was hospitably provided for and generously accommodated. He appeared in good health, and entered upon his duties in the Conference and in the bishop's counsel with his usual energy and cheerfulness. On Friday evening the symptoms of cholera were developed, and Dr. Winters was soon in attendance; yet the disease seemed to defy all efforts to arrest it. By Saturday morning he was much reduced. Other consulting physicians were called, but he continued gradually to sink. He had the sympathy and earnest prayers of the members of the conference, and indeed we may say the whole community felt a deep interest in the case, and sympathized with this suffering man of God. Many of his brethren did everything in their power for his relief and comfort. We acknowledge, with many thanks, the kindness of the attending physicians, who exerted all their medical skill to arrest the disease, and prolong the life of our much-loved brother.

After Bishop Thomson had prayed with him on Saturday evening, a brother, taking him by the hand, said, "I hope you do not suffer much." He replied, "I suffer but little; but I am going down." His friend said, "How do you feel with reference to your prospect of so soon leaving us?" He answered, "It is right; it is all clear." Another said to him, "We reach a point where it may be said, Vain is the help of man." He nodded assent. When it was added, "But OUR GOD can help us in the greatest extremity," he replied, "I am in his hands." And when asked by another, "Can you now say, 'For I know in whom I have believed, and am persuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him against that day,'" he repeated most emphatically, "Yes! yes!" And when he was sweetly passing away several of his brother preachers were kneeling around his bed, and one leading in prayer. Then Jesus came and received him to himself.

Though not permitted to expire in his own home circle, yet he was surrounded with those he loved next to his family—Methodist ministers. Thus, at about nine o'clock on Sabbath morning, September 2, 1866, our esteemed Brother Marlay made his triumphant exit from earth to heaven, full of years and full of honors.

The reader is referred to the Ladies' Repository for June, 1866, for a more extended sketch, accompanied with an excellent likeness of Dr. Marlay.

NORTH OHIO CONFERENCE.

Rev. William B. Disbrow, M. D., was born in Long Point, Canada, March 5, 1815. He was converted in early life, and commenced his ministerial labors in his twenty-fourth year. As far as we can ascertain he was licensed to preach Dec. 9, 1838, and commenced traveling on Clarksfield circuit, under the direction of the presiding elder, Rev. Leonard B. Gurley. At the next Conference, held in Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 3, 1839, he was admitted on trial and appointed to Norwalk Circuit. From that time till his death, twenty-six years, he continued in the work of the ministry. In addition to those already mentioned, the following are his fields of labor. At the Conference of 1840 he was appointed to Ohio City Station; 1841, Norwalk Circuit; 1842, Wooster Circuit; 1843, 1844, Millersburgh Circuit; 1845, 1846, Medina Circuit; 1847, 1848, Elyria; 1849, Brooklyn; 1850, Ohio City; 1851, 1852, Tiffin District, as presiding elder; 1853, 1854, same district, called Sandusky District; 1855, 1856, Berea; 1857, 1858, Olmsted Falls and Dover; 1859, 1860, as agent of Baldwin University; 1861, Elyria; 1862–1864, Cleveland District. He was a member of the General Conference of 1856, at Indianapolis.

At one time in his ministry, fearing a failure of health, incapacitating him for the active work, as well as having a love for the science, he devoted himself to the study of medicine, attended lectures at a medical college in the vicinity, and received a regular degree. But circumstances remaining favorable for attention to his regular work, he was not compelled to resort to the practice of medicine. September 4, 1865, the last Sabbath of the Conference year, at the quarterly meeting at Olmsted Falls, in the midst of his sermon, he was stricken down. He almost literally realized the wish of Charles Wesley, to "cease at once to work and live."

He closed his useful life on earth September 26, 1865. During his illness, in which his sufferings were intense, almost to the last moment, his mind seemed as strong, quick, and clear as when in perfect health. His heart was peculiarly drawn out toward those who sympathized with him or assisted him. To his brethren in Conference, assembled in Elyria, he sent affectionate greetings. Hearing of their anxiety and sympathy, he, with deep emotion, remarked that if he recovered he should know as he never knew before how to love Methodist preachers.

For the sake of his family and his work he desired to recover; yet he was resigned to the divine disposal of his life. Near his final hour a friend asked, "Are you still supported?" "O yes!" he replied, "all I now want is to depart. The Saviour, I think, is purifying me by affliction through his blood." At another time, referring probably to a remarkable vision he had enjoyed the night before, he exclaimed, "O that the Saviour would send down his chariot to take me up to heaven."

As a neighbor and friend, the memory of Brother Disbro is precious. As a citizen he was public-spirited and liberal. He was a patriot, unflinching in his devotion to the government. He was a lover of his fellow-men, a title which in the beautiful vision of Abou Ben Ahdem, placed the name of him who possessed it the first on the list in the divine regard. His philanthropy was seen in his devotion to the cause of education, temperance, and human liberty. As a Christian minister he was distinguished. Hundreds under his ministry were brought to a knowledge of the truth. A natural orator, mild, affable, pleasing, popular, he was a man of the people. He was beloved as a pastor. He was peculiarly estimable in his domestic relations. Each member of his family lay as a special burden on his tender, manly heart. Probably the death of no man of Northern Ohio would be mourned by so many hearts.

He has gone from his field of labor to his reward. His work will live forever. His memory will be cherished by thousands. The deeds and names of those who are devoted to God and humanity live in the history of the Church; they live in institutions and influences set in motion or assisted in their progress, and, more than all, they live in the memory and sympathy of the Saviour. He that joins himself on earth to God and his cause can never be forgotten.

MISSOURI AND ARKANSAS CONFERENCE.

Rev. Benjamin F. Willson, of the Missouri and Arkansas Conference, was born in Jefferson County, Tennessee, February 20, 1814. He was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in the ninth year of his age. He was united in marriage to Miss Sarah Jarnagin, Sept. 5, 1837, and moved to Missouri the same year. He was licensed to preach in the year 1846, and joined the Missouri Conference the same fall. The Methodist Episcopal Church in Missouri was at that time very weak, the greater part of the Church having gone off in the Southern secession, and taken the church property with them; there remained in this state but a remnant who adhered to the Methodist Episcopal Church, and they were compelled to worship in school and dwelling houses; but being ardently attached to the Church of their choice they were not soon discouraged. Brother Willson was one of the pioneer men of the Missouri Conference. He traveled fourteen years, four years of that time a presiding elder in charge of a district. He took a superannuated relation in the spring of 1860, and retired to his farm in Morgan county, Missouri. In September 27, 1863, his wife died, leaving to his care a family of children, most of whom were grown. In 1861 the war broke out, and he with many others who were true to God and their country were harassed and suffered great loss. In the year 1864 he was elected by the people to represent Morgan county in the state legislature, which office he filled to the satisfaction of his constituents. On the first day of January, 1865, he was united in marriage to Miss Elizabeth Debolt. He held the office of probate judge when he died, which occurred June 24, 1865, at his home in Versailles, Morgan county, Missouri. In his last hours he gave assurance to his friends that the Saviour was with him, and that the Gospel that he had preached to others gave him comfort, and pointed to a blessed immortality. Brother Willson was respected by all who knew him. He was a good preacher and a safe counselor.

Rev. Hiram Hess was born September 16, 1822, was ordained deacon by Bishop Morris, and admitted into the Arkansas Conference November 9, 1856. He labored faithfully in that stormy field in the face of bitter persecution and great hardships, till the year 1861, when the violence of the rebellion drove him from his home. In August, 1864, Brother Hess and family reached Springfield, Missouri, in the utmost destitution, his constitution languishing under the mastery of a fierce consumption. From that time forward he was a prodigy of suffering as well as of patience. His confidence in God never wavered; his faith was strong, his hope buoyant. He often expressed to me not only a readiness and willingness, but a desire "to depart and be with Christ."

He always inquired eagerly about the state of the Church when I visited him, and rejoiced in any assurances of prosperity. Several times, when he thought it probable he would pass away before he would see me again, he desired me to assure his brethren of the Conference of his strong attachment to them, of his unabated interest in the cause of the Master, and of his triumphant experience in things divine.

About a week before his death I went with a number of brethren to administer the sacrament to him. During these services he was greatly blessed, rejoiced with exceeding great joy, and exulted in his prospects of heaven, praising God till strength failed him. On November 30, about one o'clock in the morning, he told those watching with him that his hour had come, that death was upon him. Recovering his strength, he tossed himself to and fro upon his bed, exultantly welcoming death, and rejoiced and gave glory to God in the most ardent and affecting terms. His voice coming back in its full strength, he sang aloud two stanzas of the hymn commencing,

"On Jordan's stormy banks I stand."

Here, exhausted, he ceased as if calmly resting, and in a few moments quietly breathed out his life. The morning dawn drew aside the curtain of night. The tragedy was over, the protracted martyrdom consummated. The foes of loyalty, liberty, and righteousness had "destroyed the body," but the man of God rose to his native place. The shout of victory, oft repeated, rang out through all the morning air and filled the heaven round, and it will echo and re-echo in growing strength till it will thunder in the guilty ears of his destroyers on the judgment morn.

Brother Hess, at the time of his death, was a superannuated member of the Missouri and Arkansas Conference, and leaves a wife and four little girls to the care of a kind Providence and the sympathy of the Church.

Rev. James C. Smith, of the Missouri and Arkansas Conference, died at the residence of his father-in-law in Brookville, Iowa, at four o'clock on Monday morning, May 7, 1865, in his forty-first year. Brother Smith was born in New Liberty, Lycoming county, Penn., on the 31st day of August, 1824. He was converted at a camp meeting when only nine years of age, was admitted into the Iowa Conference in 1846 or 1847, and continued in connection with it till May, 1858, when he was transferred by Bishop Janes to the Missouri Conference, of which he remained a member up to the time of his death. Brother Smith was married on the 24th day of July, 1851, to Miss H. E. Brooks. Not having the Minutes of the Iowa Conference at hand, we cannot give the names of the several fields of labor occupied by Brother Smith during his connection with that Conference, but remember that he was appointed to some of the most important works in the Conference. His first appointment after his transfer was Jefferson City, where he organized, amid much opposition from pro-slavery politicians and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, our first class at the capital, and during the two years he was in this charge succeeded in erecting a comfortable house of worship. At the Conference of 1860 he was appointed to Simpson Chapel in St. Louis. He remained, however, but a part of the year in this work, when he was removed by the bishop to the Kansas City district, left vacant by the death of Rev. R. Wilson. He traveled this district, which embraced the most rabid pro-slavery portion of Missouri, amid persecutions and dangers, and was reappointed at the Conference of 1861. This was at the commencement of our terrible war, and Brother Smith occupied one of the most exposed positions in the Missouri Conference. So violent was the opposition that all our ministers, and almost all of the members of the Church, were compelled to flee into Kansas. Brother Smith escaped with his family into Iowa, where he remained till the next session of the Conference, when he was placed in charge of the St. Louis district, in which position he was continued till his health failed, and he was compelled to retire for a time from the active duties of his office; yet he still seemed determined not to forsake the work committed to him as long as he could urge a sick and decaying body on to the discharge of its duties. He left his field by the advice of his physician, but soon returned, but only to find his disease more firmly fixed, and at our last Conference he asked for and obtained a supernumerary relation, being in hopes that he might yet do some effective work for the Church; but his health continued to fail till the morning of May 8, when he put off mortality. He expired fully conscious that the time of his departure had come. A conqueror, he met his last enemy with a smile, saying to his companion and friends: "I have tried to live right. I now feel that for me to live is Christ, but to die is gain; the Gospel I have preached to others I now realize to be true in its fullest extent." Thus honored by Jesus in the hour of death he passed to his final rest. In looking over the record of his trials and his last triumphant conflict we may say, "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord."

Rev. J. E. Burton was born in Nicholas County, Kentucky, in the year 1812. In the year 1821 his parents emigrated to Indiana, and settled in Monroe county, on "Bean Blossom," near Mt. Tabor. He was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in his 13th year, was licensed to preach in his 18th year, and traveled one year under the presiding elder; after this he remained a local preacher till the year 1850, when he removed to Missouri, and in 1851 joined the Missouri Conference, and was appointed consecutively two years to Princeton work. After this he regularly attended the annual conference, and received his appointments to the year of his death, with the exception of one year, during which he was superannuated. Brother Burton made his arrangements to be present at the session of the Conference of 1865, at St. Joseph, but about that time he received a letter stating that his son was sick at Memphis, Tennessee. Immediately he set out for that place. While on this trip he became infected with small-pox, and returned home sick, ignorant of the character of his disease, which when developed was beyond the reach of medical aid. Brother Burton, after lingering seven days, died in the triumphs of the Gospel faith, giving evidence that the Gospel which he had preached to others could sustain him in the hour of dissolution. He was a practical preacher, of respectable talents, greatly beloved by those who knew him. He has gone to his heavenly reward. He leaves a wife and seven children to mourn their irreparable loss.

George S. Quigley, Solomon Higgins, Joshua H. Turner—3.

REV. GEORGE SNEATH QUIGLEY was born in Soudersburgh, Lancaster County, Pa., November 6, 1814, and died in the city of Wilmington, June 25, 1866, in the fifty-second year of his age. His conversion occurred about his twenty-fifth year, under the ministry of the late Enos R. Williams. Three years after, in 1842, he was admitted on trial in the Philadelphia Conference, and appointed to Brandywine Circuit, the next year to Cecil Circuit, and the following year to Stoddartsville. This appointment, though inexplicable to him, was a compliment to his stern and unflinching orthodoxy, even at this early period of his ministry. His next appointment was at Allentown, where he labored successfully two years. In 1847–48 he was on Attleborough Circuit; 1849, at Lebanon; 1850–51 he had charge of the North City Mission; 1852–53 he was stationed at New Market-street; 1854–55, at Frankford; 1856–57, at Germantown; 1858–59, at Tabernacle, Philadelphia; 1860–61, he was on Zion Circuit; 1862, on Newark Circuit; 1863–64, on Chester Circuit. In the spring of 1865 he was stationed at Asbury Church, Wilmington, and reappointed the following year. Here, after a laborious service, covering a period of fifteen months, his labors and his life ceased at once. It pleased God to save his servant the weariness and pain of a protracted affliction. His last hours were characteristic. He said but little besides "Jesus died for me." These few words tell the whole story of his triumph. When informed that a few hours only remained, he carefully arranged a few items of business, and calmly awaited the end. His ministerial career, extending a little over twenty-four years, was a glorious success, and the fruit gathered on his last charge is a fitting close to his life, and a proof of his apostleship. He is gone from our midst. The few that enjoyed the privilege of intimacy with him, and learned to read his true character, will fondly cherish his memory. He was not demonstrative, and to one unacquainted with his peculiarity, he would seem devoid of ardent attachments. To describe him accurately would require a knowledge of his private life, and a power to appreciate a native honesty that discards all pretension. He did not make large promises, but he did large things; his kind offices could not be bought, but to the worthy they were freely given; and he was never without pity, even for those whom he could not commend. With him the solution of one question was sufficient to determine his course. Right, or what to him was equivalent, found in him a champion; while what he esteemed to be wrong, though advocated by his best friends, staggered under his ponderous blows. In him were blended the guilelessness and meekness of the child, and the courage and strength of the lion. The traits of his character were strongly marked. As a Christian and a minister of the Lord Jesus Christ, he exemplified the purity of the one and the fidelity of the other. He rather lived than professed religion, and proved his ministry by the practical sympathy that carries the consolations of Christ to the abodes of poverty, of sickness, and of bereavement. Like his Master, he went about doing good. His pulpit ministrations were characterized by clearness, by fidelity to the Scripture, by an adaptation of the truth to his hearers, and by a manner which demonstrated his own interest in his theme.

Brother Quigley was emphatically a conscientious man. This trait, so strongly developed, had much to do in the formation of his character and his habits. Overstrained, it sometimes led him to disparaging views of himself, and created an unnecessary despondency. The effect, however, resulted beneficially to himself and others; to himself through increased watchfulness, and to others through the impetus imparted to his exertions. Other men never had the keeping of his conscience. This he held as a sacred trust from God. He may have done more than was really his duty, but he could not be compelled to do less than he thought to be his duty. His life was a sacrifice to his convictions. He might have been alive to-day had he possessed an accommodating conscience. He was a man of integrity. There was a unity of character in all he said and did. He never acted unlike himself. His honesty is above suspicion. To this trait in his character may be traced what seemed to be rigorous exactions from others. He expected from others only what he required of himself, and his commendation was worth receiving, and he knew how to confess his own errors. He was transparent. His words were the index to his heart. When he spoke, no one asked What does he mean? or, Where is he? Love for the Church was with him an absorbing passion. Like a vigilant sentinel, he watched with intensest interest every development of opinion or practice that augured either good or evil for the Church of his fellowship. Its prosperity afforded him joy; fear of its humiliation was the bane of his life. Brother Quigley was endowed by nature with a vigorous mind, and seemed to gather knowledge by intuition rather than by patient research. He read men as well as books, and possessed a comprehensive and vivid impression of living facts, and a power to use them. In him all was consecrated to the work his Master gave him to do, and many will arise and call him blessed. We have not yet viewed him in those domestic relations which enrich and adorn the family circle. He was the kind husband and the anxious father. In that heart, burdened with care, there was an inner sanctuary, where those dependent upon him found shelter and safety. The mother and five boys have lost their earthly protector; but, in the providence of God, there is a mine more rich in wealth than earth's accumulated stores. "A father of the fatherless, and a judge of the widows, is God in his holy habitation." Psalm lxviii, 5.

2. Rev. Solomon Higgins departed this life on Tuesday evening, February 12, 1867, in the sixty-seventh year of his age, after a well-spent life in the service of God and man, in certain hope of a glorious resurrection to eternal life and blessedness in the world to come. He was born in Talbot County, Md., January 20, 1792, a few months after the founder of Methodism died, and was one of his many sons in the Gospel, born of God to promote the great revival of pure religion which began about 1739. His early years were spent on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, among the seductions and blandishments of sin, from which, however, a gracious Providence soon plucked him as a brand from the burning, and turned his fine intellect and heart to the things which make for the world's peace and prosperity, and which secured his own, and won for him a name dear to thousands who profited by his faithful ministry, and placed it in the front rank of his brethren for sagacity, generosity, fine sensibility, and all the elements which enter into the character of the true Christian gentleman and minister of the Lord Jesus Christ.

About the twenty-second year of his age he commenced that work which ceased only with the failing powers of his life; but the extreme labors and hardships to which our early ministers were subjected in carrying out their great commission were too severe for his delicate constitution, and forced him for a season into comparative retirement, which he spent in a clerkship in Philadelphia, where, unwittingly to himself, God was preparing him for the work in which he was to end his days. With the return of improved health, he returned to the ranks of the itinerant ministry in 1821, and must have been a man of large promise of usefulness to the Church of God, as he filled with much favor and profit, throughout his ministerial life, many of her most important appointments. In 1821 he traveled Milford Circuit; in 1822–23, Talbot; in 1824–25, Dover; and in 1826, Smyrna. In 1827–28 he was stationed in Asbury, Wilmington, Del.; in 1829–30, in the Union Methodist Episcopal Church, Philadelphia; in 1831–32, in Trenton; and in 1833–34, in Newark, N. J. In 1835 he was returned to Philadelphia, and was stationed in Ebenezer, where he remained in 1835–36, when he was placed in charge of the South Philadelphia District, and through 1837–40 traveled over it with much patient endurance and usefulness, in the days of stage-coaches and long horseback rides. In 1841 he was transferred from the South to the North Philadelphia District, and was in charge of it until the close of 1844. In 1845–46 he was stationed in St. John's, Philadelphia, and there the days of his effective ministry ended. In 1847 he became supernumerary, and remained in that relation until 1861, when he was made Sunday-School Agent, which important position he occupied until the conference of 1864, when he became superannuated. The high place which he held in the estimation of his brethren is seen in that he was elected successively a member of the General Conference in 1828, 1832, 1836, and 1840.

When failing health compelled him to retire from the work in which his best days were spent, and which his heart ever loved, he did not retire a disappointed and complaining man, a burden to himself and others, but with a resigned and cheerful spirit, hopeful in God, directed what strength remained to new and untried fields of labor, to gain an honorable support for himself and those dependent on him, and he nobly achieved the object. He may truthfully be called the father of the Methodist book interest in Philadelphia, for he took the bookstore in that city when it was greatly depressed and hopelessly embarrassed, and made it a success, profitable to the Church in many ways, honorable in the business community, exchanging publications with the best houses in our cities, and taking its honorable place in the book trades of our land. From his retirement from the regular work of the ministry to the close of his days his life was neither inactive nor unfruitful. He was diligent in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord, a strictly honorable, high-minded, conscientious man. He was neat, careful, and dignified in person and manners, and his personal appearance was the true index of the inner man. In him there was nothing mean, sordid, false, but manly, upright, and true, impressing all with whom he associated that he was a man to be respected and trusted, and he never disappointed them. His heart was filled with kindly sympathies and generous impulses, and his hand was ever open to relieve another's woe. His benefactions were limited only by his ability to extend them. His cheerful spirit was rarely ruffled, and never for a long time. His gratitude for favors received from his brethren far exceeded their value, and his forgiveness reached all injuries, intentional or otherwise. His enmities, if he had any, were short-lived; but his friendship lived unchanged amid all changes, and were as strong in old age as they were in younger years. His care for the character and feelings of his brethren was admirable, and is beyond all praise; and his love for the honor of his Master and his work was not a flame fed by the fires of prosperity only, but burned brighter amid great and sore trials, and brighter than all in the midst of the greatest sorrows of his life, the loss of health, the loss of his only daughter in the bloom of early womanhood, and the last crushing blow, the loss of his noble wife. But his faith wavered not, his love grew not cold, and, in the language of the patient sufferer of the land of Uz, he could say, "Though he slay me, yet will I trust in him," and bravely battling on through sunshine and storm, he has won the victor's crown. His last words on earth were: "I have received nothing but good from the fountain of all good." "Do all the good and get all the good you can." Thus lived and died Solomon Higgins, a noble man of God.

3. Rev. JOSHUA H. TURNER was born in Sussex County, Delaware, May 14, 1820, and died in Bristol, Penn., February 19, 1867, his age at his death being forty-six years. He was converted to God and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in the seventeenth year of his age, and was admitted on trial in the Philadelphia Conference in the spring of 1845, having traveled Church Creek Circuit under the presiding elder the previous year, and was stationed on Milton Circuit. His subsequent appointments were Salisbury, 1846; Pocomoke, 1847; Allentown and Bethlehem, 1848; Port Clinton and Schuylkill Haven, 1849; Bethel and Evansburgh, 1850; Pottstown, 1851; Summerfield, Phila., 1852; Grove Circuit, 1853; Springfield Circuit, 1854–55; Tabernacle, Phila., 1856–57; Hedding, Phila., 1858–59; Port Carbon and Silver Creek, 1860–61; Minersville, 1862–63; Ebenezer, Manayunk, 1864–65; Bristol, 1866, where he closed his labors and his life, greatly beloved by the Church and the community.

"Brother Turner was emphatically a good man," says one who knew him long and who knew him well. "He was one of the most consistent and holy men I have ever known. I cannot now think of an act or word of his life, since his conversion, which was not consistent with his Christian profession." He enjoyed, professed, and preached the great blessings of perfect love, and he was happy in its possession just before his last illness. His Christian experience was clear to the last, and was triumphantly expressed as long as he could speak. To his cousin, Rev. C. F. Turner, the day before he died, he replied, in answer to the question whether all was well with him religiously, "Yes, bless the Lord!" A little later, on the same day, a committee of his brethren, Revs. W. Kenney, A. Manship, J. B. Ayars, and his presiding elder, Rev. J. Mason, who had been appointed by the preachers' meeting in Philadelphia to wait upon him and to extend to him their sympathies and prayers, called upon him. They found him very ill, his mind occasionally wandering; but even in his wanderings the Church and the cause of God seemed to be uppermost in his thoughts when his attention was called to his visiting brethren; he recognized and called them each by name. When asked as to his religious experience, he replied, "All is well with me;" and then, with an emphasis and impressiveness which only such an hour and scene can give, he said, "The blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth from all sin." While his brethren were engaged in prayer with and for him, that, if it were the will of God, his disorder might be rebuked, and that he might be spared to his family and the Church, he responded, "Yes, if it be the will of God," thus evincing his entire submission to the will of his heavenly Father. On the following day, when he could no longer articulate distinctly, he was asked if his way was perfectly clear, he answered as best he could, "Perfectly." He then with difficultly articulated the name of his beloved wife, and intimated a desire to see his children once more; but when they came he was unable to give expression to the feelings and thoughts that swelled his heart. He then, with a sweet smile upon his face, "fell asleep in Jesus." Thus passed from earth to heaven our beloved brother and fellow-laborer, Rev. Joshua H. Turner, one of the purest and best of men. "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace."

Brother Turner was an excellent preacher, plain, scriptural, practical, correct, and successful, and in the day of eternity "many will rise up and call him blessed." His literary and theological attainments were of a highly respectable character, and reflect great credit upon his industry and perseverance. As a pastor he had few equals in the Sunday-school, in the prayer and class-meetings. He was always in his place, and faithful in the discharge of his duties. In the sick chamber, in the abodes of poverty, and in all the walks of life, like his divine Master, "he went about doing good." As a husband and father, he was all that could be desired. As a friend, he was affectionate, faithful, and constant. It is a question whether he had an enemy in the world. "He was a good man, full of faith and the Holy Ghost, and by him much people were added unto the Lord."

On Saturday, February 9, he went from his home in Bristol to Philadelphia to attend the funeral of the daughter of our late lamented Rev. William Barnes. He returned to his home in the evening quite indisposed. He preached on the following (Sabbath) morning with great difficulty from continued indisposition. In the afternoon and evening he was unable to be present at the services. The next morning, February 11, though quite unwell, he attended the Quarterly Conference, which closed his active labors in the Church on earth. His disease, which his physicians pronounced to be "nervous fever," was short and severe, which he bore with the most perfect patience and submission.

He leaves a widow and two children to mourn his departure, whom we affectionately and earnestly recommend to the sympathies and prayers of the Church. Funeral services of a deeply interesting character, which were attended by a large concourse of sympathizing friends, both of the ministry and the laity, were held in the Union Methodist Episcopal Church, February 22, when the devotional services were conducted by Revs. A. Atwood, William Cooper, J. B. Maddux, T. A. Fernley, and W. Kenney.

A memoir of the deceased, and resolutions of sympathy, passed by the Preachers' Meeting of Philadelphia and the official members of the Bristol Methodist Episcopal Church, were read by the Revs. J. Mason and T. C. Murphy. His remains were temporarily deposited, with suitable religious services, in the vault of the Asbury Methodist Episcopal Church in West Philadelphia.

"Our brother the haven hath gained,
Outflying the tempest and wind;
His rest he hath sooner obtained,
And left his companions behind.

"Still tossed on a sea of distress,
Hard toiling to make the blest shore,
Where all is assurance and peace,
And sorrow and sin are no more."

Samuel Y. Monroe, Reuben Vansyckle—2.

1. SAMUEL YORKE MONROE, D.D., was born at Mount Holly, N. J., July 1, 1816, and died February 9, 1867, in the fifty-first year of his age. In early life he enjoyed excellent advantages for acquiring a good English education, and was converted to God in the fall of 1833, in the Union Church, Philadelphia, under the labors of Rev. Charles Pitman. After laboring for several years as a local preacher he was admitted on trial, in the New Jersey Conference, at its session in New Brunswick, April 26, 1843, and had, consequently, been in the ministry at the time of his death nearly twenty-four years.

His several fields of labor during this period were Swedesborough; Salem; Prospect-street, Paterson; Halsey-street, Newark; Princeton; Clinton-street, Newark; Liberty-street, New Brunswick; Camden; Bridgeton District; Green-street, Trenton; Camden District, New Jersey Conference; and Trinity Church, Jersey City, Newark Conference.

When the Church Extension Society was organized, in 1865, the bishops, to whom the General Conference had committed the duty of appointing a Corresponding Secretary, very wisely selected Dr. Monroe, as a man eminently fitted to discharge the duties of that important office, and he entered upon his duties with his characteristic zeal and devotion. From that time to the close of his laborious and useful life his labors were increasingly arduous. In addition to an extensive correspondence, he visited and addressed some fifty conferences upon the subject of church extension; preached once or twice nearly every Sabbath; organized his work almost over the whole Church; and raised and disbursed about sixty thousand dollars during the first year of the society's existence. During this period his labors were undoubtedly excessive; and, in the opinion of those who had the best opportunity for knowing, were beginning sensibly to impair his health and vigor. Dr. Monroe's death was both sudden and unexpected, and to none more so than to himself. Leaving his home in Camden on Saturday, to attend a meeting in the Sands-street Church, in Brooklyn, the next day, he fell or was thrown from the rear platform of a car, near Jersey City, was dashed against the rocks, and instantly killed.

Dr. Monroe was in many respects a remarkable man. As a Christian, he was conscientious without being morbidly sensitive; fervent in spirit, without being boisterous or fanatical; faithful, without being severe or censorious; and spiritual and pure in heart, without a profession of extraordinary religious attainments. Though charitable and forbearing toward all, he disliked everything like self-righteousness, or affectation of piety. He let his light shine, but it was rather by his consistent and exemplary life than by his public professions. His good works were the light by which he glorified God. And if remarkable humility and evenness of spirit, and freedom from pride, and envy, and jealousy, and censoriousness, and selfish ambition, is any evidence of a high state of grace, then must Dr. Monroe be regarded as a truly sanctified and holy man and minister. And his success in winning souls to Christ proved that wherever he labored God was with him.

As a preacher he was able, evangelical, and edifying; and as a pastor diligent, sympathetic, and faithful; and in his domestic relations, as a husband and father, he shone not less brightly than in his public relations and duties. To his quiet home, the sanctuary of his purest earthly joys, he was fondly attached, and never was he more happy than when within its precincts, in the society of his wife and daughter.

But that which distinguished him more than anything else was his remarkably clear perception of the relations of things, his rapid mental comparisons and inductions, and his consequent seemingly intuitive and almost infallible judgment. In this respect he had probably no superiors, if, indeed, he had many equals, in our Church. Remarkably free from prejudice and selfishness, and ever cool and conscientious, and with a mind that could grasp a question, view it in all its relations, and at once deduce the appropriate conclusion, he was an eminently wise and safe counselor in everything pertaining to the kingdom of God.

Such being his character and qualifications, it is not strange that he was early recognized as a standard-bearer in his conference, and often sent as one of their representatives to the chief council of the Church. He was a delegate to the General Conferences of 1856, 1860, and 1864, at the last of which he received a very flattering vote for the office of a general superintendent, or bishop, in the Church.

But he has passed from toil to rest, and from this world of sorrow, pain, and death, to that "better country and heavenly" where death is unknown, and where all tears are wiped away! And, although Brother Monroe had not a moment's warning of his approaching end, none of us can doubt his meetness for the inheritance of the saints in light, and his present and everlasting felicity at the right hand of God. He fell in the service of his Master, with his armor on, in the midst of the conflict, and leading a forlorn hope, and though "snatched home eternally" in the strength of his years, he had well accomplished the chief ends of life, and has left as a legacy to his family and to the Church a record and a name that will be as ointment poured forth for long years to come.

Who of us would not be entirely satisfied with the life record, reputation, place in the affections of his brethren, funeral honors, and prospective hereafter of our beloved, but now departed brother? May his mantle, and a double portion of his spirit, rest upon us who remain, to mourn his sudden departure!

He was buried in the Evergreen Cemetery, near Camden, N. J., February 13, 1867, the funeral services being conducted by Bishop Simpson and others, and attended by a vast concourse of people, among whom were delegations from Newark, Elizabeth, Jersey

City, Trenton, and Philadelphia, and some two hundred of his brethren in the ministry and devout men attended his body to the place of its rest till all the dead arise.

Services had previously been held in Hudson City, under the direction of Rev. Michael E. Ellison, into whose hands the remains providentially fell after the fatal accident, and who deserves the gratitude of all the friends of Dr. Monroe and of the Church for his brotherly care for the dead, and his arduous and disinterested labors in informing friends of the sad event, and having the remains properly cared for and prepared for transmission to his family.

A large committee from Trinity Church, Jersey City, his last pastoral charge, accompanied the body to Camden, and memorial services were subsequently held in Jersey City, Newark, Trenton, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Chicago, and elsewhere.

Thus has suddenly passed from our view, and from the walks of our spiritual Zion, another faithful laborer and watchman; and with the memorial services, of which the reading of this memoir is a part, we bid him adieu till we meet him in heaven.

"Go, spirit of the sainted dead;
Go to thy longed-for, happy home!
The tears of man are o'er thee shed;
The voice of angels bids thee come.
Though earth may boast one gem the less,
May not e'en heaven the richer be?
And myriads on thy footsteps press,
To share thy blest eternity."

2. Rev. Reuben Vansyckle, of the Newark Conference, was born in November, 1822. He was converted to God in the seventeenth year of his age, and almost immediately commenced to speak and exhort on the subject of religion. His labors were continuous, earnest, and successful, and in the spring of 1843 he was received on trial in the New Jersey Conference, and appointed to Newton Circuit. In 1844 he was sent to New Prospect; in 1845, to Stanhope; in 1846, to Barryville; and in 1847–48 to Sandyston. In 1849 he became supernumerary, and remained non-effective until 1863, a period of thirteen years. During 1862 he was made chaplain of the United States Hospital at Fortress Monroe, Va., and served in that capacity for a brief period. In 1863, placed on the effective list, he was sent to Bloomingdale Circuit. In 1864 he was again appointed to Sandyston, but was soon afterward changed to Marshall Creek, where he was deeply afflicted in the loss of his wife. Reappointed to Marshall Creek in 1865, he overtaxed a feeble body, and utterly failed in health about the middle of the year. Retiring to the hospitable home of his sister, Widow Carmichael, at Sparta, he ended his sufferings and his life on the fourth of March, 1867, in the forty-fifth year of his age and the twenty-fourth year of his ministry.

Brother Vansyckle was a sincere Christian, true to the evangelical standard of piety, and consistent in his life. His recorded experiences breathe much ardor for souls, clear views of the Gospel, and an intense desire to be useful. He was an interesting preacher, original, quaint, and sensible. Doubtless, with larger opportunities and a stronger frame, he would have made a more than ordinary man.

In January, 1867, he succumbed to the malady which had enfeebled him for so many years. He remarked: "I have tried my best to rise above my disease, but I guess it will master me after all." He made all the arrangements for his funeral, and, with death full in view, manifested a steady faith in his Redeemer. The promises of God were very precious to him, while his experience of an indwelling Saviour was clear and full. To his presiding elder, just before his death, he said: "Tell the preachers I love them. Tell them to be faithful, faithful, faithful." While his parents, children, and friends gathered around his bed, he embraced his children, imprinted on their lips his farewell kiss, and then cried, "All is ready, all is ready." To the question, "Is Jesus with you?" he replied, "Yes, glory to God," and soon after passed away, without a struggle, to the bosom of the Father. A post mortem examination revealed the existence simply of pulmonary decay. Funeral services were held in the Andover Methodist Episcopal Church, where Rev. C. S. Coit, P. E., preached an appropriate sermon from Hebrews xiii, 14, and his remains were laid in the cemetery at Andover, amid the tears of a numerous circle of friends.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

Edward Page, Isaac Hugg, J. C. Chew—3.

1. Rev. EDWARD PAGE, the subject of this brief memoir, was the oldest member of the New Jersey Conference. In his conference relation he was five years the senior of Rev. Isaac Winner, who now stands first on our list of ministers. He was born in Burlington County, New Jersey, April 19, 1787, and would have been eighty years old next month. His attendance on the means of grace commenced at an early age; and although, as he often said, he was a wicked young man, yet, on the twenty-second of November, 1807, he was convicted of sin, while the late Rev. P. P. Sandford was preaching in the old Methodist Episcopal Church at Allentown, on the text, "And whosoever shall fall on this stone shall be broken, but on whomsoever it shall fall it will grind him to powder." Shortly after this he was converted and joined the Church. Being a sweet singer of our spiritual songs, and having power to stir the hearts of the people in prayer, and by words of warning and instruction, the attention of the Church was soon drawn toward him, and the next year after his conversion he was licensed to exhort. Four years later he was licensed to preach, in which position he remained until April, 1817, when he joined the Philadelphia Conference as an itinerant minister.

At that time three fourths of the members of the New Jersey Conference, as it now stands, were unborn, and the whole Philadelphia Conference, which then occupied the entire ground now covered by the Philadelphia, New Jersey, and Newark Conferences, numbered but seventy-four ministers, and a white membership of only one thousand more than is now found in the New Jersey Conference alone.

From the year 1817 to the year 1852, a period of thirty-five years, Father Page traveled as follows: Essex and Staten Island, 1817; Salem Circuit, 1818–19; Lewiston, Del., 1820–21; Trenton Circuit, 1822; Cumberland Circuit, 1823–24; New Castle, Del., 1825; Cecil, Md., 1826; Gloucester Circuit, 1827–28; Chester Circuit, Pa., 1829–30; Bristol, Pa., 1831–32; Camden Circuit, 1833; Moorestown, 1834; Freehold, 1835; New Egypt, 1836; Bargaintown, 1837–38; Freehold, 1839–40; Columbus, 1841–42; Flemington, 1843; Clinton, 1844; Asbury, 1845–46; Columbus, 1847; Tom's River, 1848–49; Moorestown, 1850–51; then supernumerary or superannuated until death.

During these thirty-five years, taking Father Page's own statement for two years as our average, he must have preached at least nine thousand sermons, led numberless classes, while he prayed and sung everywhere with wonderful success. In all his fields of labor souls were converted. In some of them the revival power swept like tornadoes through the community, prostrating everything at the feet of Jesus. Churches were soon planted and built, blessed and strengthened, and God was glorified.

All over this state, and in parts of Pennsylvania, Delaware, and Maryland, Edward Page led the people to Christ. He received them into the Church, he baptized the children, he married the sons and daughters, and buried the dead. Thus, in the days of his strength, he went out laboring until the number of his baptisms ran up to 3,041, a number equaled, perhaps, by but few ministers since the days of John the Baptist.

For the last fifteen years Father Page has been a superannuate, residing in Trenton, N. J., but during these years he has not been idle. He has worshiped the last two years with the new Central Methodist Episcopal Church in that city, having all the while shown very great interest in its prosperity, not only giving of his scanty means, but collecting considerably from his friends to aid its erection.

If in anything he has excelled during these fifteen years it has been in his kind and sympathetic attentions to the sick and dying. How many prayers he has offered, how many encouraging words he has spoken in the chamber of affliction, eternity alone can tell.

For a number of years past Father Page has been enjoying a quiet and serene old age. His Christian experience has generally been of the joyful character. He has been a happy old man. He was very anxious to come to the Conference, and for weeks before was making his arrangements for it. His desire was granted, and never, perhaps, was the aged pilgrim more gratified with the kind attentions of his brethren in the ministry. At the conference love-feast on Sabbath morning, after having led in prayer, he was the first to spring to his feet with youthful elasticity to bear his testimony joyfully to the goodness of his Lord. His convictions of sin, he said, were deep, and his conversion to God clear, and for many years he had lived in the enjoyment of a full and glorious salvation. He loved his brethren of the conference greatly, and he believed they loved him, and he looked forward with joyful anticipation to the time when he should greet them in the skies. It was his high privilege after the love-feast to listen with profound interest to the sermon of Bishop Janes. In the afternoon he attended the children's meeting, thus showing his interest in the young, after which he returned to the residence of Captain Bishop, his home during the conference, complaining somewhat of not feeling well; but nothing serious was anticipated, and in the evening he retired to rest as usual. He arose early on Monday morning, March 25, and still complaining of weakness and dizziness of the head, a physician was sent for, but in a few minutes after his arrival his peaceful spirit passed away to his home in the skies. He leaves to the prayers and sympathies of the Church an aged widow and two children.

A few days ago we recorded the desire that our gracious Lord would deal kindly with Father Page, and when he slept that hovering angels would carry his redeemed spirit to the land of eternal sunshine, where, crowned and glorified, he should mingle with the thousands whom he has been instrumental in turning to righteousness, and with them sing the praises of the Lamb. The desire has been granted, and Father Page is with God.

> "His languishing head is at rest,
> Its thinking and aching are o'er;
> His quiet, immovable breast
> Is heaved by affliction no more."

2. Rev. ISAAC HUGG departed this life at Pointville, N. J., April 5, 1866, aged fifty-two years. He was born and reared principally in Gloucester, now Camden County, N. J. Of his early life, little is known to the writer, except that he was a remarkably kind and affectionate boy, and an amiable youth. He was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church at Gloucester City in the year 1841, under the labors of Rev. W. A. Brooks. He was subsequently licensed to exhort, and called out to fill a vacancy in 1844, and joined the New Jersey Conference in 1845. Thenceforward he filled with zeal and efficiency the several places assigned him, being always acceptable, and in many places eminently useful. On Rome and Wantage Circuit, on Cedarville Charge, and elsewhere, he was blessed with extensive and powerful revivals of religion. He was, under God, the founder of Methodism in the village of Cranberry, N. J. He formed the first class there of seven members, which before the year closed was increased to fifty, many of whom remain, and others are fallen asleep in Jesus. Hundreds of souls, indeed, saved through his instrumentality, all over our state, will rise up in the last day and call him blessed.

About twelve years ago, while laboring on Vernon Circuit, he had his hip dislocated by a fall from his carriage, which caused him a great deal of suffering for several years, and indeed more or less up to the time of his death. In the spring of 1864, being pressed by increasing affliction, he was obliged to take a superannuated relation, and settled at Pointville, in Burlington County. Here he labored as he had ability, being greatly beloved by the people. At the last public service he attended, only a few weeks before his death, he led a poor wanderer from the fold back to the altar and the cross, who was happily reclaimed, and remains a faithful member of the Church to this day. A few months previous to last conference he considered himself much better, and was preparing to take an appointment, when he was suddenly taken down with what proved to be dropsy of the heart, which, in a few weeks, closed his earthly course.

Brother Hugg was emphatically a good man, deeply experienced in the inner and higher Christian life. He possessed an amiable disposition, and on his lips were ever words of kindness. The poor knew well how to prize him, and the children everywhere loved him. He was a good preacher, and where health permitted, a faithful pastor.

In his last sickness he was remarkably peaceful and triumphant. Brother Graw, who had charge of the circuit where he resided, and frequently visited him, remarked to him on one occasion, "I suppose the Gospel which you preached to others sustains you now." "O yes," he replied, "I have preached the Gospel a number of years, and have suffered a good deal, but I can depend on none of these things now. My soul can rest on nothing save Jesus Christ and him crucified. I am a sinner saved by grace. O, the cross, the blessed cross! this is all my hope now!" Then pointing upward, he said: "Yes, and yonder is the crown—a crown of righteousness which will soon be mine!" At another time he said: "My sufferings have at times been great. Indeed, for twelve years I have not passed a single day without pain, but I am glad I was wounded in the service. O what an honor to be a minister of such a glorious Gospel!" Speaking of his brethren of the conference, he said, "Tell them that I love them as I love no other body of men on earth. Tell them to preach a free, full, and present salvation; this is the only doctrine which will save the world." When told by his physician that he would most likely leave them before morning, he said: "Praise the Lord, that is the best news I have heard for a long time. I shall soon be home. Doctor, I am prepared to die!" In this happy frame he continued till death closed the scene.

His funeral was preached in Pointville Church, by Rev. S. Townsend, and his remains lie buried, by his own request, in Cranberry, N. J., there to await the sound of the last trump in the morning of the resurrection. He leaves a stricken widow to claim an interest in our prayers and Christian sympathies. May God sustain her!

3. Rev. Jonas C. Chew departed this life October 3, 1866, aged fifty-nine years. He was born in Gloucester County, N. J., and spent his early years in that section of country. Being blessed with religious parents, he was led to seek the Saviour at the early age of fourteen years. At twenty-four he was licensed to exhort by Rev. Henry White, then presiding elder of West Jersey District. When twenty-eight he received license to preach, and at forty was ordained a deacon by Bishop Janes at Sharpstown. His labors as a local preacher were abundant, and highly appreciated wherever he went. Indeed, he was one of the most popular and useful local preachers in that part of the state. In 1855 he was employed as a supply on the Willow Grove Charge, and the following spring was admitted on trial in the annual conference and appointed to Cumberland Circuit, and was reappointed next year. In 1858–59 he labored on Bargaintown Circuit, and in 1860 he was on Tuckerton Charge. During this year his health failed, and at the following conference he took a superannuated relation, and removed to Dividing Creek, Cumberland County, where he owned a farm, on which he resided till his death. On all the above charges he was regarded as an excellent preacher, and souls were converted through his instrumentality. During the years of 1864–65 he labored usefully on the Cumberland Mission in that county.

On the third day of October last he left home, in company with two of his brethren, to attend a Sunday-school Convention at Vineland, a distance of some fifteen miles. Before they reached that place he was seized with cholera, which soon proved too much for his broken constitution. After arriving at Vineland, and enduring for a few hours the most extreme sufferings with remarkable patience and Christian resignation, assuring those around him that his work was done, that all was well, that his faith was strong, and his hope full and glorious, he closed his eyes on the scenes of this life to behold and enjoy his reward in heaven.

1. Rev. WILLIAM H. MAXWELL died at the residence of his parents, in Chambersburgh, Pa., March 23, 1866, in the thirty-first year of his age. Twelve years before, under the ministry of Rev. John M. Jones, he experienced a change of heart. Soon after his conversion he felt that God called him to preach the Gospel. The Church was similarly impressed, and his presiding elder desired him to enter immediately upon the work of the ministry. Feeling that his education was not sufficient for such a responsible position, he at once declined the proposition, and commenced a course of study which would fit him mentally for the work to which the great Head of the Church called him. He entered Dickinson College September, 1857, and graduated with honor July 1, 1861. As a student, he was faithful in the preparation of his studies; every point was carefully searched out. He seldom entered the recitation room without thorough preparation, and when called upon, his ready responses showed that he was master of the subject. As a friend, he was firm and confiding. As a Christian, conscientious in the performance of duty. His place in the prayer and class-room was never vacant when it was possible for him to be there. He kept his life's work constantly in view, and sought earnestly to be prepared for it, that he might be a workman "that needeth not to be ashamed." He entered East Baltimore Conference in March, 1861, and was appointed to Cumberland Valley Mission; 1862, Carlisle Circuit; 1863, M'Veytown; 1864, Concord; 1865, New Bloomfield Circuit, which was changed by his presiding elder to Carlisle Circuit on account of his failing health. A few months before the session of 1865 his health became much impaired. Consumption, that fell destroyer, marked him for his victim. Unwilling to leave the work to which he was ardently attached, he went to his new appointment, hoping that God had some further work for him in his vineyard; but the willing spirit, that fain would "cease at once to work and live," was forced to yield to the weakness of the flesh, and seek the quiet of his paternal home. There, amid the scenes of his youth, surrounded by loving friends, he lingered long, suffering much, yet patiently waiting the bridegroom's voice. On the 27th of February, 1866, he wrote as follows to his presiding elder: "My system continues to sink gradually, and the prospect of life grows fainter. I have no hope of getting well. I am satisfied to live and struggle through the rest of life's conflict, or I am willing to sleep in death and rest with God. The precious Gospel of the Lord Jesus, that I once attempted feebly to declare unto others, is now a balm for my suffering, and the sweetest consolation. And I am glad to-day that I was ever counted worthy to be a servant of Christ, and permitted to declare his truth for the short time I have. If I ever made any sacrifices they do not seem so now. O that I could have sacrificed and suffered more for his sake, who hath purchased the blessed hope of a more blessed immortality that cheers my heart and lifts the vail from those bright scenes that make the soul long to be away from earth and at home with God." Thus he waited calmly the approach of death, and while his brethren were hastening to their new appointments after the session of 1866, the summons came to him to enter into rest. His setting sun went down without a cloud. The victor's crown now sets upon his brow. He has entered into rest.

2. Rev. David A. Isenberg was born near Alexandria, Huntingdon County, Pa., October 20, 1836, and died at the same place on Sunday, March 25, 1866, in the thirtieth year of his age, having been an itinerant preacher six years. He was converted to God at a camp-meeting held near Alexandria in August, 1854, under the pastoral oversight of Rev. E. Butler. But one member of his father's family (a sister) had previously joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, but before his death he had the pleasure of having his father, mother, and others of the family, of whom some were members of other Churches, uniting with him in the same Church communion.

Brother Isenberg in his life was always an exemplary and moral young man. Said his father to the writer of this: "In all his life I never heard him utter an oath, nor use a word approaching profanity." This was also his uniform reputation among others. After his conversion, and while attending the Academy at Rainsburgh, and associated as room-mate with one who is now a member of this conference, we have this testimony: "He was always kind, for he was always the same. He was not only respected, but loved by all who knew him intimately. I have seen him under all circumstances, and never knew him angry or unsocial. His religious habits, like his social qualities, were unchangeable. He read some portion of the Bible every day, and prayed, like David of old, morning, noon, and night. Nothing but sickness was permitted to keep him from being present at the public means of grace. There was most finely blended diligence in his duties, fidelity to his friends, cheerfulness in his sports, and piety in the whole. As a student, he was not rapid, but very diligent, and hence successful."

During his attendance at school he was licensed to preach at a quarterly conference for the Rainsburgh charge, held at Mount Smith, in October, 1859. In the trial sermon on the occasion he humbly acknowledges in a letter to a friend, "the Lord helped me." From the same circuit he was recommended for the traveling connection. He was received by the East Baltimore Conference in March, 1860, and was successively appointed, in 1860, to Frederick Circuit; in 1861, Hampstead; in 1862, Muncy; in 1863, Gettysburg; in 1864, New Bloomfield; and in 1865, Shirleysburgh. He received, on account of failing health, a superannuated relation at our last conference. Disease, however, had made such progress that shortly after the conference closed, his mission on earth was ended. His disposition to labor for the good of souls was exhibited in his hopefulness on entering his work, in visiting seekers of religion at their homes, and in his desire to continue protracted meetings after they were closed by his senior in office. Brother Isenberg was a plain preacher, yet acceptable and useful. His introductory prayer generally impressed the devout of his audience with his goodness and sincerity, and prepared them to receive with profit what the preacher had to say. The characteristic of his early life was indelibly stamped upon his whole career. His last senior colleague gives in answer to our inquiries: "As a man, he was amiable and beloved; as a Christian, truly pious and devoted; as a minister, acceptable and useful. He was of social habits and affectionate disposition. He excelled as a singer, though quite capable in other respects."

Perhaps it may not be amiss in this memoir to briefly refer to one act of his life. He felt constrained from love to his country, as well as the good of souls, in an emergency to go to the tented field. Excusing himself for this act to those at home, he wrote: "You know my feelings of patriotism are not small, and where so many of our men and boys went, over whom I knew I could have some influence, and while they expressed a wish to have me go, I felt I could serve my country and exert a good influence in the cause of my Master." The year of his appointment to Gettysburg was memorable as the time of the battle. He was in Gettysburgh at the commencement of the contest, and barely escaped from the town in safety with his horse. He came up in the rear of the Union army, and witnessed some of the fighting. He excuses for but a brief letter announcing his safety by writing: "I have not felt like doing anything but attend to the wounded." And we judge from his disposition that many a wounded soldier received from his hand careful and kind nursing, mingled with godly counsel to the dying.

Brother Isenberg was appointed in charge of Shirleysburg Circuit in 1865, and continued his labors until August of that year, when he was taken with a bronchial affection, which obliged him to desist from his work. He was taken to his father's house in the closing part of February following, where he lingered until his death. He looked for death, and expected soon to die when he reached home. His disease distressed him much, and he could only partake of food in a bowed condition, and then to be fed like a child. He bore all, however, with Christian patience. When fears were expressed that should even this mode to feed him fail, he banished the thought with the confident expression, "The Lord will provide." A few days before his death, on being visited by the physician, and informed that he might die any hour, he replied: "It would be nice to stay for a while, but I am perfectly resigned, whatever is the Lord's will." On desiring to take a drink of water, which he could not, he said: "I long to drink of the water of life." At another time, when a little snow was brought to him, as he held it in his hand, and it soon dissolved, he remarked: "Just like all earthly pleasures, soon over." To the brother who labored with him at the altar of prayer at his conversion, he sent the word: "Tell Brother Wood that Jesus has always been precious to me." Early in the morning of the day in which he died he asked his father, "Is not this the Sabbath?" On being told it was, he replied, "This day I'll go home." In the afternoon, as a few Christian brethren were with him, he was exulting in holy triumph, shouting "glory" until his voice failed him. And such was the hallowed influence by which he was filled, that the strain of praise was united with by those present, the dying and the living praising God together. His last words were:

"I long to depart and be with Jesus; he is most precious."

Thus departed our brother. To know him was to love him. None ever doubted his sincerity, nor the reality of the work of the Holy Spirit upon his heart. He sleeps in Jesus, and God will bring him with Christ at his second coming.

"God gives us ministers of love,
Which we regard not, being near;
Death takes them from us; then we feel
That ministers indeed with us here
Have been."

3. Rev. JAMES FRANKLIN PORTER was born in Danville, Pa., September 25, 1833. He was converted in his sixteenth year, during a revival in the Sunday-school in Milton, Pa., through the instrumentality of Rev. John A. Gere, then presiding elder of Northumberland District. He was licensed to preach by the quarterly conference of Milton Station, and in 1853 entered upon his itinerant work in Clearfield Circuit. He was admitted on trial in the Baltimore Conference, March, 1854, and from this time, during a ministry of twelve years, labored always acceptably, and often with marked success, in the following charges: Covington Circuit, Va.; Patuxent and Summerfield Circuits, Md.; Coalmont, Montoursville, Bloomingdale, Berwick, York Springs, and Shamokin Circuits, Pa. While at York Springs he became a chaplain in the United States Army in connection with a Pennsylvania regiment. To the duties of this trying position he was eminently adapted, winning by his firmness and devotion the confidence and esteem of those with whom he was associated. During the three years of his ministry at Shamokin his labors were abundant, exceedingly blessed of God in the conversion of souls and the edification of the Church. In March, 1866, he was placed in charge of Jeansville Circuit. This was his last appointment. Here, on the 11th of July, 1866, after a brief illness, he entered into rest.

Unhesitatingly may it be said of James Franklin Porter that he was an unselfish man. Naturally possessed of a genial temper and all companionable qualities, combined with a pleasing address, he won irresistibly upon the esteem of all who knew him. He thought not so much of himself as of others. His, according to the testimony of those who knew him best, was a noble, generous, and loving soul, seeking by self-sacrificing endeavors the welfare of all. As a Christian he was without reproach. His experience was deep, constant, and fervid; his preaching impressive, evangelical, and attractive. Visiting from house to house was with him a duty of paramount importance, and for the discharge of which his social qualities and warm Christian sympathies peculiarly fitted him.

In the Sabbath-schools of his charge he was especially interested. His zealous and successful labors in their behalf was, perhaps, the distinctive feature of his ministry. Having himself been converted through the instrumentality of the Sunday-school, he was prepared the more highly to appreciate its importance as a means for the religious culture of the young, and the growth and establishment of the Church of God.

But earthly existence, however active, however useful, must come to an end. We all remember how unexpectedly the word fell upon our ear that told of the departure of our beloved brother. A sudden discharge from the conflict, however, is not to be regretted where the battle has been bravely fought, and the victory certainly won. Such was the release of this servant of God from the conflict of life. Disease assailed him; quickly did it do its work. During his last hours, under the influence of fever, his mind sometimes wavered; but the great thought that possessed his soul still held dominion. He imagined himself in the pulpit, and forcibly spake of the surprise expressed by Thomas when convinced of the identity of Christ after his resurrection, and applied it as an illustration of the surprise experienced by the Christian when first he greets the Saviour within the gate of heaven. In lucid intervals, however, fully conscious of his approaching end, he spoke confidently of his future home, conversed with his family, prayed earnestly, and sang fervently the beautiful hymn commencing,

"From every stormy wind that blows."

When approaching the dark river he sang, in concert with others:

"On Jordan's stormy banks I stand,
And cast a wishful eye,
To Canaan's fair and happy land,
Where my possessions lie."

Thus, in the midst of his days and of his usefulness, passed from among us, and, as we trust, to the company of the redeemed, our beloved brother and colaborer, James Franklin Porter; a true man, a devoted Christian, and an efficient minister of the Church of God.

The remains of Brother Porter were carried to Milton, Pa., at the residence of his father, where appropriate religious services were conducted by the Revs. Dr. Reiley and J. W. Langley, after which they were interred in the Milton Cemetery, there to await the resurrection of the just.

4. Rev. CHARLES B. TIPPETT, D.D., was born in Prince George's County, Md., December 19, 1801, and died at his residence in Hookstown, Baltimore County, Md., February 25, 1867. He was converted to God in 1816, through the instrumentality of Rev. Henry Smith, of precious memory, and began his pulpit ministrations in 1819. In 1820 he entered the Baltimore Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and on the 7th of March, 1827, was married to Miss Margaret S. Lewis, of Rockingham County, Va., the estimable lady who now survives him.

Probably no man is historically more closely connected with both the Baltimore and East Baltimore Conferences than Brother Tippett. He was directly or indirectly connected with almost every charge in the city of Baltimore, and also most of the territory of these conferences. In proof of this we appeal to the following record, from which we have the mournful pleasure of tracing his career: 1820, Jefferson; 1821, Rockingham; 1822, Alleghany; 1823–24, Fredericksburgh; 1825, East Baltimore; 1826–27, Severn; 1828–29, Leesburgh; 1830, Harford; 1831–34, Rockingham District; 1835, Georgetown; 1836–37, Foundry, Washington, D. C.; 1838–39, North Baltimore; 1840, Baltimore City Station; 1841, Fayette-street; 1842–44, Carlisle District; 1845–48, Book Agent, New York; 1848–49, North Baltimore; 1850–53, Carlisle District; 1854–55, Summerfield; 1856, Williamsport, Pa.; 1857, Bellefonte District; 1858–61, Cumberland District; 1862–63, Caroline-street; 1864, Exeter-street; 1865–66, Whatcoat, where, after a ministry of forty-seven years, he ceased to labor and to live. During that ministry he filled the office of presiding elder sixteen years, was Book Agent at New York four years, represented his conference in the General Conference a number of times, and has been a member of the General Book Committee for nearly nineteen years.

To do justice to the character and labors of such a man as Charles B. Tippett is a difficult task; for while many of his brethren secured a larger share of public attention, it is doubtful whether any of them were as uniformly successful in winning souls to Christ. Wherever he went God honored his ministrations, and, at times, in an extraordinary manner. With a field of labor co-extensive with the territory of the two conferences, and a history of ministerial service embracing nearly half a century, we can know him only in part here. For a full view we must wait until that which is perfect is come; until the resurrection morn, when multitudes shall hail him as the honored instrument of their salvation.

Brother Tippett was no ordinary man. He possessed many elements of true greatness and power; was mighty, through God, to the pulling down of strongholds. He was an eminently good man, one whose unaffected yet ever active piety was undoubted and apparent. Toward God the filial spirit in him was predominant, showing himself to be a child of God. Toward man he was good-natured and kind. The cast of his features, the tones of his voice, the courteousness of his manners, revealed his heart. This goodness of heart shone with peculiar luster in the family, where he was a model of affection as husband and father, and in the social circle, where few could love or be loved as he. In his intercourse with others he had the faculty of giving to the most serious topics an aspect of joyfulness, or of making what was sprightly and gay the means of instruction and serious impression. In him cheerfulness and sobriety were blended in an extraordinary degree.

He was an eminently wise man. "The wisdom that is from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, and easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality and without hypocrisy." His wisdom did not arise from uncommon grasp of mind, but its elements were honesty of purpose and trust in God; so that his love of what was true led him almost intuitively to discern the right. While his opinions on all subjects were firmly held and frankly expressed, yet he was no controversialist. Though independently and fearlessly conscientious, whose confidence did he lose, or whom did he make his enemy? He was a wise man in that he pursued his ends by means which could hardly fail to conciliate or secure approbation.

He was an eminently laborious man, a true servant of Christ, who counted not his life dear unto himself, so that he might finish his course with joy, and the ministry which he had received from the Lord Jesus.

He was probably one of the most indefatigable men of his generation, succeeding by persevering effort where others would fail. His ministerial life was one of assiduous and faithful labor, and no interest intrusted to him suffered from indolence or neglect. The secret of his success was that he had a warm heart, and he threw his whole heart into the work of God. It was indeed his meat and drink to do the will of Christ, and to finish the work assigned him.

These were the elements of his power, and these elements lay in his moral character. He was eminently a man of God—a man of prayer. He drew his strength from the God of Jacob, went out from the place of his sanctuary clad in the armor of the upper temple. To preach Christ was the business of his life, and in the fulfillment of his mission he felt his theme; was moved, melted, and charmed with the love of a crucified Saviour; his soul glowed with compassion for the perishing.

But Charles B. Tippett is no more. He closed his useful life a few weeks ago in the midst of his family and in the active work of his ministry. The death of such a man is not only a loss to this Conference and to his family, but also to the Church at large, and to the world. But our loss is temporary; but what shall be said of his gain?

What a glorious exchange of a ruinous tabernacle for a house not made with hands; of a howling wilderness for the heavenly Canaan, the palace of angels, the city of God; of the cross for the crown; of the distractions of earth for the rapturous enjoyments of heaven.

> "Happy day! that breaks our chain;
> That manumits, that calls from exile, home;
> That leads to nature's great metropolis,
> And readmits us, through the guardian hand
> Of elder brothers, to our Father's throne."

Two days before the fatal stroke Brother Tippett was attending to his official duties at Whatcoat. On Saturday, February 23, he was attacked with paralysis of the brain, from which he never rallied, but remained in an unconscious state until the Monday night following, when he entered rest.

The funeral took place from the Eutaw Methodist Episcopal Church, on the 28th of February, where appropriate and eloquent addresses were delivered by Revs. A. E. Gibson, James H. Brown, and Joseph France, to an immense concourse, after which his remains were borne to Mt. Olivet Cemetery, to await the voice of the archangel and the trump of God.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

Jacob Sanborn, C. S. Macreading—2.

1. Rev. JACOB SANBORN was born May 16, in the town of Unity, N. H. On December 25, 1817, he was married to Miss Fanny Eastman, of Landaff, N. H., who died in the Lord May 14, 1825. On June 21, 1826, he was married to Miss Eliza Robinson, of Portsmouth, N. H., who, with a daughter and four sons, survive to mourn his loss.

His pious Baptist parents, Deacon Abraham Sanborn and Deborah, by their religious instructions, prayers, and holy life, early and deeply impressed the mind of Jacob, their youngest son. At the age of seventeen, 1805, he was deeply awakened by the Holy Spirit to a sense of his sinfulness, and on account of it filled with sorrow. On November 24, of the same year, he entertained a hope in the divine mercy, and felt himself born of the Spirit. This change occurred on Sabbath evening after the sun had gone down, as he was riding through a woodland. The night was light about him, and a "new joy" sprang up in his heart. He was wont to say, "My evidence was pretty clear." Afterward it was somewhat obscured by doubts, yet he persevered in this new life and held fast his confidence. On January 18, 1806, he united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, and twenty-two years afterward observed, "For which I have never been sorry; yet I highly regard other Churches, and Christians of other denominations." This feeling of charity toward all Christians adorned his practice through his whole subsequent life.

About five years after he became a Methodist (in 1811) he was impressed that it was his duty to preach the Gospel. To satisfy himself more fully of his call, and to know more perfectly the true character of Methodist preachers, he attended a session of the New England Conference at Barnard, Vt. Soon after this, amid conflicting doubts as to his duty, he yet girded up his mind, and on August 14, 1811, in the twenty-fourth year of his age, went forth from his father's house to preach the Gospel in the "Methodist itinerancy." One year he labored as a "licentiate" in the Landaff Circuit, N. H., under the direction of a presiding elder. Here a good revival of religion sprang up. Souls were converted, and he had much joy and happiness in his work.

In June of the year 1812 he united on trial with the New England Conference, at its session in Lynn, Mass., and was appointed to the Pembroke Circuit, N. H. From this time onward until 1850, with the exception of one year, in which he held a local relation, he was effective, and labored wherever he was sent. Thirty-eight years of effective labor, including his licentiate year, he thus joyfully rendered to the Church of his choice. During this time he filled many of the most important positions in what was once the New England Conference, whose area is now divided into the two Maine, the Vermont, the New Hampshire, the Providence, and the New England Conferences. God was with him and made him a blessing to all the Churches. In many places powerful revivals of religion attended his labors, and in all the fields of his toil fruit was gathered and good accomplished. But he never thought highly of himself, nor of aught that he had done, but uniformly gave all the glory to God.

In 1813, appointed to Sandwich, N. H., he labored, by change, at Rochester, N. H.; in 1814, at Canaan, N. H.; in 1815, at Landaff, N. H.; in 1816, at Portland, Me.; in 1817, at Landaff, N. H.; and in 1818, at Weathersfield, Vt. The four following years (1819–22) he was presiding elder on the New Hampshire District, comprising the present territory nearly of the whole New Hampshire Conference, and he performed the hard labor of his office with great fidelity and success. In 1823–24 he was stationed at Gilmanton, N. H.; in 1825, at Portsmouth, N. H.; in 1826–27, at New Bedford, Mass., where a blessed revival of religion attended his ministry; in 1828–29, he preached in Providence, R. I., where also God owned and blessed his labors in the salvation of many. In 1830 he preached in Ipswich, Mass.; in 1831, on the Needham Circuit, Mass.; in 1832–33, in Boston, Mass.; in 1834, in Providence, R. I.; in 1835–36, in Newburyport, Mass.; in 1837–38, in Exeter, N. H. He located in 1839, but was readmitted into the New England Conference in 1840, and stationed in Webster, Mass.; in 1841 he was a missionary in Boston, Mass.; in 1842–43, he was stationed at Lynn Wood End, Mass.; in 1844, at Charlestown, Mass.; in 1845, at Malden, Mass.; in 1846 he was made Agent for the Wesleyan University, but preached about half the year in the Worthen-street Church, Lowell, Mass.; in 1847 he preached at Newton, Upper Falls; and in 1848–49, in Waltham, Mass. Here the Church was greatly quickened and blessed under his labors, and here he made his characteristic record on his birthday, May 16, 1848: "I am this day sixty years old. It seems scarcely possible. Sixty years gone! Nearly thirty-seven of these I have spent in the ministry, but O how little done for God! O how little use have I been in the world! What an almost entire blank has my life been! Surely if I am ever saved, it must be by grace, and that grace must be great grace. Such grace may God grant me for the sake of my Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ! Amen."

The next year after he closed his labors at Waltham, Mass., in 1850, his effective relation to his conference ceased. In this year, at its session in Boston, Mass., he took a superannuated relation, which he held until his death. The conference reluctantly placed him on the retired list, but he did not cease to preach Christ. Having located his family in the city of Concord, N. H., this year and the following he preached as occasion offered in the New Hampshire and New England Conferences, and in 1852 he statedly supplied the Church in Fisherville, a part of Concord, N. H. From this time onward to the year 1858 he preached often and with great acceptability to the congregations of various denominations. From 1859, being in his seventy-second year, he preached less frequently; and in 1863, on the 10th of May, he preached his last sermons, in Pembroke, on his first station from the New England Conference. Then he ceased his public labor altogether. His work as an active minister was done. His whole ministerial life spanned over the uncommon period of fifty-five years. Of these, thirty-eight, including his "licentiate" year, were effective, on twenty-three different fields of labor. Of the other seventeen, twelve were filled up with useful occasional labors in the pulpit. The five remaining were years of feebleness and Christian repose in the bosom of his family. As a father and a husband, he had many precious virtues that must ever endear him to his family. He loved them all with an unfaltering affection, and was a counselor of superior wisdom both to them and to others.

Too well known was this venerable man to need words of eulogy from me. Yet it seems fitting, now that he has gone from our midst, to turn our thoughts upon the rich legacy he has left behind in his example, character, and life. From the time he was seventeen years old up to his last hour he was a Christian. Nearly sixty-two years was he a man of faith, and numbered among those who daily call upon the name of the Lord. As the holy men of old, he lived a life of prayer. Scrupulously conscientious in all the relations of life, he was a man of strict integrity of purpose and honesty of heart. His religious character was so pure and transparent as to be easily read and prized by all just and candid observers. For exactness and punctuality, and good faith in all his business transactions, he was a model. A man of great energy and perseverance, he was habitually cheerful, and buoyed up by an elastic hope. Of robust health and strong good sense, he was eminently fitted for practical life. A strict economist, he was enabled, notwithstanding the very slender remuneration he received for services above all price, which should have been more amply rewarded, to rear his family respectably, and to sustain the high duties of his ministerial office. He received no aid from any of the charities of the Church, and he always contributed to them liberally, as he had opportunity, according to his conviction and duty. It greatly grieved him to hear of improvidence and extravagance in a Christian, or even a seeming recklessness of pecuniary obligation. This providence and economy were peculiarly necessary in the early struggles of the Churches and ministry of his times. He was by grace a good man, a lover of good men, a lover of his country, loyal to his Church.

He was eminently a good pastor. In this work he was always diligent, and upon this depended much of his usefulness. Kind, social, frank, buoyant in spirit, he was ever welcome in the social circle, and in the families connected with his people, where he habitually scattered in lively words and brief utterances the gems of truth and wisdom. He had a heart of true sympathy, especially for the afflicted. To the afflicted and the sick his presence, though his visits were always short, was as the sunshine that breaks through the clouds in a storm. As an angel of comfort was he at the bed of death and in the house of mourning. In the social religious meeting he not only took delight, but endeavored to make it cheerful and profitable to all. At the communion table he was wont to gain new nearness to Christ, and to draw others closer to their Lord.

He was a good, and truly great preacher. His education, literary and theological, was ample for his times, and he was studious as his great activity and necessary duties would allow. His mind was above the ordinary cast, and easily grasped the great truths of the gospel. He was a sound divine and a good logician, able to state and defend our doctrines with great clearness and power. He had the rare faculty of making himself perfectly understood by all classes, even by the children. Few could put more practical truth in fewer or simpler terms. His articulation was exceedingly distinct, his emphasis correct and unaffected, and his delivery hearty. With a voice like a clarion, he preached a saving gospel to many thousands, scores of whom, we trust, were brought to Christ, and added to the Church. His preaching was practical, and adapted to save men from their sins. He sought to establish Christians, and to excite them to holy living. On the circuits and country stations he was accustomed to preach often during the week, and in the cities generally three times on the Sabbath. For this he had strength, and at the third service the congregations were crowded, and the greatest good accomplished. He belonged to the heroic age of New England Methodism, and was a hero among the moral heroes of that time. Few of his old compeers survive. Most with whom he used to stand up have passed away.

Where is good and great Elijah Hedding, the mighty Joshua Soule, the holy Elijah R. Sabin? Where the precise George Pickering, who never barbed a truth in vain? Where the noble and eloquent John Brodhead, the heavenly-minded Enoch Mudge? Where the classic Martin Ruter, the learned and sainted Wilbur Fisk, the godly Timothy Merritt, the never-faltering Joseph A. Merrill, the amiable Daniel Fillmore, the stately Epaphras Kibby, the gentle-spirited Damon Young, the gigantic Stephen Olin, the faithful Charles Virgin, the thoughtful, yet sweetly-impulsive Thomas C. Pierce, the warm-hearted Lewis Bates, the sublime John Surdrey, the frank Daniel Dorchester, the upright Daniel Webb, the friendly Isaac Bonney, the calm and wise David Kilburn, and many others, mighty for the truth and righteousness, where are they? They lived, they labored, they have passed on to their reward. Once more, ere this, have they not welcomed their faithful fellow-laborer, Jacob Sanborn, to their hallowed circle and their joys? I believe they have. As most of them, he continued his labors until he could do no more, and his religious character diffused its light and fragrance over all the walks of his life.

In view of death he was calm, and could say, "Though I walk through the valley and the shadow of death, I will fear no evil." January 13, 1864, he put on record: "God is admonishing me that the end is drawing near, and is letting me down very easily and tenderly. I desire to be found ready when the Master shall call. All God's dealings are wise and good, and with them I am satisfied." May 16, 1864, he again records: "My infirmities are light, and comparatively few. Let me not complain. I do not feel a murmur. All God's ways are right. I desire faith and grace to do and be just what he would have me." May 16, 1866, he says: "I am this day seventy-eight years old. I mourn that I can review a long life with so little satisfaction. My hope is in the mercy of God, through our Lord Jesus Christ. In him only have I hope; for him I bless God." As his last hours drew near, March 9, 1867, he said to me, the only member of his conference near him, "I wish you would pray that my faith may be strengthened, and that I may have resignation." He also whispered with deep emotion, "God is good." "God does all things right." "God is love." "I cannot think of meriting anything." "All is of grace." March 10, 1867, he was very feeble, but said in a whisper, "God is precious, very precious." "God is love." March 13, he observed that he was not quite so clear about another world as he wished to be; but he "felt resigned, perfectly resigned." "God does all things right." "God is love, and I love him." "God is good." "Pray that I may have more faith." "God is love; and I rejoice in in him." On the afternoon of March 16, 1867, the day of his death, being inquired of by his wife if he felt that God was precious to him, "O yes," he said. Soon he failed suddenly, and at twenty minutes after six o'clock passed away this man of God. A smile settled upon his features, and he rests. "He has fought the good fight, he has finished his course, he has kept the faith."

2. Rev. Charles S. Macreading was born in Portsmouth, N. H., February 3, 1811; died in Plainfield, Ill., April 12, 1866, aged fifty-five years. In an early period of life, when left motherless and thrown out in the wide world, he was marked as a child of a watchful and gracious Providence. He was converted in Dorchester, Mass., under the labors of Rev. L. Johnson, when about seventeen years of age, licensed to preach in 1830, and admitted in the New England Conference in 1831, having for his first appointment Scituate and Marshfield. His subsequent appointments were Salem, Taunton, Newton Upper Falls, Providence, Edgartown, Warren, Lynn, Webster, Southbridge, Fitchburgh, Mendon, East Boston, Newton Upper Falls, and Cambridge. In 1856 he went West, and labored two years and a half in the Spring-street charge, Milwaukee, Wis. His other Western appointments were Belvidere, La Salle, Channahon, and Plainfield. At the time of his death he was supplying Lisbon. During the late war he was in the Union army, Chaplain of the 39th Illinois Infantry, and was in several of the fights on the Peninsula. His regiment honored and loved him, as officers and men testify. By nature he was warm, impulsive, and frank to a fault; a sincerely good man, loving the cause of Christ, striving for its promotion in all the variety of condition in which he was placed. One that knew him well says, "I have a vivid impression of the genuineness of his conversion, love of prayer, and all religious exercises; earnest, simple-hearted, and efficacious in a life of piety and Christian activity. He and I used frequently to pray together when we were lads at home, and his simple fervor, faith, and fidelity convinced me that he was a Christian."

He was an acceptable and talented minister, early engaged in the antislavery cause, and rejoiced in its final triumph. As a father he was affectionate and cheerful; fresh hopes were held up to his children each day, and his conversation in public and private was on the all-engrossing subject of the soul's salvation. Six weeks before he died he was brought near the gate of death by a severe attack of congestion of the lungs. He was fully prepared, nay, longed to be at rest; triumphant, exhorting all who came to see him to faithfulness in the cause of Christ. His constant exclamation, when rallying from severe prostration, was, "Christ, all in all." He died very suddenly, but peacefully entered his rest. Amid all the trials and labors of thirty-six years of active ministry, he was faithful and successful in the work of saving souls, and fell at last almost at his post, having a little previously closed an engagement at a protracted meeting with a Church several miles from home, in which many precious souls were saved. He has left a wife and several children; two are sons; the eldest is in the ministry, and connected with the Providence Conference.

"With songs let us follow his flight,
And mount with his spirit above;
Escaped to the mansions of light,
And lodged in the Eden of love."

1. Rev. C. C. DAVIS was born at New Springfield, Mahoning County, Ohio, October, A. D. 1833, and died near New Waterford, O., October 17, 1866, aged thirty-three years. He was converted in the twenty-first year of his age, while attending school at Mount Union. In 1856 he received license to preach as a local preacher by Rev. S. Wakefield, presiding elder. At the session of the Pittsburgh Conference, held at Blairsville, Pa., in the spring of 1860, he was admitted on trial, and ordained deacon by Bishop Janes, and appointed to Centerville with Rev. E. W. Brady. In 1861 he was reappointed to Centerville; in 1862–63 he was appointed to Hannibal. In 1864 he was ordained elder by Bishop Scott, and appointed to Stafford; in 1865 to Waynesburgh; in 1866 he took a superannuated relation on account of failing health. He suffered the most excruciating pain the greater part of the time during his sickness; yet he bore it with patience and calm resignation to the divine will. Being interrogated whether the same gospel he had preached to others supported him, he always replied it did. When realizing that death was near he seemed to have no fears at all, but said he was dying; also, "I am so happy!" and began to shout aloud, "Glory to God!" "Halleluiah for the victory through Christ!" He spoke of the struggling of nature, but expressed himself as though the mere act of dying was nothing when prepared for the conflict. The last articulate words that fell from his dying lips were, "Thanks be to God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ!"

2. Rev. JAMES C. TAYLOR was born in Baltimore, Md., April 9, 1798. When about eighteen years old he was awakened under the preaching of Rev. James B. Finley, and after earnestly seeking the forgiveness of sins about three weeks he obtained peace with God, and rejoiced in the assurance that he had "passed from death unto life." He joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in Oxford, Ohio, and was there licensed to exhort. He was received on trial by the Ohio Conference, in 1823, and appointed to Connersville

* Obituary not received.

Circuit, in Indiana. From the close of his first year till 1830 he successively labored on Knox, Black River, Brunswick, Wayne, and Muskingum Circuits in Ohio. He was ordained elder in 1827, and in 1831 was appointed to Charlestown Circuit, Va., where he remained two years, and was then transferred to the Pittsburgh Conference, in which he filled successively the following appointments: Barnesville, Summerfield, St. Clairsville, Smithfield, O., Cadiz, Smithfield, Martinsville, Richmond, Grave Creek, and Washington Circuits. In 1848 he was appointed as presiding elder to the Cambridge District, and at the end of four years he was again appointed to Barnesville Circuit, and in 1853 to Norwich. At the end of this year he was transferred to the Ohio Conference, where for six years he labored on Somerset, Hebron, Elizabethtown, and Johnstown Circuits, when he was again transferred to the Pittsburgh Conference, and was appointed, in 1860, to Washington Circuit. His next fields of labor were Norwich, Fairview, and Moorfield Circuits, and on the last named appointment his toils in the vineyard were ended. His record is a noble one. For forty-three consecutive conference years, with a heart strong and steadfast, as a "son in the Gospel" he labored in the Lord's vineyard, doing the work assigned him at those times and places which were judged most for His glory, being always efficient, and evincing zeal and assiduity truly exemplary. Prudent, unassuming, and cheerful in his intercourse with society; prompt and discreet in his business transactions, meeting all his obligations with inflexible integrity; kind, affectionate, and much revered in his family; ingenuous, ardent, and firm in his friendships; following "the things which make for peace;" plain, practical, scriptural, always earnest, and often touchingly pathetic in his sermons and exhortations, he was "acceptable to God and approved of men."

At the close of his last year, during which he received in his charge about three hundred probationers, he attended Conference as usual, but was there stricken down. For two days he was in his place in the Conference-room. On Sabbath his case became dangerous, and on Wednesday morning, March 14, 1866, the day after Conference adjourned, he was taken to his eternal rest. During most of his brief illness he was comatose, and therefore conversed but little; but when free from stupor and perfectly rational, he repeatedly expressed his firm trust in the Redeemer and his joyful hope of heaven. "I enjoy myself well. I shall see Him as he is. Though he slay me, yet will I trust in him," were some of the expressions which he uttered in his lucid intervals while passing away. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord!"

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

G. S. Gilbert, T. B. Chandler—2.

1. Rev. GAD SMITH GILBERT was born in New Haven, Conn., September 22, 1814. Here he died, August 1, 1866, and here he was buried.

Brother Gilbert was blessed with a godly ancestry. His parents, who still linger with us, are identified with the whole history of Methodism in this city. Their home was one that religion made happy, and here the Methodist preacher was always welcomed and loved to tarry. In such an atmosphere Brother Gilbert was reared. In his early youth he was the subject of converting grace. He soon felt his life's work was to be a minister of the blessed Gospel; and his parents, gratified in their highest wishes, educated him for such a calling. But he withdrew himself from his covenant with God, and on the completion of his studies turned to secular pursuits. After a few years he was reclaimed, renewed his consecration, and immediately gave himself up to the work of an itinerant. In 1842 he joined the New York Conference, and was stationed at New Milford, Conn, subsequently at Woodbury and Wolcottville. In 1846, on account of the sickness of his wife, he located and removed to Louisiana. While at the South he had charge of the Methodist Church at Opelousas, La. His wife dying he returned, and in 1848 he rejoined the New York East Conference, and was stationed at Green Point, L. I.; afterward at Southport, Conn.; First Place, Brooklyn, and Rye, N. Y. In 1855 he was agent for the Wesleyan University. In 1856 he was stationed at Westville, and then at Port Chester; Second Avenue, N. Y.; Sag Harbor, L. I.; De Kalb Avenue, Brooklyn. Last year he was reappointed to Southport, Conn., but by an arrangement he had made to provide a home for his parents, his residence was in New Haven.

Brother Gilbert was a man of a noble heart. His self-sacrificing devotion to the interests of others, his care of the orphans of a deceased minister, his affection and solicitude for his parents, were beautiful and wonderful in their intensity and bountifulness. As a friend, he was true, generous, and faithful. He possessed so genial and kind a humor that it laughed in his eye, lighted up his face, and good nature was contagious in his presence. He was a model of hospitality. In his ministry he excelled as a pastor. He drew into the Church, by the influence of his personal intercourse, many of the best families in his charge, who in no otherwise could have been attracted to our communion. He made himself acquainted with all his flock, and was unremitting in his attentions to the sick, poor, and afflicted. Few have established so many strong and personal friendships among his people. He was gifted in prayer. He knew how to hold intercourse with Heaven and draw blessings immediate upon his own heart. During the last year of his life and ministry he grew rapidly in spirituality and enjoyment. He was evidently ripening for heaven. His sickness was not long. The last week of his life he shared a peace and overflowing joy not to be described, but showed how fully happy religion can make a suffering man. A day or two before he entered into rest he asked his father to pray with him. During prayer the divine presence and glory filled the room. He could not restrain his emotions. He shouted and praised God aloud, and said, "This house is as that of Obed-Edom, where the ark of the Lord rested. It is the gate of heaven. Heaven has come down to earth; the angels are here. This disease is drawing my body down to earth, but Jesus is drawing my soul up to heaven. I shall soon be there." And just before his departure he said, with wonder in his tone and face, "Is this dying? It is felicity. O how precious Jesus is! Glory! halleluiah!" O is it not a noble thing to die, as does the Christian with his armor on!

2. Rev. THEOPHILUS BRADBURY CHANDLER died at East Woodstock, Conn., June 20, 1866, aged forty years.

Brother Chandler was born at East Woodstock, March 28, 1826. He was converted to God, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church at the age of fourteen, under the ministry of Ralph W. Allen. He graduated at the Wesleyan University in 1850, and the same year was received on trial in the New York East Conference. Providence allowed him but ten years of effective ministry, in which he served the following Churches two years respectively: Thomaston, Haddam, Westville, Naugatuck, and East Bridgeport. His life was one of many afflictions. While in college he was obliged to suspend study one year on account of severe illness. In February, 1853, while stationed at Haddam, Conn., he was called to mourn the loss of an amiable and useful wife by consumption, the same disease which has now laid him by her side. During the Conference years of 1856–58 he was obliged to retire from the regular work, but preached occasionally, and for some months supplied the Mission Chapel in Middletown, Conn. In the spring of 1859 he resumed the effective relation, and continued to labor successfully for nearly four years, when he was prostrated by hemorrhage of the lungs, and his effective work was ended. For three and a half years he was constantly declining, and many times has been brought to the borders of death by attacks of hemorrhage. He fought the disease with a perseverance and hopefulness truly remarkable, and thus prolonged the life he could not save. His nervous system had become exceedingly weakened by his protracted sufferings, and in his last days he endured more pain than often falls to the lot of those who die of consumption. His physical agony was often extreme; yet he was able to say in the most trying hour, "If it is the Lord's will that I be made perfect through sufferings, amen to it." He had the most perfect victory over the fear of death, and gave frequent testimony in his last days that he was ready to depart. Almost his last words were, when the waves of Jordan had well nigh gone over him, "I am going home, to die no more." His remains were taken to the city of Middletown and interred on the summit of Indian Hill Cemetery, where they await the trump of the archangel.

Brother Chandler possessed some rare excellences. His mind was quick, his perceptions fine. His taste and sense of the beautiful such that made him delight in nature, and the rarest and finest expressions of poetic literature, and a retentive memory enriched his mind with a variety of select and useful passages. Constitutionally sportive, kind-hearted, and social, he was eminently companionable, and a certain playfulness that never offended, shed around him a bland and pleasant influence. As a preacher he was earnest, glowing, pathetic, but practical and pungent, and had he enjoyed strength and health would have made one of our most popular ministers. He was distinguished as a pastor by wise adroitness and innocent art to ensnare many into the path of life; and his own sufferings, together with his natural sympathy, peculiarly qualified him to be a son of consolation to the afflicted. His memory, in all the fields of his ministry, is to-day as precious ointment poured forth. His toils and sufferings are ended in eternal rest and joy.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

Reuben H. Bloomer, T. E. Fero, W. D. Telford, J. W. Breakey*—4.

1. REV. REUBEN H. BLOOMER was born in Newburgh, Orange County, N. Y., December 6, 1806, and died near the place of his birth June 1, 1866. He was converted to God in the twenty-third year of his age, under the ministry of Rev. Stephen L. Stillman. After his conversion he felt an ardent desire to do good, and soon became an active laborer in the Church. He also engaged in school teaching, in which employment he spent several years, at the same time pursuing a course of reading preparatory to the work of the ministry. In 1834 he was licensed to preach, and was soon after employed by Rev. M. Richardson, presiding elder of Newburgh District, on Sullivan Circuit. In 1835 he was received on trial by the New York Conference, and in due time graduated to deacon's and elder's orders. He labored with acceptance and success on Jefferson, Pottsville, Kortright, Franklin, Jefferson, Cattskill, Durham, Coeymans, and Saugerties charges. In 1847 his health failed, and in 1848 he received from the conference a supernumerary relation, and was returned first to North Newburgh, then to Rossville, and then to Galeville, still continuing to preach as he was able, and doing very effective work, especially at Galeville, where he labored hard to organize a society and build a church. Just as the work was completed and a revival of religion commenced his health utterly failed, and he was compelled, though reluctantly, to leave the work he loved so well for others to prosecute. From 1857 to 1866 he was superannuated. In September, 1856, he became connected with the press, as editor and proprietor of the Newburgh Times, devoted especially to the temperance cause, and continued his connection with it until his death. In his hands the paper has been a success. He was a man of great energy of character, and, although an invalid, preferred to labor beyond his ability rather than be dependent for support upon the funds of the conference. In whatever station Providence placed him he endeavored to be content and to do good to the full extent of his ability. He was ardently attached to the doctrine and discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and deeply interested in everything that related to her welfare. The ministers appointed to North Newburgh found him to be a safe counselor and a sympathizing friend, and the official members could rely upon his aid in their efforts to promote the interests of the Church. He was a warm friend of the Sabbath-school. He loved the means of grace and faithfully attended them. He was a man of strong and decided convictions, but honorable and upright. As a friend he was genial and faithful. As a husband and father he was kind and affectionate. As a Christian he was uniformly humble, earnest, and devout—a lover of peace, and a peace maker. As a preacher he was sound in theology, clear and forcible in his arguments, apt in his illustrations, simple in his manner, and pathetic in spirit, a workman approved of God, and instrumental in winning many souls to Christ. But he has left us. He rests from his labors and sufferings. He was afflicted with the asthma for many years, and was cut down by paralysis as in a moment. We have no direct dying testimony, and we need none, for a life devoted to God and the welfare of his fellow-men affords the best assurance that he was ready to meet the last enemy. He died as calmly as the summer sun sunk to rest, and at the hour of its setting.

* Obituary not received.

2. Rev. Thomas E. Fero was born in Broome, Schoharie County, N. Y., November 20, 1826, and died at Mount Kisko, N. Y., September 2, 1866.

In December, 1853, he was found, a tearful penitent, at the foot of the cross, and on Christmas eve his struggling soul found rest. He immediately united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, and soon after received license to preach. In 1855 he joined the New York Conference, and entered zealously upon his chosen work. He abandoned a pleasant home, and dashed aside his brightest earthly prospects for the sake of Jesus and the love of souls. In seven different appointments he toiled for the Master, and through the ever-varying scenes of his ministry evinced an unfaltering devotion to Zion. He loved his work, and performed it as one expecting to give an account of his stewardship. His ministry was brief, but successful, and the crown upon his brow is not starless. As a man he was affable in spirit, loyal to truth, and possessed those genial and companionable qualities that sweetly charm the social heart. As a pastor he was laborious and diligent, reclaiming the wandering, encouraging the faltering, and leading the desponding soul to a loftier faith in God. As a preacher he was acceptable and useful. He carefully studied and clearly expounded the word of truth, and closely applied it to the conscience of his auditors. His gentle, pleasing tones of voice; his calm, cheerful countenance; his generous, sympathetic nature and winning spirit, all conspired to increase his pulpit power, and secure respect and love.

In November, 1865, consumption laid its wan hand upon him, and in less than one fleeting year triumphed over all medical skill, and bore him to the tomb. Animated by a constant hopefulness of spirit, he repelled the idea of permanent disability, and cherished the fond hope of rendering the Church more useful service in the future. He ardently coveted life that he might the more successfully lead men to the cross and to heaven. Bravely did he battle with the destroyer, and yielded only when the uselessness of further resistance flashed upon his mind. Then, no longer inspired by the hope of recovery, he rapidly declined, and soon the billows broke over him and gently bore him to the sunny banks of heaven. The closing scene was peaceful and triumphant. His weeping family were summoned around him, and at his request sang his favorite hymn:

"My latest sun is sinking fast,
My race is nearly run;
My greatest trials now are past,
My triumph is begun."

Then, amid those sweet, soothing strains, bidding his loved ones farewell, his dying eye seemed to catch a glimpse of angelic forms, and exclaiming, "The angels welcome me home!" he sank away, and expired without a struggle.

3. Rev. Walter D. Telford was born January 15, 1830, and departed this life March 30, 1867.

In October, 1857, he heard a sermon preached by Brother William Hall, from the text, "Friend, how camest thou in hither, not having a wedding garment?" At its close he remarked, "Did you ever hear such a sermon? It went all through me; it was all applicable to me." Being convinced of his need of salvation he tarried to enjoy the class-meeting, in which he spoke of his sinful state, and asked for an interest in the prayers of the children of God. His next meeting with God's people was in the house of prayer. Here he kneeled as a humble penitent before the throne of grace. While bowed down in body and in spirit, the Holy Ghost inspired him to pray. He was obedient; he prayed, he believed, and trusting Christ as his Saviour, he found peace for his troubled heart. His conversion was clear, marked, and genuine. He now learned what he never knew or felt before, that Jesus was a Saviour for all who would believe on his name. In the strength of his new Master he began the Christian life. He had but one great object before him, that was, to grow in grace and in the knowledge of the truth, that he might enjoy the favor of God on earth, and his glorious presence forever in heaven. With such a purpose he began earnestly to contend for the faith. Many were his trials and conflicts with the enemy, but through the grace of God he came off more than conqueror. Through them, and by the grace he received, he was being prepared for the work of the Christian ministry, to which he was called by the Holy Spirit. In 1863 he was received as a probationer in the New York Conference, and was appointed the same year to the North Franklin Circuit. On this charge he labored hard, and with great acceptability. He gave full proofs of his ministry. In 1865 he was sent to the Margarettville Circuit. He began his labor with great zeal, and with untiring energy and devotion he labored to build up the Church of Christ, and to lead sinners to the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world. Nor were his labors in vain. He saw the Church prospering and strengthened by the grace of God under his unwearied toil. On this circuit, while engaged in his work, he was stricken down by disease, which from its beginning assumed a malignant and dangerous character. Fully conscious of his danger, he expressed a willingness to depart and be with Christ, which was far better. The power of grace in a sick and dying hour he fully realized. His death was not only peaceful, but triumphant. Conversing with his wife about his change, he asked, "Mary, why do you weep? How inconsistent to do so! If I were well you would rejoice. Now I am going home to die no more; how inconsistent to weep!" While friends were waiting round ministering to his wants, and listening to his soul-stirring utterances, he raised his eyes toward heaven, and lifting his feeble hand he waved it three times in token of triumph, shouting as he waved it, "Victory! victory! eternal victory!" emphasizing eternal victory as only soldiers of Jesus Christ, on the banks of the river enjoying the fruits of victory, could give it emphasis. In this holy triumph he passed away. His last sermon in the church was preached from the text: "And if I be lifted up from the earth I will draw all men unto me." It will be remembered, for it was delivered in power. God was in it. The Sabbath before his death was his last quarterly meeting. He feared that he might not live to see it. He wished once more to commemorate the feast of dying love with his brethren. He lived to enjoy it, and to him it was a feast of fat things. His conference sermon, in course of preparation, was founded on the text, "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?" It may be called his masterpiece, though unfinished.

Brother Telford as a man was courteous, kind, and companionable, a true friend, always ready to lend a helping hand. As a Christian he was faithful and honest, living only to serve the Lord Jesus Christ. As a minister he was earnest, devoted, and untiring in his work. He lived for the cause of Jesus. "He died at his post." He has gone. His spirit rests with God. His voice is now engaged in chanting the anthem of the skies in chorus with that innumerable throng which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

Daniel Webb, Heman Perry, O. N. Brooks,* William S. Simmons, Abel Alton—5.

1. Rev. DANIEL WEBB was born in Canterbury, Conn., April 13, 1778, during one of the darkest and gloomiest periods of the American Revolution. He was brought to God through the instrumentality of a pious young woman, who called his attention to the subject of personal religion, in August, 1797, and immediately began to exhort his neighbors to repentance. A great revival of religion broke out in New England this year. In 1799 it appeared in great power in Kentucky and Tennessee, and throughout the West; then in Georgia and the Carolinas, and finally throughout the United States and the Canadas, and lasted till 1814, when the agitations and political troubles arising out of the last war with Great Britain brought it to a close. This was the formative period of the American Churches, as they now are. The Methodist Episcopal Church had been nearly quadrupled in this period, while the missionary and all similar societies immediately arose out of it, mostly between 1810 and 1825. Daniel Webb was a part of this great work of God, and immediately entered it with zeal and success, and prosecuted it with untiring industry for almost seventy years. When he entered upon the work the denomination was in the thirty-first year of its existence, and with a membership of 58,668. When he fell at his post it had completed its grand Centenary year, with an increase of 100,000 members, making, after deducting all her heavy losses, upward of 1,000,000, and with Centenary offerings to the amount of $5,000,000, and with flourishing missions in almost all parts of the world. Rarely has one man lived through such eventful and important periods of this world's history, and shared so largely in them, as this honored servant of God.

After the manner of those times, soon after his conversion, Mr. Webb traveled the large New London Circuit with the Rev. John Nichols, exhorting at the close of Mr. Nichols's sermons. His first attempt at preaching was in the town of Hebron, from Rev. xxii, 9: "Worship God." From the New London he passed to the Middletown Circuit, which he traveled in like manner with that famous man of God, the Rev. Shadrach Bostwick, one of the pioneers of New England Methodism. With this practical training of but one year, and when but twenty years of age, at the session of the New England Conference held at Granville, Mass.—with Epaphras Kibby, Truman Bishop, Asa Heath, Billy Hibbard, and the eccentric Lorenzo Dow—he was admitted to the toils and successes of the traveling connection as a probationer. We doubt if at any session of a conference held in New England an equal number of probationers have attained to so extreme an age on the average, contributed so largely to the successes and triumphs of the denomination, and attained to such historic celebrity as this class of 1798. From this memorable conference, Mr. Webb was appointed to the Granville Circuit with the Rev. Ezekiel Canfield. This primitive circuit then embraced all the southwest of Massachusetts, from the Connecticut River to the state line, and as high up as Pittsfield, territory now embraced in the New England, the New York, and the Troy Conferences. It was two hundred miles in extent, and at every round the preacher had to cross the Green Mountains twice. In 1799 Mr. Webb was stationed on Martha's Vineyard, where Joshua Hall and Joseph Snelling had already broken ground; but, a thing very common in those days, before he could reach his appointed field of labor he was transferred to Sandwich, a small circuit with but two Sabbath appointments, Sandwich town and Monument. At the end of three months' service on this circuit he was removed to Hawke, New Hampshire, where he spent the remainder of the year. At the conference held in Lynn, July, 1800, he was admitted to full connection, and was ordained deacon by Bishop Whatcoat. From this conference he was appointed to Norridgewock, Me., alone, then embracing the upper settlements of the Kennebec, upon the northern borders of civilization. Upon receiving this appointment, being yet a young man of but twenty-two, and as it took him further from his friends than he had ever before been, he was overwhelmed with feelings of sadness and despondency, so that, he says, "but for the disgrace of the thing, he should have preferred to have gone to the state prison." But these feelings, as is often the case, were but the precursors of glorious successes and happy times, which attended him through that year. He had souls for his hire, and was satisfied. In 1801–2 he was appointed to the Merrimac Circuit, extending along the northern banks of the river of that name, from Salisbury, Mass., to Salem, N. H. In 1803 he was on the Marblehead Station. In 1804 Mr. Webb was again stationed in Hawke, N. H., and its vicinity. In 1805 the conference was again held in Lynn, and such were the wonderful showers of divine grace poured upon it, and the great interest attending it, that, though the church was the largest which we then owned in New England, it could not accommodate the immense crowds which thronged it, and the conference was obliged to hold its religious services in an adjoining grove. The people poured in from Salem and the surrounding towns to behold this marvelous display of the divine power, and to share in the work. Among those brought to God at this time was the Rev. John Lindsay, a native of Lynn. At this session, and in the midst of this great religious awakening, Mr. Webb was appointed to Lynn, where he was also continued the following year, beloved, respected, and useful. In 1807 he was stationed in Boston with the Rev. George Pickering. The Revs. Peter Jayne and Samuel Merwin, both "giants in those days," had preceded them; and the Bromfield-street Church, then the largest and best in New England, had been built the previous year. The work of God soon broke out; and among about one hundred brought into the Church that year, were the Rev. T. C. Peirce and the Rev. Thomas W. Tucker. Mr. Webb was continued in Boston in 1808, with Martin Ruter as his colleague. In 1809–10 he was stationed in Newport, R. I. The church in this place had been built in 1807, the first Methodist church in the world furnished with a tower and bell, and which is yet standing. The Church, in its infancy, was yet small; but the congregation was large, wealthy, and respectable, embracing many of the aristocracy of this ancient insular town. In 1811 he was made supernumerary, and was returned to Newport for the third year, where he had made a host of warm and admiring friends. In 1812 he was again stationed in Lynn, after an absence of but five years, with the Rev. Joshua Soule as his colleague. This year the large church on the Common, yet standing, was built. In 1813 he was continued in Lynn, as preacher in charge, with the Rev. E. Hedding as his colleague. In 1814, with a large and growing family upon his hands, and in consequence of the widespread distress occasioned by our last war with Great Britain, and which operated so disastrously upon many, he was compelled to succumb to the general pressure, and located. He immediately removed back to Newport, and opened a school, and for nine years performed the responsible duties of both schoolmaster and preacher in charge of this Church, with equal usefulness and acceptability. This was before the present efficient system of free schools was established in Rhode Island; and he was liberally patronized, some of the most respectable families of the town placing their children under his tuition. In 1823, at the session of the New England Conference, held in Providence, he was readmitted, and appointed to Newport for two more years, making fourteen in all. In 1825 he was stationed in Providence; in 1826 in Springfield, Mass.; and in 1827 he was in Boston, as publisher of "Zion's Herald," which was established four years before. In 1828–29 he was stationed at Nantucket, then one of the largest, wealthiest, and most important of our Churches in New England. In 1830 he was at Fall River, and in charge also of the Church at Little Compton, sixteen miles distant. In 1831–32 he was at Elm-street, New Bedford. From 1833 to 1836 he was presiding elder of the New Bedford District. This new district included the extreme southeast section of the conference, and extended all along the shore, from Newport to the end of Cape Cod, and embraced several important fields of labor which he had at various times occupied since 1799. Under his charge, on this important district, were such men as Asa Kent, Enoch Mudge, Daniel Fillmore, T. C. Peirce, and Ephraim Wiley, old and tried friends, with some of whom he had been associated in gospel labors for thirty years, who knew him, understood him, and appreciated him. These were halcyon and happy days. In 1837 he was succeeded on the New Bedford District by Rev. Frederick Upham, and was stationed in the city of New London. Upon the division of the conference in 1840 he was retained in the New England, and was stationed on the Waltham and Watertown mission. In 1841, for the first time, after an efficient service of forty-two consecutive years, he was made superannuate; and in 1843 he was transferred to the Providence Conference, in which he spent the remainder of his long and eventful life, and was stationed in Little Compton, a Church which he had the honor of planting twenty-five years before. In 1856 he was stationed in Barnstable, where, amid an intelligent and highly cultured community, who loved, respected, and revered him, by various arrangements he was continued for six years, in accordance with the wishes of this people, and where he finally died. In 1862 his appointment was merely nominal; and in 1863 he superannuated, after an efficient service in the work of the gospel ministry, with but a single interruption, of sixty-five years, perhaps the only case on record in all the annals of Methodism. For many years, even, he bore the enviable distinction of being the oldest efficient Methodist preacher in the world. He was a member of the first delegated General Conference of 1812, of that of 1832, and 1836. And again, when he was in his seventy-fifth year, his brethren elected him to represent them in that of 1852, which met in the Bromfield-street Church, Boston, where he had been pastor forty-five years before. He was twice married; having by his first wife eleven children, four of whom only survive him, as does also his second wife.

As will be seen from the above, Mr. Webb was associated with the leading men of the denomination, and especially with those of New England, for seventy years; and his honored and venerable name is connected with the most of its leading events. He was three years the senior of Bishop Soule; was one year before him in the itinerancy; was intimately associated with him during the seventeen years of the bishop's labors in New England, until he was transferred, to take charge of the Book Concern in New York, in 1816. From that time their lives were divergent for more than half a century more of earthly pilgrimage, when the bishop, being "old and full of days," went to his rest, from his residence in Nashville, March 6, 1867, aged eighty-five years. Mr. Webb survived him but thirteen days; he dying on Tuesday, March 19, at Barnstable, aged eighty-eight years, eleven months, and six days, and in the sixty-ninth of his useful and efficient ministry. His end, like his protracted life, was holy and peaceful. His funeral was attended from the County-street Church, New Bedford, where, in the presence of his children, of his former flock in that city, and of a concourse of his friends, his old friend and co-laborer, Dr. Upham, preached an appropriate funeral sermon. At the session of the Providence Conference, which met at the Mathewson-street Church in that city a few days later, his brethren held a memorial service in remembrance of him and of five others who had died during the year; when one of their number gave an account of his life and labors, and a short portraiture of his pious and excellent character. Subsequently in the session a motion was made that a memorial window, in the large metropolitan church now in the course of erection in the city of Washington, should be in honor of him, as the man who had remained longer at his post, and more faithfully too, than any other man in the whole history of Methodism. Subscriptions were made for this object on the spot, and it is fervently hoped that it may be consummated, "for the memory of the just is blessed."

2. Rev. Heman Perry, a superannuate of the Providence Conference, has been for many years in the furnace, a sufferer from a broken constitution, induced by twenty years' labor in the vineyard of our Lord Jesus Christ as an itinerant minister. He was born in Sandwich, Mass., February 28, 1794, and died February 14, 1867, in the seventy-fourth year of his age. His parents were pious people, and he early became the subject of deep religious impressions, resulting in his conversion in 1807, in a class-meeting in his father's house. Very soon after this he felt the strivings of God's Spirit in relation to engaging in the work of the ministry. In June, 1821, having previously received license as a local preacher, he was received on trial in the New England Conference, and appointed to Wellfleet Circuit with Rev. Edward Hyde. With varied success he continued in the work till 1841, when increasing infirmities compelled him to take a superannuated relation. He removed his family to

Monument, where he resided twenty-five years, till God called him home. Often, in great bodily weakness, was he found "standing in the gap" to supply the lack of service in a pulpit that must otherwise have been vacant. All who knew him bear testimony to his godly life and unstained reputation. As his end drew near he remarked that he had peace—not the joy he anticipated. Subsequently, on being asked, "Is all right, Father Perry?" he answered, speaking slowly, "I can discover nothing wrong." "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright; for the end of that man is peace."

3. Rev. William S. Simmons was born in Bristol, R. I., September 24, 1813, and converted, under the labors of Rev. Isaac Bonney, at the age of sixteen. Having been a member of the Church a number of years, acquiring an education and improving his gifts, he was licensed as a local preacher, and took an appointment at Pawtucket, R. I., under Rev. D. Kilburn, September, 1837, where he remained one year. From Pawtucket he went to North Uxbridge. Having remained there one year, he joined the New England Conference on trial, at Lynn, June, 1839, and was received into full connection, and ordained deacon at the conference in Providence, June 13, 1841, and was ordained elder at Warren, June 11, 1843. He received each ordination from Bishop Hedding. From the Lynn Conference he was returned to Uxbridge for a second year. His subsequent appointments were as follows: 1840, Somerset; 1841, West Point; 1842–44, Mystic Bridge; 1844–46, East Haddam; 1846–48, Hazardville; 1848–49, Eastford; 1849–51, Windsorville; 1851–53, Rockville; 1853–55, Stafford Springs; 1855–57, Danielsonville; 1857–59, Fisherville; 1859–61, East Glastenbury; 1861–63, Quarryville; 1863–64, East Woodstock; 1864 to January 4, 1867, Hopeville, where he closed his labors after some eight weeks of great suffering. In 1844 Brother Simmons was married to Miss Welthea Grant who with an only son now mourn his loss.

He was also faithful in his ministrations to sparsely populated districts, going out evenings, preaching in school-houses or private dwellings. It was stated on the day of his funeral that he had preached in all the school-houses in the vicinity of Hopeville. A man of one work, and faithful in the performance of his duty, as might be expected, he was a useful minister. On the list we find five appointments where gracious revivals attended his labors. Others might be ascertained, as these are since 1844, which the widow recollects since her sharing with him the pleasures and toils of the itinerant life. He was a faithful minister, a good pastor, and died in great peace with God, and with a glorious hope of a blissful immortality.

4. Rev. Abel Alton was born in Waterford, Vt., June 16, 1803, and died in Marion, Mass., March 11, 1867. He commenced a life of prayer at ten years of age, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church eight years afterward. He entered upon his ministerial labors in 1827, joined the New England Conference in 1828, and was immediately transferred to Maine. It was his lot to possess a strong constitution, which enabled him to bear such wasting toils and great privations as but few could have endured. He was stationed in Waterford, (Maine,) Livermore, Gray, Calais, Castine, Matamancook and Holton Mission, Hampden, Fryeburgh, Moosehead Lake Mission, Winthrop, Readfield, Solon, Industry, Anson, Exeter, Dexter, Solon again, Anson again, Mercer, Strong, Richmond, and Waterford again, which was his last appointment in the Maine Conference.

His subsequent labors were in the Providence Conference, where he filled the following stations: East Harwich, Eastham, East Falmouth, West Sandwich, North Easton, Chilmark, and East Wareham and Marion, where he had seen his new church completed and dedicated, and in it he had for one Sabbath proclaimed the blessed gospel. It was to be his last day of labor. It was the 3d of March. He conducted four services, one of which was a funeral which required considerable travel. On Monday of the following week he entered into rest.

Near the close of his brief illness his sufferings from thirst were intense, in the midst of which he exclaimed, "I shall soon drink of the water of the river of life!" All through the valley of the shadow of death, as well as through his long and useful life, the divine staff and rod were his support. As a preacher he was clear, methodical, instructive, earnest. As a pastor he was most laborious and faithful. Doing the work of an evangelist, he had full proof of his ministry in many souls converted to the faith of the gospel. It is believed that in every appointment he was permitted to lead some to Christ. In the family relation he was truly honored and beloved as a husband and father, for he was worthy. Many of the Churches which he served are now in a condition to pay their balance of indebtedness, so long outstanding, by remembering the widow and children of him who has been called so suddenly from them.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

D. Worrell.

Rev. DAVISON WORRELL was born in Eastchurch, England, March, 1808, and died in Factoryville, Pa., August 23, 1866. He gave his heart to the Lord in 1833, and in a short time became a class-leader and a local preacher. In these relations he served the Church with efficiency and acceptability until he emigrated to this country, some sixteen years since. He settled in Rome, Bradford county, Pa., and commenced farming; but he was not allowed long to cultivate the soil. In his public labors he manifested so much zeal and ability that he was employed the next year as junior preacher on Orwell circuit. In 1853 he was admitted on trial in the Wyoming Annual Conference, and, in due time, into full connection. He was appointed successively to Speedsville, Abington, Nicholson, Gibson, Skinner's Eddy, Springville, and Nicholson the second term. He labored two years on each of these charges, with the exception of Springville. In each of these fields he saw the pleasure of the Lord prosper in his hands. He was ever cheerful and happy in his work, and God blessed his labors abundantly. He was a good man, and full of faith and of the Holy Ghost. His conversion was evangelical, and his piety of the true type: uniform, consistent, and genial; never light and trifling, but always cheerful and pleasant. Amid storm and sunshine he was strong in faith, giving glory to God. In a recent communication from his bereaved widow, she informs us that while crossing the ocean they encountered heavy and continued storms, so that they lost all use of the helm, and nearly all expected to go down to the bottom of the sea. After the storm abated, the captain came to Brother Worrell, and said, "Sir, you have saved our ship and us from a watery grave." Brother Worrell replied, "I never felt that our ship would be lost; I have strong faith in the prayers of the people offered for our safe arrival. We are only seeing some of the majesty of God." He was an interesting and instructive preacher. His cheerfulness and ardent piety made him a pleasant and profitable companion. His health began to fail soon after the session of conference in April last, but he continued to labor on until he ceased at once to work and live. He died at his post with his armor on. Brother Worrell was an earnest Methodist, but no bigot. He loved other Christian Churches and ministers, and shared largely in return their confidence and esteem. During his sickness, Rev. Mr. Cole, of the Baptist Church, visited him, when they embraced each other, and wept like children. It cost him a struggle to give up his wife and four active boys: but grace triumphed, and he called them to his bedside, and gave them advice and his parting blessing, which will never be forgotten. But he is gone. Peace to his memory. The Church and Wyoming Conference have lost a devoted and successful minister, his wife an affectionate husband, and his children a kind and tender father. May the blessing of Him who has promised to be a father to the fatherless and the widow's God come upon the bereaved and heart-stricken family!

Quest. 12. Who have Died this year?

H. W. Ransom, E. Goss, J. Quinlan—4.

1. Rev. Halsey W. Ransom, M. D., died of congestion of the lungs, after nine days' illness, Tuesday, March 26, 1867, at Dorset, Vt., aged fifty-six. He was born in Argyle, Washington County, N. Y. Enjoying no special advantages for education beyond the common schools of that locality, it is remembered of him to his advantage by early friends that he declined the evil courses and the groveling pastimes of the average young men of his section, at a period when many were addicted to drunkenness and kindred vices, and gave his leisure to study. A young man, he taught school winters, and was a Hudson River boatman summers. When and where he commenced the study of medicine we have no data at hand to say. It is certain that he was duly graduated into the profession of medicine, and became a skillful and successful practitioner. While pursuing this profession he was converted to God, and from the work of healing the body, heard and obeyed the call of Heaven to the cure of souls. It is understood by us that for some years Brother Ransom was a member of the Michigan Conference. He joined the Troy Conference in 1848, and labored with us nineteen years, serving the following appointments: Orwell, Vt., Rensselaerville, N. Y., Lansingburgh, State-street, Troy, Plattsburgh, Fort Edward, Glen's Falls, Cheshire, and South Adams and Bennington. He was serving the Dorset Church, having left his home in Bennington to preach for them, when he was overtaken by the disease which laid him low.

Brother Ransom has been heard often to refer in language of grateful joy to the rare happiness and success of his ministry at Lansingburgh. There and elsewhere his memorial lives in grateful hearts by him brought to Christ. He was an able, energetic, and popular preacher, his favorite manner being to rush impetuously upon his spiritual antagonist. His charges upon any obstinate Malakoff of error were sometimes almost appalling for vehemence. So, too, in prayer; he took the kingdom of heaven by violence. He has been heard to struggle with God as for his life, and with an importunity that would not be denied; his mouth full of swift arguments, which he hurled forth almost fiercely in the consuming zeal of his spirit. His ardent temperament, and his keenly sensitive nature, made him intensely love his personal friends, and enjoy their society most keenly; and he knew how to charm them with the rare magnetism of his speech and look. This same sensitive and impetuous nature, so vitalizing his speech and so intensifying his social and Christian delights, became inevitably, when his constitution was broken and his nerves unstrung by disease, the source of acute suffering to himself, and was the occasion, doubtless, of whatever embarrassments he experienced in the later years of his work. Other men may have been more symmetrical in their character, and more methodical in their activities; but those who knew him best will agree that he was a fearless and able minister of Jesus Christ, and many can attest that he was at times a prince, indeed, with power to prevail with God and man. Though suffering severely during his illness, he felt the loving presence of his Saviour, and his death was a glorious triumph. Being asked by his wife if the Gospel which he preached to others sustained him, he replied, "O yes! blessed Saviour, precious Jesus! Tell Ida and Mary (his daughters) I die in the arms of Jesus." To his friends who called he spoke personally, beseeching them with loving and melting entreaties to love that Saviour so precious to him, and who had given him such a complete victory. His dying words were an exclamation of rapt delight, "I see a city!" His dimming eye caught ravishing glimpses of the towers and minarets of the New Jerusalem, and thus his spirit went to God.

2. Rev. Ephraim Goss died at Troy, N. Y., November 6, 1867, aged seventy-two years. He was born April 15, 1794, at Amherst, N. H. In 1818 he removed to Lansingburgh, N. Y. Here, in 1820, through the agency of a pious mother, a member of the Congregational Church, who still survives him at the advanced age of ninety-seven years, he gave his heart to the Lord, and united with the Presbyterian Church. However, on examining more fully and carefully her Confession of Faith, he failed to make it harmonize with his views of the doctrines of the Bible, and hence he withdrew from her and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1826. He received license to preach in 1827, and was admitted into the New York Conference in 1829, and was appointed to Half Moon Circuit, where he remained two years. His subsequent appointments were: Northampton, in 1831; Chazy, 1832; Plattsburgh, 1833; Saratoga Circuit, 1834–35; Garrettson Station, Albany, 1836–37; Schenectady, 1838–39; Saratoga Springs, which was then a mission, 1840–41; presiding elder of Albany District, 1842–45; Saratoga District, 1846–49; Chatham Circuit, 1850; Congress-street, Troy, 1851–52; Agent of Troy Conference Tract Society, 1853–54; City Missionary, Albany, 1855; Mount Zion, Albany, 1856; Free Central, 1857; Agent of Tract Society, 1858; Third-street, Troy, 1859–60; Free Central, 1861–62. In 1863 he was returned superannuate; in 1864 he was again effective, and stationed at Castleton, N. Y.; in 1865–66 he appears as a superannuate, though he supplied Valley Falls most of the time till his death. His long services in so many important appointments show the estimation in which he was held by his brethren. He was not a man of many words, though he was genial and social, as well as a kind companion. He ever maintained a proper ministerial dignity, equally removed from stiffness and levity. He was careful in his administration, and always strove to let contention alone before it was meddled with. He was modest, never trumpeting his own fame, or complaining that he was not appreciated. He was punctual in his attendance upon his appointments, and I do not recollect an instance when he failed to be present in the Conference room at the opening religious services of each day, and he often led them. He was industrious and faithful as a pastor, visiting the poor as well as the rich. He was an excellent singer, having bestowed much time in early life in cultivating this art. This gave him great power in social meetings, which he always conducted so as to make them profitable and edifying. In all his relations to his people he was friendly and highly esteemed. He was instrumental in leading hundreds to the foot of the cross. He loved his work. He studied and labored and prayed till the last, and then fell at his post. As a preacher, he was not popular in the sensational, though he was in the useful sense. He was animated, lively, and often eloquent. He stated his doctrines clearly, and defended them well, though not a polemical, but rather a practical preacher. He bestowed much labor and thought upon his sermons to the very last. His great object was to build up the Church and save sinners. His exhortations, or application of his discourse to his congregation, were often peculiarly appropriate and impressive. He was not faultless, for he was human; but he has left a record so pure and consistent as to be well worthy the imitation of his juniors. May we follow him, as he followed Christ.

3. Rev. James Quinlan was born at Stratford, Fairfield County, Conn., February 15, 1793, and died at Northville, Fulton County, N. Y., August 19, 1866, aged seventy-three years. He was a son of Thomas Quinlan, M. D., who came from Ireland to this country a little time previous to the Revolutionary war. His boyhood and youth were passed in Duchess and Ulster Counties, N. Y. His earliest serious religious impressions were received while attending the first camp-meeting held on the land of Rev. Freeborn Garrettson when about twelve years old, but these were soon dissipated. At nineteen years of age, after attending a camp-meeting at Newburgh, and while his aged father was offering evening prayer, he received the great blessing of pardon. He was licensed to exhort by D. Ostrander, presiding elder, in 1815, and to preach as a local preacher by P. P. Sandford, presiding elder, in 1816. He was received into the New York Conference on trial in the spring of 1816, and was sent to Sharon Circuit, which included a large part of the counties of Schoharie, Otsego, and Delaware, having thirty-one appointments, and requiring three hundred miles travel to fill them. In 1819 he traveled Sullivan Circuit; 1820, Delaware Circuit; 1821–22, Sharon Circuit; 1823, he was sent to St. Albans Circuit, in the north part of Vermont. This obliged him to move three hundred and forty miles by land, with a feeble wife and two children, the eldest not two years old, and the younger less than three months. His journey occupied eight days. In 1824–25, Chazy Circuit, which then included Plattsburgh; 1826, he took the supernumerary relation, that he might continue his ministry in Plattsburgh, where his services were greatly desired, and where more than four hundred dollars had been subscribed for his support. This probably was about double the amount he had hitherto received for any one year's services. He was not only pastor at Plattsburgh Village this year, but also presiding elder of Plattsburgh District. At the end of the conference year his relation was changed to effective, and in 1827–28 he traveled St. Albans Circuit; 1829–30, Whitehall Circuit; 1831–32, he labored on Half Moon. Here he held his first protracted meeting. By the blessing of God, about one hundred souls were converted. The meeting was held at Jamesville, and so great was the interest excited that two tents were erected on the green near the church. Several persons of great worth and of much standing in the place were converted to God, as ——— ———, Esq., deceased, and Hon. R. R. Kennady, who still lives to bless the Church and world. In 1833 he was on the Johnstown Circuit; 1834–35, Watervliet Circuit; 1836–37, Stillwater Circuit; 1838–39, Saratoga Springs; 1840–41, Rensselaerville; 1842–43, Old North Hampton Circuit; 1844–45, Fort Ann Circuit; 1846–47, stationed at Gloversville; 1848, Johnstown; 1849, Waterford; 1850, Cambridge; 1851, Schuylerville; 1852, Raymertown; 1853, Petersburgh Circuit.

At the conference in 1854 the failing health and strength of Brother Quinlan and his wife compelled him to superannuate. He retired to Northville, Fulton County, N. Y., where, loved and cared for by his children, and cherished and venerated by the kind and good people of all that region, he spent the last twelve years of his life. Thirty-five consecutive years were consecrated to the itinerant ministry. He filled many important appointments to the great profit of the Church, and was instrumental in saving many souls. In the meridian of his ministry he was truly eloquent and very popular. His personal appearance was prepossessing. His face, forehead, dark, keen eye, indicated intelligence and firmness. His voice was clear, of fine tone and great compass. He had a rich and well-cultivated imagination, good and strong reasoning powers, and a vigorous, logical mind. He explained and enforced the doctrines, duties, and promises of the Gospel of the Son of God with surprising pathos and power. His disposition was very mild and eminently peaceful. He was a son of peace. In his intercourse he was gentlemanly and courteous, in conversation lively and cheerful. His piety was deep and earnest. His Christian experience was clear and fervid, and in the latter part of his effective ministry deepened into a blessed assurance of full salvation. He did not lose his influence and acceptability among the people when his effective labors closed. But he was an apostle, a patriarch to all the people among whom he spent the last twelve years of his ripe Christian life.

Brother Quinlan had three children, a son and two daughters. After the decease of his long infirm and deeply-afflicted wife, he was welcomed to a home in the family of his eldest daughter, Mrs. Van Arnam, of Northville. Her assiduous attention and filial tenderness greatly alleviated the weakness of his declining years, and the sufferings of slowly wasting disease. Although he endured much pain, and had many sleepless nights, he was fully sustained by the grace of God. He devoted much of his time to reading the Scriptures, and also to writing both in prose and poetry, on the sacred themes of the Gospel until near the time of his death. As that event drew near his soul became more than usually triumphant. Only two days before his death he said to his daughter, "A flood of unmingled glory fills my soul at last; it fills me, it fills me! Glory! glory! A great company of angels are around me, and fill the room!" Reason retained her empire to the last, and he continued to exult in the glorious triumphs of a true and living Christian faith. On Sabbath morning, August 19, just as the bells were tolling for public worship he sweetly fell asleep in Jesus. On Tuesday following his funeral obsequies were attended by a large congregation. Six of his brethren in the ministry bore his remains to the Methodist Episcopal Church, in which he had many times, in tones of love and moving pathos, preached the unsearchable riches of Christ. Rev. Samuel Meredith, presiding elder of Saratoga District, preached an appropriate sermon from Heb. xiii, 7, "Whose faith follow." His body was then laid in the grave in the rural cemetery of the beautiful village of Northville, to rest in hope until the resurrection.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

L. C. Powers.

REV. LEMUEL C. POWERS was born in Rochester, Vt., August 22, 1828, and died in Moretown, Vt., November 18, 1866, aged thirty-eight years.

Brother Powers embraced religion early in life, but did not make a public profession of faith in Christ until about twenty-five years of age. He commenced his ministerial labors, when about thirty years of age, as a local preacher, being employed by the presiding elder of the Montpelier District to labor on the Bethel Lympus charge, where he continued two years. He then united with the Vermont Annual Conference, and was appointed for two successive years to that charge. He was much beloved by the people, and was instrumental in greatly promoting the secular and spiritual interests of the charge. Four years since he was appointed to Topsham, where he remained two years, laboring with zeal and perseverance for the purity of the Church, being blessed in his work, and having favor in the eyes of the people. His next and last charge was Moretown, to which he was appointed in the spring of 1865. During the first year he saw no special fruit of his labor. As he entered upon his second year's labor, he felt very anxious for a revival of the work of grace, and labored earnestly for this result, paying special attention to the children and Sunday-school interest, holding children's meetings, weekly, in the different parts of his charge. Just as he was prostrated by disease, a gracious work commenced in North Fayston, which was embraced in his charge. Nearly a score of persons were converted, but the disease with which he was attacked continued to increase, and, after more than three months of great suffering, resulted in his death.

Brother Powers was consistent in his daily walk, and exemplified in his life the excellency of that religion which he recommended to others. He took a lively interest in and labored to promote the various benevolent enterprises of the day. The religion which he preached to others sustained him in sickness and death. To his ministerial brethren, and other friends, who called on him during his sickness, he frequently spoke of his unshaken confidence in Christ as a present and complete Saviour. To a beloved and only brother, who watched by his bedside while he was dying, he said, "I am now realizing how

'Jesus can make a dying bed
Feel soft as downy pillows are;
While on his breast I lean my head,
And breathe my life out sweetly there.'"

Thus he passed from a scene of labor and suffering to a state of rest and reward. In the death of Brother Powers the community has lost a good citizen, the Church a faithful pastor, and the Sunday-school children an earnest and devoted friend.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

J. C. Vandercook, J. V. Humphrey, G. M'Mullen—3.

1. Rev. JACKSON C. VANDERCOOK, A. M., was born in Lyons, N. Y., August 3, 1814; joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1833, and united with the Black River Conference during its session in Adams in 1848. For some time previous to joining the conference he was engaged in the work of teaching. During the eighteen years of his connection with the conference he never missed but one appointment, serving South Canton, Fort Covington, Gouverneur, Oswego, Fairfield, Geddes, Fulton, Oswego a second time, Adams, agent of Falley Seminary, and a second time at Geddes. He also supplied the Camden Station, subsequent to the death of Rev. I. T. Alden, until the ensuing conference. With but two exceptions he served each of these charges two years. While at Adams he became aware of the disease which caused his death. In the winter of 1866 he went west, hoping to improve his health; but his failing body compelled him to return to his home. At the session of the last conference, in Fulton, his place of residence, it was evident to his brethren that his name must soon be written among the faithful ones honorably released from the militant ranks of Christ Jesus. What was then evident was soon realized, and on Sabbath morning, May 27, 1866, at eleven o'clock, while sympathizing Christian friends were singing at his bedside,

"Let music cheer me last on earth,
And greet me first in heaven,"

his spirit, released from the corruptible, and more than conqueror, passed into the open gates of the city of God.

Brother Vandercook was justly ranked with our strong men. Possessing a vigorous and logical mind, well educated, versed in logic and mental and moral philosophy, and a profound thinker, his utterances were comprehensive and impressive. He had a rare power of generalization, which made his sermons a basis of edifying thought and correct action long after the voice which bore them to listening ears was hushed. His sermons were not mere abstractions, but profound and penetrating expositions, faithfully applied to timely interests and present demands, and so directed as to concentrate pure and telling influences upon the future. Individuality was one of his very marked characteristics. He did not accept with passive credulity the dictum of men; but his convictions grew upon truths which a searching and thoughtful personal examination revealed as such, and were accordingly strong and unyielding. His was one of the minds which give allegiance to truth itself rather than to its forms. In his estimation certain forms might become effects, but the truth is eternal. Independent as a thinker, firm in his fidelity to the right as he understood it, he early espoused the cause of reform, especially in its relations to the antislavery movement, and was unfaltering in his faithfulness to it from the beginning to the end. There was often a grandeur in his expressions while engaged in the great conflict of this reform. He was earnest in his efforts to promote the educational enterprises of the Church and the age. Whatever was of "good report" found in him a firm friend and an unflinching advocate. In his personal religious life he impressed those who knew him best as a man of God, and one who was rooted and grounded in the faith of Christ. His personal religious life was not, as strangers might have supposed, characterized by the coldness of intellect; but there was a warmth, and sweetness, and intensity which demonstrated a deep and abiding communion with Christ. Though intellectual, he was also emotional, and often, in social means of grace and under the inspiration of spiritual song, shouted aloud for joy. The impress of his character must be lasting upon his brethren, and his thoughts upon those brought under his teachings. A faithful Christian, true to his convictions of truth and duty, no matter what the cost; a faithful friend, and an untiring advocate and defender of the humanitarian interests of the world; an able and an approved minister of the Gospel of Christ, a good pastor, a noble man, his memory must be enduring, and we are confident that it will be an hour of peace and assurance with him when the Lord Jesus Christ sits upon the judgment seat. He has left a good testimony, and the Church will write his among its choice names.

2. Rev. JOHN V. HUMPHREY was born in the town of Russia, Herkimer County, N. Y., August 24, 1835. He was of Welsh descent; his parents were born in Wales. He was the oldest of a family of six children, and the first to enter the spirit-land. At the early age of thirteen he experienced religion under the labors of Rev. Allen Miller, and soon after joined the Methodist Episcopal Church. His conversion was clear, and his faithful, devoted life evinced the reality of the change wrought in him by the Holy Spirit. He was successively class-leader, exhorter, and local preacher. In 1862 he joined the Black River Conference, and remained an effective member till called to his reward, serving with acceptability and success the several charges to which he was appointed. Early last autumn he was prostrated by fever, which in a very few days proved fatal. At the midnight hour, Sunday eve, September 23, 1866, our brother, apparently unconscious, passed from earth to the realms of immortality. Thus closed the labors of one of God's chosen servants. Cut down early in life, in the midst of his work; torn suddenly from the embrace of kind friends, leaving his flock without a shepherd; though called suddenly, he was ready; he could "welcome death" as the end of fears. He died well.

Brother Humphrey was a conscientious and good man. As a preacher, he was earnest and practical; a lover of Methodism in all its peculiarities. He is gone! "God buries his workmen, but carries on his work." His body rests in Heuvelton, St. Lawrence County, N. Y.

"How beautiful it is for man to die
Upon the walls of Zion! to be called,
Like a watch-worn and weary sentinel,
To put his armor off and rest in heaven."

3. Rev. GEORGE M'MULLEN died suddenly, of disease of the heart, at his residence in Florence, N. Y., December 31, 1866. He was born in Western, Oneida County, N. Y., April 3, 1810. When about nineteen years of age he was converted, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church. His first license to exhort is dated Steuben, June 18, 1830, and signed by John Ercanbrack. His first license to preach was dated Whitestown, January 30, 1832. In 1834 he was married, and his excellent companion now survives him. He was ordained deacon September 3, 1837, by Bishop Hedding, and elder by Bishop Ames, April 27, 1862. He was employed by the presiding elder, and labored on the Lee Circuit for two years with great acceptability and usefulness. In 1858 he was admitted on trial into the Black River Conference. His Conference appointments were as follows: 1858, Oneida Lake; 1859–60, Steuben, the first year as junior preacher with Brother J. W. Roberts, and second year as senior with Brother F. H. Beck; 1861–62, Redfield; 1863–65, Williamstown; 1866, Florence, where he finished his course.

Brother M'Mullen was an excellent man and a good preacher. He was faithful in his work as a minister, carefully attending to all the interests of the Church. Much, indeed, may be said of Brother M'Mullen's excellences; but his record is on high, and his home is in heaven. By reason of a great snow-storm, he spent his last Sabbath on earth with his family, which he seemed to enjoy very much. He arose as usual on Monday morning, and after having kindled a fire sat down, and was soon attacked with violent pain, and immediately became insensible. Subsequently he revived a little, and was conscious for a few moments, but could say but little. His last utterances were, "Blessed Jesus! blessed Jesus!" He lingered until half past eight o'clock in the evening, when his redeemed spirit was released from "cumbrous clay," and, we doubt not, soared to its more congenial home with the Saviour.

"In condescending love,
Thy ceaseless prayer He heard;
And bade thee suddenly remove
To thy complete reward."

1. Rev. THOMAS GREENHALGH was born in Berry, Lancashire, England, and died in Hampden, Me., June 23, 1866, aged seventy-five years. His youth was spent in orphanage and poverty. "How I have learned what I have," he said, "I know not." He soon became an acceptable local preacher, was employed by the presiding elder to preach at Saco, and in 1831 joined the Maine Conference. Having served nineteen years as an efficient itinerant, one year as a supernumerary, he sustained the last fourteen years a superannuated relation. He was sound in the faith and mighty in the Scriptures, could clearly present our theology, and was a strong defender of all the Methodist doctrines. He suffered much in his last sickness, but was sustained by a firm trust in God, often repeating the passages, "For me to live is Christ and to die is gain," and, "Whether we live, we live unto the Lord; and whether we die, we die unto the Lord; whether we live therefore, or die, we are the Lord's." His last message to his brethren in the Conference was, "Nothing gives way in the Gospel that I have preached and believed; it is fastened to the throne of God."

2. Rev. JAMES FARRINGTON, of precious memory, died in Wilton, Me., August 30, 1866, aged sixty-nine years. He was born in Wilton, N. H., and was admitted into the Maine Conference in 1833. He received twenty-three appointments, sustaining a superannuated relation ten years.

Brother Farrington was pre-eminently a successful preacher—emphatically a revivalist. His record is clear. His heart was pure, his evidence bright, his labor love, his spirit sweet. His home is in heaven! His life-long submissive spirit and unwavering faith were betrayed in his very last sentence, when he said, "All will be well whether I live or die. All is well!"

3. Rev. RUFUS C. BAILEY was converted to God when twenty-three years of age at a camp-meeting on the Penobscot River. He joined the Maine Conference in 1826, and for sixteen years continued to labor with much success in winning souls to Christ; but, on account of failing health, in 1842 he received a superannuated relation. In 1858 he resumed the regular work of an itinerant, and labored until he was stricken down at his post with paralysis, February 12, 1865. For more than eighteen months he lingered in great feebleness. In this he rejoiced that he should so soon be conveyed to the realms of the blessed. He said he was "only waiting for the boatman;" that he was "watching by the river;" "waiting on the shore," only too anxious to go. God permitted him to pass over October 24, 1866, aged sixty-seven years.

Brother Bailey was a good man and a faithful embassador of Jesus; nor was his labor in vain in the Lord. Many seals of his ministry attest the fidelity with which he labored, and stars of resplendent brightness are in his crown of rejoicing.

4. Rev. A. F. BARNARD departed this life, in full assurance of a blessed immortality, at Saco, Me., March 27, 1867, aged sixty-one years.

Brother Barnard was born in Dixfield, Me., January 30, 1806. His parents were Unitarians. At the age of sixteen he went to Stow, Mass., where he resided six years, and where in the autumn of 1826 he was converted to God. He soon connected himself with the Methodist Episcopal Church on Needham Circuit, then under the pastoral care of Rev. Jared Perkins. He was baptized by Rev. John Lindsay, and received into full connection by Rev. A. D. Merrill. In the spring of 1828 he returned to Maine, and the year following entered the Maine Wesleyan Seminary, where he pursued his studies about one year and a half. Being impressed with the conviction that God had called him to the work of the ministry, he directed his attention to that work. He received license to exhort November 7th of the same year, and was received a member of the Maine Conference at Bucksport, July, 1832, was ordained deacon at Gardiner in 1834, and elder at Portland in 1836. During his ministry he received twenty-three different appointments, two of which were in the East Maine Conference. His first appointment was at Cooper, his last at South Paris. On all these appointments he succeeded well, and in some of them he gathered glorious harvests of precious souls. In a conversation a few weeks before he died, he said, "O what victories God has given me during my sickness! How would I preach if I could preach once more! Not that I would modify any of the doctrines which I have preached, for they are true, and abundantly sustain me." And, "having washed his robes in the blood of the Lamb," and having kept himself in the love of God to the end, he has gone upward to receive his mansion in his Father's house.

5. Rev. JOSIAH H. NEWHALL died in Lynn, Mass., October 13, 1866, aged twenty-nine years.

Brother Newhall gave his heart to God in the spring of 1852. Three years subsequent he entered the Wesleyan University, from which he was graduated with honor, June, 1860. The same year he was recommended to the traveling connection, and united with the Maine Conference. His first appointment was to Cornish and Porter, his last Oxford. Brunswick and Gorham, N. H., also shared his faithful labors. He remained two years in each of his appointments save the last, from which he was transferred to the heavenly rest. One who knew him well said, "He was a good man, a devoted Christian, a finished gentleman, and a faithful minister of the Lord Jesus. He had fruit on all his charges. In sickness he was patient and submissive, resigned to all the will of God. He needs no eulogy from human tongue or pen; his record is on the human hearts impressed and moved toward heaven, who received the thrilling words of mercy as they fell from his lips. His fall in manhood's prime admonishes us to be also ready "our body and our charge to lay down, and cease at once to work and live."

6. Rev. JOHN YOUNG was born in Pittston, Me., August 22, 1799, and died in Augusta, February 3, 1867. He was converted to God in 1818, and was received by the Maine Conference on trial in 1830. He maintained an effective relation thirty-three years, was four years agent of the American Bible Society, four years presiding elder on Readfield District, and two years located.

Brother Young was an efficient preacher. His genial spirit, affable address, cultivated mind, and Christian heart endeared him to all, and, through the gifts of the Holy Ghost, eminently qualified him for a career of usefulness. He lived well, wrought well, and died well. Just before he entered the valley of the shadow of death, about an hour before he fell asleep in Jesus, he received the sacrament of the Lord's supper from the hands of his friends, and the greatest and sweetest name in heaven or on earth was the very last that trembled upon his lips, "Precious Jesus!"

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

James Hartford, R. R. Richards—2.

1. Rev. JAMES HARTFORD was born in Coventry, N. H., September 9, 1821. He was converted in Denmark, Me., when seventeen years of age, and soon after joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, in which he found a home until called to the reunion of Churches before the throne of God. The following, relating to his convictions of duty, and entrance upon the work of the Christian ministry, is from his own pen: "During the year 1851 I visited various parts of the western country, and it was not till I returned from these travels that I fully concluded to obey the convictions of my soul for years, and to give myself to the work of the Christian ministry. I commenced my itinerant life in September, 1852, under Rev. C. D. Pilsbury, presiding elder of the Bangor District. My first circuit was the Upper Aroostook, known as the Aroostook Mission. Continued my travels under the same presiding elder the next year, and supplied Weston and Topsfield."

In 1854 Brother Hartford was received a probationer in the East Maine Conference, and returned to the Weston and Topsfield Circuit. In 1856, at the session of the conference in Bucksport, he was ordained deacon by Bishop Simpson, and admitted into full connection in the conference. In 1859, at the session of the conference in Thomaston, he was elected an elder, and ordained as such by Bishop Ames. Subsequently to his labors upon the Weston and Topsfield charge he filled the following appointments: in 1855, Harmony and Cambridge; 1856, Dixmont and Plymouth; 1857, Brownville, Medford, and Williamsburgh; 1858, Knox and Montville; 1859, Searsmont and M'Lane's Mills; 1860, North Waldoborough; 1861–62, Woolwich; 1863, South Vassalborough; 1864, Bristol; 1865, Georgetown. At the last session of this body Brother Hartford was among us, strong among the healthful. He was returned to Georgetown, where, surrounded with pleasant circumstances, and a corps of faithful and loving brethren, he entered upon his second year's labors; but soon, on August 8, a little before the completion of his forty-fifth year, and the fourteenth year of his ministerial life, he heard the voice of his Master summoning him away from a scene of privations and toils to the land of glorious rest.

Brother Hartford was endowed with good abilities, which he had not failed to improve, though his advantages were inferior to those possessed by many of his brethren. To him the injunction of Paul to Timothy, "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth," was not an unmeaning command. Hence it is almost unnecessary to say he was a good theologian, a clear and instructive preacher.

Brother Hartford's cheerful disposition smoothed the rugged ways of his itinerant path, which, as one of our presiding elders has remarked, "was quite as rough as that of any of his brethren." This cheerful nature, with his deep convictions of duty, and the love of Jesus abiding in his soul, emboldened him to endure great privations and many hardships for the Gospel's sake. These also gave him great peace and glorious hope amid the scenes of his toil, which did not forsake him upon the sick and dying couch, where he manifested an unusual degree of happiness and peace, and expressed his willingness to live or die, as the Lord should direct. There he had such manifestations of the love and power of Jesus as he never had before. For him to have lived would have been Christ, while to die was gain.

2. Rev. Robert R. Richards.—In the year 1838, in Thomaston, now the city of Rockland, under the pastorate of Rev. Benjamin Bryant, Rev. Robert R. Richards passed from death unto life, was baptized, and admitted into the Methodist Episcopal Church, with whose interests he identified the remainder of his life.

In 1841 he was received a probationer in the Maine Conference. In 1843, at the session of the conference in Bath, he was ordained deacon by Bishop Hedding, and received into full connection in the conference. In 1848, at the session of the conference at Hallowell, he was ordained elder by Bishop Waugh. For twenty-three years he sustained an effective relation in the conference, from which he received the following appointments: In 1841, Vinalhaven; 1842, West Hampden; 1843, Jackson; 1844, Thorndike; 1845–46, North Bucksport; 1847–48, Surry; 1849–50, Waldoborough; 1851, East Vassalborough; 1852–53, Exeter; 1854, Brownville; 1855–56, Dover; 1857, Palmyra; 1858–59, Carmel; 1860–61, Dresden; 1862–63, East Pittston. In 1864 failing health compelled him to take a superannuated relation, which relation he sustained until August 9, 1866, when the Master called him from the labors of the Church in her militant career to the reward of the Church in her triumphant state.

To those who knew Brother Richards it is not necessary to say he possessed many qualities which fitted him for the duties of a Christian pastor. As a man, he was possessed of a sound understanding, of good common sense, and of great perseverance; as a friend, he was true and faithful; as a citizen, he was ever ready to acknowledge his obligations of fidelity to the public good; as a preacher, he was clear, logical, and instructive. He had an unshaken confidence in the divinity of the truths he preached, and in their power to renew the heart in righteousness, and restore the image of God in all those who will walk in their light. He had also great confidence in their ultimate spread and triumph in all the earth. This confidence was not without foundation, for he had the pleasure of seeing truth triumph over sin in many of his charges. It was his to see in many instances that the Gospel he preached was "the power of God unto salvation," "the savor of life unto life." His confidence was unshaken to the last. During the last few days of his life, though the activity of his mind was much impaired, yet his interest in religious devotions remained unabated. His dying chamber was graced with the presence of his Master. "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright; for the end of that man is peace."

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

James Gilmore, Charles W. Bear, W. A Maltby*—3.

1. Rev. JAMES GILMORE was born in the town of Chester, Hampshire County, Mass., June 2, 1790, and embraced religion in his eleventh year, under the ministry of Rev. Billy Hibbard, when he united with the Methodist Episcopal Church. About three years after this he fell into a backsliden state, in which condition he remained about five years, during which time, in connection with his father's family, he moved into the state of New York, and settled on the bank of the Alleghany River, near the south line of the state. From thence he removed and settled on the Susquehanna River, where it pleased God to reclaim him, when he reunited with the Church, and, being strongly impressed with the conviction that it was his duty to devote his life to the Christian ministry, he returned home, and commenced a rigorous course of study preparatory to the ministry, and, receiving a license to exhort, he commenced calling sinners to repentance with great zeal and marked success. He was licensed to preach in 1812, and admitted on trial in the Genesee Conference the same year, and into full connection and ordained a deacon in 1814, and an elder in 1816.

* Obituary not received.

Mr. Gilmore was very tall, straight, and slim, and made a very dignified and commanding appearance. He possessed more than ordinary mental power, could reason with logical accuracy, and at the same time thrill an audience with overpowering eloquence. His mind was well stored with Scriptural truth, and richly furnished with arguments to establish their divine origin. He was not only an able controversialist, but, what is far better, a powerful revival preacher.

Brother Gilmore was transferred to the Pittsburgh Conference in 1828, when his connection with this part of the work commenced. When the Erie Conference was organized, in 1836, he was one of the few aged and experienced ministers that assisted in its management, and contributed to its success. During most of the time he was connected with the Erie Conference his health was so precarious that it was considered unsafe for him to take work requiring a full amount of labor; hence, he spent much of his time in a superannuated relation to the Conference: but even while he held this relation he was accustomed to circulate much among our people, and would frequently preach with great power, and was very efficient in promoting revivals of religion. His once noble frame gradually yielded to the infirmities of age and the enfeebling effect of disease, until there was but little strength left with which to maintain the last struggle when it came. His final sickness, consisting of typhoid fever, was of but a few days' continuance; but through all his afflictions, even to the last hour, his mind was peaceful and full of joyful hope. He died in Erie, Pa., September 27, 1866, being the seventy-sixth year of his age, sixty-fifth of his Christian life, and fifty-fourth of his ministry.

2. Rev. Charles W. Bear was born near Mount Jackson, Lawrence County, Pa., October 23, 1826. His father was a local preacher, and one of the early pioneers of Methodism in that region of country. With his excellent wife he stood up for the Church of his choice, and lived to see it triumph over all opposition, and become a power in the land. Their house was a home for the itinerant, who was always a welcome visitor. Their children were trained up in "the nurture and admonition of the Lord." Charles was converted in 1842 under the labors of Revs. Bettis and Morse, and immediately connected himself with the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was married July 5, 1855, to Miss Anna Pancake, an estimable Christian lady; was licensed to exhort May 22, 1858, by Rev. S. L. Wilkinson, and to preach February 6, 1859, at Petersburgh, Mount Jackson Circuit, by the lamented Gaylord B. Hawkins. He was employed by the New Castle District Tract Society as its agent and colporteur March 31 of the same year, in which capacity he served till the ensuing session of the Erie Conference, which was held in Brookville, Pa., when he was admitted on trial, and appointed to the North Chenango and Clintonville Circuit, which he served two years. In 1861 he was ordained a deacon, and appointed to the Williamsfield charge in Ohio; in 1862 he was appointed to the Rockland charge in Pennsylvania; in 1863 he was ordained an elder, and again appointed to Rockland; in 1864 was appointed to the Troy charge, and reappointed in 1865, where he died, of typhoid fever, October 26, of the same year. His remains were removed to Mount Jackson for interment, where quite a number of the family already sleep in hope of the resurrection.

Brother Bear leaves a wife and two children. He was a man of very fine social qualities, possessing a good English education. He was more than an ordinary preacher. His sermon, preached at the Punxutawney camp-meeting a short time before his death, on "Christ our refuge," was an effort of overwhelming power, and will be remembered by many who heard it through a lifetime. As a pastor he was faithful in all departments of the pastoral office, as a disciplinarian he was thorough; in short, no part of his duty as a Methodist preacher was neglected. Kind and affable in his intercourse among the people, he was greatly beloved by them in return. His illness was short, severe, and decisive. Like an armed man, the destroyer came and did his work. Although he was delirious much of the time during his sickness, and unable to communicate intelligibly with his family and friends, yet we doubt not he was well prepared for the reward of the faithful. His life is his record.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

David Reed.

Rev. DAVID REED was born near Frankford, Ohio, December 11, 1810. The Bible attaches great importance to the piety and fidelity of parents. In this respect David was eminently blessed. He remarked in a speaking meeting a few days before his death that there was nothing connected with his early training that was calculated to make any other than a favorable impression on his mind in regard to the Christian religion. But all his religious culture and scriptural instruction, received from his devout parents, did not supersede the necessity of a change of heart, "the washing of regeneration." The more David observed the instruction and holy example of his parents, the more he felt his need of a personal salvation; especially did he realize his great spiritual want when the other members of the family would retire, as was their custom, "for secret prayer." On one of those occasions he was so overwhelmed with a sense of his lost condition that he cried out, "Lord Jesus, what will become of me?" On another occasion, when his brother Alexander was leading in prayer, an arrow from the Almighty so pierced his heart and conscience as to enable him to see and feel his guilt and danger as a sinner. Under this awakening grace he became an earnest seeker of salvation. One evening he and his brother and three other youths attended a prayer-meeting at a school-house. On their way home this band of young men called a halt in the woods, and held a prayer-meeting. There it was, near "midnight's lonely hour," the noble youth, David Reed, was gloriously converted and born into the kingdom of God. It was not long until he received a clear conviction that he was called of God to labor in his vineyard, and with an humble reliance on Christ for help he soon entered upon the holy work. He was authorized as an exhorter in the Church November 18, 1831, and to preach August 13, 1832, and by the same large Quarterly Conference of Deer Creek Circuit he was recommended to the Ohio Conference as a suitable person to be admitted into the traveling connection. In the fall of 1832 he was received and appointed to Guyandotte Circuit. He labored his first four years in West Virginia, crossing the mountains, traversing the valleys, and preaching salvation through Christ to the inhabitants of that rough and sparsely-settled region, bearing hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ. In the fall of 1834 he was ordained deacon, and two years later he graduated to the full order of the Christian ministry, and was appointed to Franklin Circuit. During this Conference year he was happily married to Miss Hannah Finley, who yet lives to mourn the loss of a most affectionate and kind husband. In the autumn of 1837 he was returned to Franklin Circuit; 1838, stationed in Hamilton; 1839, at Frankfort Circuit; 1840, the same; 1841, Greenfield Station; 1842, Deer Creek Circuit;

1843, Asbury Station, Cincinnati; 1844, Main-street, Chilicothe; 1845, Bainbridge; 1846, presiding elder on Kanawha District, and for four consecutive years; 1850, Parkersburg Station; 1851, Point Pleasant, which completed his tenth year in that hard and laborious field, West Virginia; 1852, he was appointed to Union Circuit; 1853, Red Lion; 1854, Troy Station; 1855, West Cincinnati District, four years; 1859, Xenia District; at this session he was elected a delegate to the General Conference of 1860. He was continued a second year on Xenia district; 1861-62, presiding elder of Dayton District; 1863, Union Circuit, where he remained three years; 1866, New Burlington Circuit, where he fell at his post, covered with glory.

Brother Reed had a superior mind, and his acquired knowledge and experience thoroughly qualified him for the great work of the itinerant ministry. His noble body and great physical strength, as well as his uninterrupted good health, showed that he was eminently adapted to his trying and laborious life of holy toil. He was well received by the people on all the fields of his labor, and his usefulness was made manifest in every place. Many souls were brought to Christ through his instrumentality, and the Church greatly edified. As a minister, he was attractive and possessed great power. His appearance in the pulpit was commanding, his voice was clear and melodious, and his delivery easy. His discourses were always profitable, and were often truly eloquent and powerful. He was extremely happy in his quotations of Scripture and poetry, and enlivened and illustrated his sermons by appropriate and interesting incidents. This excellent minister prosecuted his work almost to life's last hour. He filled two appointments on the Sabbath preceding his death. On Tuesday evening he attended a protracted meeting at Waynesville, and delivered his last exhortation. He had not been well for some months, and on the following Saturday evening he was taken with a chill, on Sabbath morning with another chill, and by ten o'clock all hope of his recovery was abandoned. He sank rapidly, and at two o'clock and fifty minutes P. M., Sabbath, March 24, 1867, his body ceased to suffer, and his soul took its flight to the home of the good in heaven. When informed that he must die, he replied, "It has been a lifetime work with me to prepare for this hour." To his presiding elder, Rev. J. F. Conrey, just arrived, he said, "All is bright; no clouds." To his brother he said, "I am nearly home; it is pretty rapid work." To his agonized wife he said, "Hannah, do the best you can; I shall be no stranger in heaven." To Brother S. F. Conrey he remarked, "I feel very comfortable." Allusion being made to that Saviour he had so long preached to dying sinners, he replied, with great emphasis, "Yes, I have preached Christ sincerely." A short time before he expired he asked his friends to sing "Rock of ages, cleft for me," and after to offer prayer. Then his breathing became easier, but grew shorter until it entirely ceased, and without a struggle or a groan he fell asleep in Jesus.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

Josiah Adams.

Rev. JOSIAH ADAMS was born in West Haddon, a rural village in Northamptonshire, England, in 1821. His parents were deeply pious members of the Wesleyan Methodist Church. Their house was the home of the itinerant ministers in their regular visits. He delighted in their conversation and preaching. In early life he was the subject of serious convictions, and at sixteen he was converted to God, and became a member of the Church. He soon exhibited a talent for usefulness, and was licensed to preach. For several years he labored both acceptably and usefully as a local preacher in his native land. In 1853 he emigrated to America, and in 1857 was received into the Central Ohio Conference, and appointed to Paulding Circuit, then a very hard field of labor. He remained on this circuit two years. He filled successively Bowling Green, Elmore, Bettsville, and Mt. Blanchard Circuits; he then returned to Elmore for two years. On these several circuits he labored with great acceptability and usefulness. He was a good preacher—earnest, practical, and pointed; a model pastor, doing as much pastoral visitation as any member of this Conference. He was upright and honorable in all his deportment. His value as a faithful minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church will scarcely be appreciated till eternity shall reveal it. The end was a fitting sequel to Brother Adams's life. He had been appointed to the Edgerton Circuit, and entered on his work with unusual prospects of success. Being very cordially received by the people, and having made a very favorable impression as to his adaptation to the work, he was very hopeful. But suddenly he was seized with congestion of the lungs, and heard a voice saying, "It is enough; come up higher." From the first he had a strong conviction that it was his last sickness. After a painful struggle with the seeming mystery of his early removal from his work and family he gained the victory, and calmly acquiesced in the divine will, often saying, "Thy will be done." His sufferings were very great, but he bore them with patience, and was graciously sustained by that Gospel which he had so often presented as a consolation to the sick and dying. When asked what was his prospect for the future, he replied that his trust was in Jesus, and he had no doubt of his final acceptance. He expressed an abiding confidence in the atonement as his only ground of hope. After bidding his wife and children farewell, and giving them his dying blessing, he said to the writer, "Tell my brethren of the Conference that I love them as Christians and as Methodist preachers, and I hope to meet them in heaven;" and after a few minutes of severe physical struggles he quietly fell asleep in Jesus, October 14, 1866. His last words were, "My work is done; I am going home."

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

A. A. Watkins.

REV. AARON A. WATKINS died March 19, 1867, of brain fever, in the city of Albany, N. Y., in the twenty-ninth year of his age.

Brother Watkins was the son of George W. Watkins, of Grass Lake, Michigan. In early life he manifested a regard for the truths and institutions of religion worthy of his Christian parentage and education. A constant and tender respect for the feelings and reputation of others was mingled with the natural cheerfulness and habitual mirthfulness of his boyhood. For his deep and practical knowledge of the Bible he was indebted to early Sabbath-school instruction and the efforts of his Christian mother. He was converted and united with the Church during the winter of 1856, and ever after maintained an earnest and consistent Christian profession. In 1859 he entered the classical course of the Michigan University. In the winter of 1861 he received license to exhort, and in the following year was licensed as a local preacher by the Grass Lake Quarterly Conference, and was graduated with the honors of the University. In 1863 he was admitted on trial into the Detroit Annual Conference, and appointed to the Chelsea charge in connection with Rev. W. H. Shier. In 1864 he was united in marriage with Miss Charlotte Smith, of Ann Arbor, and at the session of the Conference the same year was sent to Negona, Lake Superior, where he labored for two years with great acceptability and success. At the Conference of 1866, on account of feeble and declining health, he was placed on the list of supernumerary preachers, in hopes that a year's release from the care and responsibility of the ministry would improve his health and renew his strength. But the desired improvement did not come. Under the direction of his physician he determined to try the climate of Florida. For this, with an ambition and hope wonderful in his feeble condition, he made his arrangements, and came to his father's home in February, and the 6th of March, accompanied by his wife, he commenced his journey. At Little Falls his strength failed, but after a brief rest he proceeded as far as Albany. Here he soon became insensible, and, except at intervals few and short, he never returned to consciousness. But his death was the death of the righteous; and while—because we feel that we have lost a worthy and efficient fellow-laborer—we mingle our tears with those of his surviving friends, we can but exclaim, "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord!"

Rev. JOHN HENRY AUGUST FUSS, born December 20, 1830, at Minden, kingdom of Prussia, immigrated to this country with his parents in 1848. In the following year he was converted, under the ministry of Rev. P. F. Schneider, and joined the English society of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Fremont, Ohio. Soon after he became a member of the German Mission in Detroit, and received license to preach in 1851. In the fall of the same year he went to Louisville, Kentucky, and labored under the presiding elder. The following year he was received on trial in the Southeastern Indiana Conference, and appointed successively to the following fields of labor: 1852, Brookville and Richmond; 1853, Palestine; 1854, Rockford; 1855, after being ordained deacon, Boonville; 1856, Aurora, during which year he was married to Miss Maria Elizabeth Storz. In 1857 he was ordained elder and sent to Lafayette, which charge he served for two years. In 1859 he was transferred to the Cincinnati Conference, and stationed in Everett-street, Cincinnati; 1860-61, he labored in Columbus; 1862, in Greenville and Piqua Circuit; 1863, in Hamilton; 1864, on Mt. Vernon, and 1865 on Huntingsburg Circuit, Central German Conference. In the fall of this year he took a cold, which affected his lungs and throat so that the beginning of consumption was soon visible. For several months he was unable to preach. During the summer, however, his health improved, and as he could not persuade himself to take a superannuated relation he was appointed to Newport, Kentucky, in the hope that he might there fully recover, having at that place not only the medical treatment of a dear friend, but also ministerial help in the pulpit from his brethren in Cincinnati. This hope, however, was not realized. He could serve his charge but a few months. The disease rapidly increased, and ended his life May 13, when he had reached the age of thirty-six years.

His departure is mourned not only by a lonely widow without children, but by the Church, which lost in him a laborer endowed with more than common gifts, which he improved by indefatigable study; a preacher whose discourses gave the proof that he made constant progress, and whose services on the conference floor showed that he understood and loved the genius and institutions of Methodism. Brother Fuss was a zealous servant of God; his whole soul was in the work, and the words which the writer of this sketch chose for his funeral discourse ("None of us liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself. For whether we live, we live unto the Lord; and whether we die, we die unto the Lord; whether we live, therefore, or die, we are the Lord's." Rom. xiv, 7, 8) were expressive of the chief feature of his character. He lived not unto himself, but to the Lord. If he had sought his own temporal interests he could have made his mark in business, and especially in politics; but he esteemed the privilege of preaching the Gospel higher than wealth and honor before the world. Our obituary would not meet with the approval of our departed brother if we did not admit that he, like other men, had defects. He confessed them frankly, and not without grief. The very virtues peculiar to him, such as his habit to fully express whatever he considered true and right, without any reference to the pleasure or displeasure of others, and the firmness of his character, which made it very difficult for him to yield in any point what he had expressed as his deliberate and conscientious conviction, threw their corresponding shadows in consequence of the imperfection of our human nature. But as the life of the Christian is to be a school of discipline for all that desire not to live to themselves, the Holy Spirit purifies the temperament, knocks off the sharp corners, and transforms the character from one glory to another into the image of the Master. This was the case with Brother Fuss; the ardent love and high esteem toward him, of which the two last charges he served gave him the most affecting proofs, show that Brother Fuss learned to combine gentleness and a willingness to yield with his manly firmness.

Brother Fuss, as is generally the case in consumption, hoped to recover to the last. To preach was the joy of his heart, and he found it hard to reconcile himself to the thought that he should no more be permitted to preach the glorious Gospel of the blessed God. Nevertheless, he became resigned to the will of the Lord, and said he was convinced that the will of the Lord was good. Sometimes he was troubled in mind because he had not more inward joy, though he never doubted his acceptance with God. The day before his death Brother Krehbiel said to him, "Brother Fuss, you will soon be in heaven." He replied, "It would have given me pleasure to recover if it was the Lord's will, but only that I might preach the Gospel; if I cannot any more preach, I would rather die." On Monday morning, about half an hour before his death, some of his brethren in the ministry visited him. The questions proposed to him concerning his assurance of salvation he answered by nodding, being no more able to speak. Calmly he fell asleep in Jesus.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

S. Judd.

REV. SALMON JUDD was born in Sandersfield, Connecticut, and died at the residence of his son, in Greenville, Montcalm County, Michigan, August 14, 1867, aged sixty-nine years. Of pious and Methodistic parentage, he was trained in the fear of God and in sympathy with his Church. As might be supposed, in early youth he became the subject of divine impressions, was converted, and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church. About this time his parents removed into this state and settled in Covington, now Pavilion, in Genesee County. In the year 1829 he was licensed to exhort by the Lewiston and Lockport Quarterly Conference, Rev. Lorin Grant presiding elder. In 1831 he was licensed to preach, and recommended to the Genesee Annual Conference, by which body he was received on trial into the traveling connection. At the conference of 1833 he was ordained deacon in the Church of God by Bishop Hedding, who also ordained him elder in 1835. In the year 1850 he took a superannuated relation, but continued to preach as his health and circumstances would permit, residing mostly at Henrietta, Monroe County, N. Y. For some ten years previous to his decease he had been extremely feeble. His eyesight also was very greatly impaired. A year ago last July, while on a visit to his son, he was suddenly stricken down by paralysis. From that time he never after was able to either speak distinctly, raise himself, or turn in bed without assistance, or help himself to food or drink. Physically he was a sad wreck of his former self. Amid all his bodily infirmities, however, his mind was clear, active, and stayed on his God. Rev. J. N. Dayton, pastor of the Church at Greenville, writes of him in the highest terms. He says: "I frequently visited him, and always found him with a 'healthy religious pulse,' manifesting much patience, and a living faith in Jesus as a present Saviour. At one time I inquired with regard to his appetite. His wife responded that it was poor. Looking upward, and raising his withered hand, he said, 'I shall soon eat a full meal with the angels.' When I asked him, 'Father Judd, what word would you like to send to your brethren of the conference, and to the multitudes to whom you have preached?' he answered, 'Tell them the peace of God passeth all understanding;' adding, with tears, 'If I had strength to preach again that should be my text.'" The presiding elder of the district, Rev. F. B. Bangs, who officiated at his funeral, also says of him, "He was much esteemed as a Christian and a minister. He died in peace." Our departed brother was a good man, a safe counselor, reliable in his judgment, and ardently attached to the Church of his choice. As a preacher, though not brilliant, he was far from being inferior. He was sound in doctrine, earnest, and practical. As an administrator of discipline he was firm; some thought him rigid. His aim, however, in all was the purity and welfare of the Church and the glory of God. Others may have made a greater stir in the world, but none were more sincere and faithful than he. Pursuing the even tenor of his way, while he was in the effective ranks he labored patiently, acceptably, and successfully. When he retired he was still the consistent and humble disciple and minister of Jesus Christ. When prostrated by disease he bore his sufferings with becoming fortitude. And when in the "valley" he found it illuminated with the Divine Presence. The "king of terrors" was completely vanquished, and quietly fording the stream he at once entered upon the enjoyment of his promised and long-sought inheritance. "Mark the perfect man, and behold the upright, for the end of that man is peace."

P. Pearson, S. Dodge, A. Cederholm—3.

1. REV. PETER PEARSON, of the West Wisconsin Conference, died of heart disease, at Necedah, Wis., September 23, 1866. Brother Pearson was born in England, August 2, 1825. Blessed with pious parents, he was early taught the ways of the Lord. When nineteen he embraced the Saviour, obtained the evidence of mercy, and united with the Wesleyan Methodist Church; two years after he was licensed a local preacher. He came to the United States in 1853, and in 1855 was married to Miss Anna M. Chamberlain, who for the past ten years has cheerfully shared the labors and sacrifices of the itinerancy in Wisconsin. After laboring as a supply for some years, he was received on trial in the West Wisconsin Conference in La Crosse, April 29, 1858. He traveled Necedah, Strong's Prairie and Quincy, Point Bluff, Oxford, Delton and Necedah Circuits. At the conference, held at Lodi, September 2, 1863, he was received into full connection, and ordained deacon. During the past few months he found his health failing, but wishing to meet once more in conference, he reached the place of its last session in great weakness. The fatigue of travel evidently was too hard for him. In conference love-feast he spoke most encouragingly of his future prospects. "Brethren," said he, "I may never meet you again on earth, but I do expect to meet you all in heaven." He asked for a supernumerary relation, and to be left without an appointment, that he might rest a year, which was granted. While at conference he grew worse, and it was only by the assistance of kind friends that he was enabled to reach home. When he met his wife and children he told them he had come home to die, and began immediately to "set his house in order," arranging his pecuniary affairs, and giving directions with reference to his burial. He wished the writer to preach his funeral sermon from Timothy iv, 7, 8, and to tell his friends on the occasion, and his brethren in the ministry at the next conference, that the Gospel which he had proclaimed was no cunningly devised fable, but that that same Jesus whom he had preached to others sustained him in life's latest moment.

Brother Pearson was emphatically a good man, an able minister, an affectionate husband, and a kind father. May God's blessing rest upon those to whom his heart clung most till they all meet again.

2. REV. SAMUEL DODGE, of the West Wisconsin Conference, died of bilious fever, at Boscobel, December 8, 1867. Brother Dodge was born in the town of Derry, Rockingham County, N. H., July 22, 1810; emigrated to Wisconsin in 1847, and settled at Deerfield. He was in early life impressed with his need of Christ. At the early age of four years he felt the influences of the Holy Spirit. At seventeen years of age he was converted to God and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, since which time, until his death, he was a faithful man. Brother Dodge received his first license to preach from Bishop Baker, when about twenty years of age, and labored for years as a local preacher with great acceptability and success. In 1854 he was admitted on trial in the Wisconsin Conference. In the division of the conference he became a member of the West Wisconsin Conference. He has filled the following appointments: in 1854, Albion; 1855, Madison Circuit; 1856, Oregon; 1857–58, Lodi; 1858–59, Shullsburgh; 1860, Fayette; 1861–62, Argyle; 1863–65, Viroqua and Brookville; 1866, Boscobel. Brother Dodge has always been indefatigable in his labors. The cause of Christ lay near his heart. His constant and untiring efforts for the Church during the three years of labor on Viroqua Circuit evidenced his devotion to the great work in which he was engaged, as well as materially hastened his death. At the last session of conference he was appointed to Boscobel, was well received, and was doing a good work when death called him from labor to reward. He died as the Christian dies, and has gone home to rest with God. While we sympathize with the bereaved family, we hope to meet our beloved brother in our Father's house.

REV. B. A. CEDERHOLM went to Norway in the month of August, 1858, where he labored for some time. He was then sent to Sweden, his native country. Since that he labored successfully, and in his last sickness he suffered patiently and died happy.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

William Montgomery.

Rev. WILLIAM MONTGOMERY was born in the County of Antrim, Ireland, May 19, 1820; came to America in 1833; was converted during a storm, on shipboard, while crossing the Atlantic. He was licensed as a local preacher in Cincinnati, in 1848, and traveled Mt. Pleasant Circuit two years and Morrow Circuit two years, in the Cincinnati Conference, under the direction of the presiding elder. In 1852 he joined the traveling connection in the Southeastern Indiana Conference. His first appointment was to Mt. Auburn Circuit, where he labored one year. He was next appointed to Franklin station and next Edinburg station, remaining but one year in each. He filled the following appointments, in each of which he remained two years: St. Louis Circuit, Rushville Station, Shelbyville Station, Mt. Carmel Circuit, Vevay Station, and Charlestown Station, where he ended his labors at one o'clock P. M., March 12, 1867, in the forty-seventh year of his age and in the nineteenth of his ministry. His disease was congestive chills. Brother Montgomery was constitutionally of a bilious temperament, and during the first years of his ministry in Indiana he suffered much from chills, and the disease became chronic and ineradicably seated in his system, and as a consequence he suffered every year from severe bilious attacks and occasional chills. Brother Montgomery was an able preacher. His exposition of Scripture was clear, and his manner forcible. He possessed a vigorous intellect, and his preaching showed a careful study of the great themes of Christian theology. His sermons were both expository and practical, and in their delivery he was often truly eloquent. He was an industrious and energetic man, often working beyond his strength. He was both a bashful and a bold man. He rarely ever spoke on the floor of his conference, and took but little part in public deliberations; but in the pulpit he spoke with confidence and authority, advocating the cause of truth with acknowledged ability, and denouncing vice with a fearlessness that often made its apologists quail. Brother Montgomery was blessed with revivals of religion in most of his charges, and has left many seals to his ministry. He was a faithful pastor, and had a strong hold on the affections of the people. Few men equaled him in the management of revival meetings. At such times his exhortations were truly powerful. The sudden and violent attacks to which Brother Montgomery had been subject for years admonished him of the uncertainty of life, and caused him to look death in the face until the sight became familiar. When the summons came his lamp was trimmed and burning. When asked how it was with him, when he was entering the valley of death, he exclaimed, "All is bright; it is all light about me." The religion that he had preached to others was sufficient for him in the dying hour. He felt that the sting of death was gone, and that for him the grave had no gloom. In conformity with his request we buried him in the graveyard at Shelbyville. Resolutions expressive of his worth as a man and a minister were adopted by the Quarterly Conference at Charlestown, and by the Good Templars and Free Masons; and the large crowd that attended his funeral gave evidence of the strong hold he had upon the affections of the people among whom he had formerly resided, and in the midst of whom he desired his remains to be buried. To his invalid wife and six children the blow is a heavy one. May the numerous friends of the deceased husband and father be friends indeed to his widow and fatherless children. The conference of which he was a member has lost one of its strong men, and the cause of evangelical religion and sound morality in Indiana an earnest and able advocate. Although called away in the meridian of life, from early youth he had lived for Jesus, and to him death was gain.

Rev. ANDREW J. SHERIDAN was born in Butler County, Ohio, February 7, 1825, and emigrated with his parents to Clinton County, Indiana, in the early settling of that county. He was converted and received into the Methodist Episcopal Church, under the labors of Rev. Ancil Beach in 1841, and was licensed to preach by Rev. Richard Hargrave in 1852. He was admitted on trial as a traveling preacher in the Northwest Indiana Conference in the year 1852, and received his first appointment to Lebanon Circuit, (having previously spent four years at Asbury University,) two years on Camden Circuit, two years on Poolsville Circuit, one year on Battle Ground Circuit, and one year on Monticello Circuit, where his health failed, and he ceased to labor as an effective preacher until the fall of 1865, occupying the time in teaching school in Rossville and preaching, as his health would permit. In the fall of 1865 his relation was changed from that of a superannuate to that of effective, when he was again appointed to Camden Circuit, where he had labored as a supply, but was changed immediately after conference by his presiding elder to Mechanicsburg Circuit. He was again appointed to Mechanicsburg Circuit at the last conference, where he continued to labor faithfully until January 10, 1867, when he peacefully fell "asleep in Jesus." That religion which he had preached to others sustained him when dying. His last words were, "Jesus is with me; glory to God." He was deeply devoted to the work of the ministry, and was successful in winning souls to Christ. He leaves many warm friends, besides an afflicted and bereaved companion and five children, who mourn his departure, but not as those who have no hope, for "we hope to meet again where no farewell tears are shed;" we hope to meet in heaven.

Joseph Jennings, Hiram Law*—2.

Rev. JOSEPH JENNINGS, late presiding elder of the Lansing District, gloriously closed his useful life at Battle Creek on Thursday, May 23, 1867. He was born at Clarkston, in the state of New York, January 8, 1821. At the age of about fifteen years he emigrated to this state with an elder brother, and settled at Birmingham, Oakland County. Soon thereafter he was the subject of a clear conversion. Alone he sought and found mercy, in the absence of the stated means of grace. His plans and purposes of life were all now changed. He felt the deepest convictions that God had called him to a higher and holier sphere of usefulness, and nobly resolved to qualify himself and follow on wherever God in his providence might lead him. He connected himself with the Methodist Episcopal Church, resting implicitly upon her doctrines and discipline. To fit himself more fully for the work to which he felt that God had called him, he placed himself under the tuition of Rev. Mr. Hollister, a clergyman of the Protestant Episcopal Church. Being naturally clear in his perceptive faculties, and urged on by motives of usefulness, he made rapid proficiency in his studies, and was regarded in his youth as a model young man both by his tutor and the community in which he mingled. Brother Jennings was licensed to preach in the fall of 1842, and admitted upon trial in this conference. With undeviating firmness and indomitable energy of character he entered upon his divinely-called avocation, and prosecuted it through life, only ceasing his labors when sternly confronted by disease, and death demanding a suspension of his labors. Brother Jennings had entered upon the twenty-fifth year of his active ministry, eight years of which he devoted to charges now embraced within the bounds of the Detroit Conference. The following is the order in which his appointments occurred: Flint, Mount Clemens, Battle Creek, Albion, Hillsdale, Hudson, Utica, Almont, Romeo, and Saline. From the latter he was placed as presiding elder upon the Marshall District, a position demanding the highest order of ministerial talent and executive ability; yet nobly was the interest and honor of the Church sustained by his zeal and untiring devotion to his work. He remained during the constitutional period of four years, and was again returned to the pastorate. We next find him at Kalamazoo, Battle Creek, Burlington, and Coldwater, places of responsibility and demanding the highest order of ministerial ability. While at Coldwater the disease which terminated his valuable life began to develop itself, and at the ensuing conference he hesitated whether he ought not to suspend his labors for a year and recuperate his declining energies; but the necessities of the work were pressing, and the people of Grand Rapids were earnestly soliciting his services, and he, perhaps unwisely, concluded to venture another year. The appointment was made, but it was a year of great physical suffering, and he came to our conference last fall at Hillsdale wasted almost to a skeleton. Ignorant of the true nature of the disease, he attributed it to general debility, growing out of too close application to study. He therefore asked to be relieved from the duties of the pastorate and placed again upon the district work, in the vain hope that more physical and less mental labor might restore his declining health. At the last conference he was placed upon the Lansing District, with many misgivings in reference to his ability to do the work of so laborious a field. Yet he entered upon it with a will, not to cease his efforts until compelled to do so by stern necessity. He performed nearly or quite his first round of quarterly meetings, preaching with a divine power and clearness of thought that commanded the admiration of all that heard him. But his work was done, and well done. Further he could not proceed. He left this city, where he had settled himself and family, at the earnest solicitation of his friends at Battle Creek to suffer and die in their midst. The disease under which for two years he had been gradually sinking was not understood either by himself or his medical advisers, and, at the instance of his many friends, a council was called of the most skillful of the medical profession and an examination was held upon his case. The examination being over, one of them sat by his side with his finger upon his pulse. Brother Jennings deliberately asked him for their opinion of his case. "Do you wish me, Mr. Jennings, to tell you frankly our opinion of your case?" inquired the physician. "Certainly I do; let me know it all," was the calm reply. "I will be frank with you, then," said the doctor; "it is cancer of the stomach; of it there is no doubt." "All right, doctor," said the Christian minister, for the first time comprehending the nature of his disease. The physician expressed his surprise at his perfect calm self-possession under these trying circumstances. He says his pulse did not quicken in the least degree, or the slightest change pass upon his countenance; he was prepared fully for the worst. At times he suffered the most excruciating paroxysms of pain, all of which he bore with remarkable patience and resignation. Awaking one morning from a quiet slumber he exclaimed, "Beautiful! beautiful! O how beautiful!" "It is indeed a beautiful morning, Joseph," rejoined his wife; "shall I not open the shutters, so that you can look out upon the beauties of nature?" "O," said the dying man, "I have looked a great way beyond the shutters." Brother Jacokes frequently visited him during his sickness, and states that he always found him calmly trusting in Jesus. On one occasion he said, "I feel that God is gently letting me down into the arms of death." Again, "I feel that the great arms of Christ are encircling me." Thus died our beloved brother and Christian colaborer. As a preacher Brother Jennings ranked in talent and pulpit ability among the first ministers of our state. Clear in his perceptions, logical in his reasonings, chaste and elevated in his style, powerful in his appeals, he held his audience at will by the power of his eloquence, while his logical statements of truth forced convictions upon their minds. He was one of the few men that were rapidly growing in intellectual greatness and compass of thought, and at his death had not reached the zenith of his intellectual strength. He was also endowed with a sweet, amiable disposition, that rendered him an agreeable companion, an affectionate husband and father, and commanded confidence and esteem in all of the relations of life. He has left a wife and two interesting daughters who deeply mourn his death, yet are graciously sustained in their hour of severe trial. His funeral was attended by the writer, at his request, on Sunday, May 26, 1867, assisted by Brothers Jacokes and Joy. We laid him away to rest in the beautiful cemetery at Battle Creek with the congregation of the dead. May his mantle fall upon his brethren in the ministry, and the whole Church bereft feel the force of the inspired truth that "It is better to go to the house of mourning than to the house of feasting."

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

H. Crellin.

Rev. HENRY CRELLIN was born in Philadelphia, Pa., March 19, 1820, and died near Muscatine, Iowa, January 1, 1867, in the forty-ninth year of his age

In his twentieth year he was converted, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in Carroll County, Ohio, demonstrating the sustaining grace of God and the comforting influence of the Holy Spirit until the close of life. In 1854 he removed from Eastern Ohio to Iowa, where he was called to the active work of the ministry. He was received on trial in the Iowa Conference at the session held in Mt. Pleasant, September 30, 1856; was received into full connection at the conference held at Fairfield, September 10, 1858, and was ordained deacon by Bishop Morris, on Sabbath, September 12. At Oskaloosa, on Sabbath, September 2, 1860, he was ordained elder by Bishop Janes. His appointments, as shown by the Minutes, have been: 1856, Denmark; 1857-8, Crawfordsville; 1859-60, Drakeville; 1861, Unionville; 1862, Centerville; 1863, Hamilton; 1864, Bethel; 1865, Kosta; 1866, Muscatine Circuit. As a preacher he was eminently practical, seeking not his own but the Father's glory, and the instruction and salvation of his auditors. He was retiring in his feelings and manners to a fault; meekness of spirit was a characteristic of his nature. As a student he was laborious, and, notwithstanding his quiet and shrinking disposition, at times in the prosecution of truth he became so imbued with the spirit of his Master as to arouse the most careless. His love for the Church was of that noble character that waned not under adversity. He was a zealous defender of truth, an affectionate and faithful pastor, in his pulpit labors clear and earnest, and convincing in his deductions. At the last session of our conference he was in his place, buoyant in spirit, and received his appointment with the prospect of a year of great prosperity. He was permitted only to reach his field of labor when attacked by typhoid malarial fever, which rapidly developed a predisposition to consumption, which soon completed its work. It was my privilege to visit him frequently during his affliction; he was always calm and trustful. When first attacked he expressed a strong desire to recover, that he might continue to labor for souls and care for his family; but as he approached the stream he looked with pleasurable emotions upon the other side. One week before his death he sent for me. On reaching his bedside I found that the silver cord was fast being loosed; but as he gave instruction with reference to his temporal interests there was calmness that said, "The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want. He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; he leadeth me beside still waters. He restoreth my soul; he leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for his name's sake. Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me." All things pertaining to this life being adjusted we enjoyed a season of prayer, in which he engaged with unusual fervency. In answer to the inquiry if he had a message to his brethren of the Iowa Conference, "Yes; tell them I can look back upon my ten years' association with them without a single regret; never have I cherished an unkind thought toward a member of the conference, and I thank them for their kindness and sympathy. Tell them I am now ready to be offered up. My work is done, can I say well done? Yes; God knows I have so desired to do his will. O the riches of his grace! He is my comforter; I shall fear no evil." How true,

> "The chamber where the good man meets his fate
> Is privileged beyond the common walk
> Of virtuous life, quite on the verge of heaven.
> Heaven waits not the last moment, owns its friends
> On this side death, and points them out to men,
> A lecture silent, but of sovereign power,
> To vice confusion and to virtue peace."

He continued in the enjoyment of this heavenly quiet till the afternoon of the 1st of January, when he fell asleep in Jesus without a struggle or a groan.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

J. Peet.

Rev. JAMES PEET was born at Palermo, Oswego County, N. Y., November 18, 1828; died at Anoka, Minnesota, November 26, 1866.

Though not blessed with pious parents, yet at the age of sixteen he began his religious life. His diary has the following entry: "Through the gradual influence of the Sunday-school, and the immediate influence of a love-feast, I began publicly to seek the Lord at a small prayer-meeting in an old log school house, on Sunday P. M., September 1, 1844; joined the Methodist Episcopal Church on probation May 3, 1845, and in full connection January 4, 1846; was licensed to exhort 1850, and to preach 1854." September, 1855, he was admitted as a probationer in the Wisconsin Annual Conference, at Racine, Wisconsin, and was sent to St. Paul as city missionary. When the year was about half out the presiding elder, Rev. D. Brooks, requested him to go to the mission at Lake Superior. Though busily engaged in the work of his mission, and also in teaching in the public schools of the city, where he was exerting a healthful influence, he at once, without question, answered he would go, and was ready in an incredibly short time. The trip was a severe one, and the notes made of it are of thrilling interest. In this region he labored for about five years, not being permitted to attend conference during the time. At the session of our conference at Red Wing, in 1860, he was present and admitted into full connection, and ordained deacon by Bishop Scott, and appointed to Minneapolis Circuit. The next year he was at Anoka, and at the conference at Winona, September 21, 1862, was ordained elder by Bishop Janes, and afterward sent to Vermilion Circuit, to which he was reappointed the second year. Early during the year he left the circuit to act as chaplain of a regiment of colored troops. In this work he was engaged about a year and a half, evincing, as in all other places, the utmost zeal and diligence, winning golden opinions, and accomplishing a blessed work for God. Alas that he could not continue it! Disease struck him down, and he was compelled to cease. At the conference held at Faribault we all remember his earnestness, though so feeble as to attend the session with great difficulty. Here he took a superannuated relation, and he never afterward tried formally to preach. Previous to coming west he was engaged for some time as a teacher at the Five Points' Mission School, New York, where he was greatly beloved. It was the pleasure of your committee to know Brother Peet intimately, and we feel that to know him intimately was to respect him highly, and love him ardently. No more consistent man has ever been among us so far as we know. We find in another place in his diary the following: "From the very first of my publicly seeking religion I have ever made it a principle to bear every cross and do every known duty." This seemed to be the motto of his life everywhere and always. His religious experience was of the highest order, his life most blameless and beautiful. During the last year of his life, though constantly suffering greatly, he was always cheerful and joyous, and his influence in patiently suffering will tell for years upon the community where he resided. For months he enjoyed perfect spiritual rest and beatific joy. He really seemed to have "found glory begun below," and was constantly eating "celestial fruit on earthly ground." He used often to say in class meetings, "Brethren, I have been coasting along Jordan hunting for the crossing. Perhaps you would like to know how it seems along the bank of the river. Well, it is all pleasant here." Thus for the last year of his life (indeed for many years before, we might say) lived James Peet. Need we ask how he died? Like Stephen, seeing heaven open and Jesus sitting at the right hand of God to receive him, he quietly went to sleep in the Beloved.

1. Rev. JOHN M. LANE was born in Madison County, Ohio, October 26, 1826, and died August 7, 1867, in the forty-first year of his age. When about eighteen years old he gave his heart to the Saviour, and found peace in believing, uniting at the same time with the Methodist Episcopal Church. In 1852 he received a license to exhort, and in the spring of 1853 a license to preach. At the session of the Illinois Conference of that year he was received on trial, and appointed as junior preacher on Mechanicsburg Circuit. The next year he was appointed to the same position on Jacksonville Circuit. In 1855 he was ordained deacon, and appointed to the charge of the Concord Circuit, which he traveled for two years. In 1857 he was ordained elder, and assigned to the Livingston Circuit. In the fall of 1858 he was married to his now bereaved companion, having been assigned to the Athens Circuit, on which he continued two years. In 1860 his charge was the Springfield Circuit. At the next conference he was appointed to Moawequa, which he traveled for one year acceptably and usefully. In the fall of 1862 he enlisted in the army, receiving a commission as captain in the one hundred and fifteenth regiment of Illinois volunteers. During his stay in the army Brother Lane not only maintained his Christian character, but labored as faithfully in pastoral work with his men and in preaching to his regiment as though he had been commissioned chaplain instead of captain. His health failing after nine months' service he was compelled to resign, and in the fall of 1863 he was appointed to Charleston Station. But still continuing feeble at the next session of conference he was granted a superannuated relation, which was continued in 1865. In the spring of the next year, having partially recovered, he was appointed by the presiding elder to the charge of the Concord Circuit, the preacher having left it. At the next session of conference he was assigned to the new charge in Jacksonville, without a church or congregation, or even a single member. How he succeeded the rising walls of the new Brooklyn church testify. After serving the charge faithfully for about ten months he ceased at once to work and live.

Brother Lane was a good man. Converted in early life, he grew rapidly in grace and in the knowledge and love of God. As a minister of the Gospel he was faithful and successful. In most of the charges to which he was assigned his labors were attended with good revivals, and many, doubtless, in the day of eternity will rise up and call him blessed. His last illness was of only twenty-four hours' duration. Returning on the 6th of August from a visit to a dying brother in Ohio, while enjoying, apparently, his usual health he was stricken down suddenly with disease, and after suffering intensely until about the same hour on the following day was then released from his sufferings. From the time he was taken he seemed to think that his sickness was unto death. He urged his weeping companion to bring up their two little ones for God. When asked about his sufferings he replied, "I am suffering intensely, but my Saviour suffered much more for me. Yet if it is the Lord's will to take me I would be glad if he would take me now." When asked if he was happy he said, "I am very happy, and ready to go." For the last three hours he was unable to speak, though apparently conscious. Thus died John M. Lane, a good man, a faithful minister, a loyal citizen, a brave soldier, a true friend, and a loving husband and father.

2. Rev. John V. W. Baumann was born at Beaufort, Highland County, Ohio, February 22, 1841. He died at Bloomington, Illinois, July 17, 1867. His mother died when he was but one year old, his father when he was but eleven, so that he knew but little of parental care and affection. For his early culture he was dependent chiefly upon his grandfather and a pious aunt. At an early age he manifested an earnest desire for a liberal education, in which his grandfather did not sympathize and would not aid him, and at the age of seventeen he left home, resolved to seek a collegiate education by his own unaided efforts. He joined the Church as a seeker of religion in 1857, but was not converted until September 23, 1858, mainly because he felt that conversion carried with it for him a call to the ministry, and not until then could he make the sacrifice. He was licensed to preach in August, 1859, and traveled the Middletown Circuit, Illinois Conference, in 1859–60, with much acceptability. In September, 1860, he entered the Illinois Wesleyan University as a student in the scientific course, depending on his own unaided efforts for support, laboring hard out of college hours for the means of educating himself, shrinking from no labor or privation, if he might but continue his studies. "I can bear," said he, "to live hard, to dress in rags, and to work early and late, but I cannot bear to leave college till I have completed a course of study." He graduated in June, 1863. In 1864 he supplied the Tonica Station, Central Illinois Conference, for two months, and the Danville Station, Illinois Conference, five months. In the fall he joined the Illinois Conference and was sent to Paxton Station, and in 1866 to Mattoon Station. In the last charge excessive labor and exposure brought on disease of the lungs, from which, after lingering a few months, he died. As a student Brother Baumann was earnest, manly, persevering; as a pastor he was methodical, faithful, laborious, and successful; as a Christian, in college, in the army, and in the ministry, he proved himself pure as gold tried in the fire. His memory is pleasant to those he leaves behind, but his record and his reward are on high. He leaves a wife and two children to mourn his loss.

C. Dierking.

1. Rev. CHARLES DIERKING was born in Bierde, Prussia, November 17, 1819. He came to America April 19, 1841, being then twenty-two years of age, and made his home with an elder brother of his, who lived in the state of Indiana. In the spring of 1843, in Louisville, Kentucky, under the labors of Rev. Engelhard Riemenschneider, who is now a missionary in Germany, he became awakened, and soon after found peace in Christ and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church. He at once enlisted, with all that warmth which always characterized him, upon a religious life, and soon became noted for his fervency of spirit and regularity in attendance upon the means of grace. In the year 1849 he was licensed to preach, and in the fall of the same year he was received on trial into the Ohio Conference, and appointed to the Boonville Circuit, in the state of Indiana. His new relation to the Church led him only the closer to the Lord. Here he labored two years. His ordination shows that on the 22d of September, 1850, he was ordained deacon by Bishop Janes, and was then connected with the Southeastern Indiana Conference. In the year 1852, February 10, he was ordained elder by Bishop Baker. His fields of labor during this time were Madison-street, Louisville, Kentucky; Lawrenceburgh, Indiana; and Aurora. In the last of these appointments he remained but three months, and was then transferred to the California Annual Conference. On the 1st of March, 1856, in company with Rev. G. H. Bollinger, and both accompanied by their wives, he landed at San Francisco. Stockton German Mission became his first field of labor, and there he spent two years and six months. He was then successively stationed at Sacramento, Marysville, and San Francisco. While stationed at the former places he made also frequent preaching tours to Grass Valley, Nevada, Dutch Flat, and other places; and many, doubtless, who heard his warm exhortations on these occasions were led to seriousness and prayer. From San Francisco he went back to Stockton, and after another term of one year and five months he has passed on to his reward above. The peculiarities of Brother Dierking's pulpit efforts consisted in a presentation of the truth with warmth and tenderness, and his fervency of spirit has led many to a closer walk with God. The following extract, sent at the time of his death to the California Christian Advocate, contains a short account of his life and labors, and we subjoin it here:

"Rev. Dr. Thomas: I have just returned from Stockton, to which place I was called on the 11th instant to attend dear Brother Dierking, pastor of our German Churches there and at Sacramento, in the last hours of his earthly pilgrimage. I found him suffering with hardening of the liver and typhoid fever. He was unable to speak, and was fast making for the better shore; yet he seemed to recognize me and several gentlemen who had gone up with me. On Saturday, the 13th instant, at half past four o'clock A. M., he gained the port. He had been confined in bed about four weeks, and had suffered much; but his mind had been perfectly peaceful, and he had expressed himself as fully resigned to the will of God, either for life or death. He had made some requests about his funeral, desiring that, as the German church was too small to receive all that he knew would want to attend the services, he might be taken to the English church, and that I might preach his funeral sermon, giving Rev. xiv, 13 as the text. A large number both of German and English people attended. Brother David Deal, pastor of the Church, also addressed the congregation, and other city pastors took part in the services.

2. Rev. ISAAC OWEN* was born in Milton, Vermont, on the 8th of March, 1809. In 1811 his parents moved to Indiana, in which state, to use his own language, he was left a fatherless boy in 1824. His subsequent early training, by this bereavement, devolved on his mother, who performed her part so well that her son, for whom she had much anxiety, was converted and joined the Church in his sixteenth year. His early life was a struggle with poverty. His widowed mother was left with little save a shelter in the forest of Knox County, Indiana. Amid these solemn forests, surrounded with nature's open book, visited occasionally by an itinerant Methodist preacher, and favored with the living example and instruction of a Christian mother, our brother received mainly his mental and religious training. It proved sufficient to decide his choice for God and his work; a choice to which he adhered with singular pertinacity through a somewhat long and varied life of toil and temptation. In the twenty-third year of his age, and fifth of his membership in the Church, he was licensed to preach, and in 1834 was recommended and received into the Indiana Annual Conference. For fourteen years up to the time he was appointed missionary to California he filled without interruption the regular appointments given him in that conference. Four years of the time he served with great efficiency as agent of the Indiana Asbury University, and succeeded in bringing to the aid of the trustees of that institution the noble sum of sixty-three thousand dollars. The close of this agency terminated his residence in that state, and in 1848 he received a transfer, and in 1849 came over the plains as missionary to California. Amid the great labors and trials incident to this peculiar field of toil he evinced great zeal and industry. He had the confidence of his brethren, for they knew his singleness of purpose and love of the Church. Upon his arrival in California the interests of the work were mainly placed in his hands; for many years he filled the office of presiding elder; twice he was elected to General Conference; once upon the non-arrival of the bishop he was chosen to fill his place and preside in the conference; and he was always among the foremost in our Church and literary enterprises. And to no one who has labored for her interest is California more, if as much, indebted for the progress that has been made in morals and social reform. His death was sudden, and unexpected to his brethren. What seemed at first a trivial accident to his hand had proved the cause of great suffering and physical prostration. On coming home from the Santa Cruz quarterly meeting he could scarcely retain his place in the saddle, and had to be assisted from his horse. The brethren in San Francisco, the place of his next meeting, learning of his prostrate condition, kindly sent word that they would excuse him, while all pecuniary obligations should be met as if he were there. But he could not be prevailed on to rest. He went to the city, and on Friday morning crossed the bay to Oakland, filling an appointment, and returned in the afternoon. In the evening, having an appointment in the Folsom-street German Church, he went to deliver an address to those present, and conducted the business of the quarterly conference as usual. This was his last public service. He grew worse, retired to the parsonage in connection with the Church of his last service, where he lingered till Friday, February 9, one o'clock, when he breathed his last. In his last days he had the soothing attention of his wife and kind ministerial brethren, together with the best medical advice. His ruling passion, to labor for the Church, was manifest in his affliction, but it was in harmony with the will of God. His words in the brief period of his last illness were few, but they were in unison with his life and sacred calling. To one he spoke of how delightful it would be to go and enjoy the Christian's reward. When desired to try and rest, he said, "I shall soon be at rest." To a brother minister he said, "The waves are dashing around me; but I have measured the depth of the waters; they will bear me to a peaceful shore." Again he said, "The river is cold and deep, but calm." Thus passed away our beloved Brother Owen, after nearly thirty-two years of uninterrupted employment in the vineyard of the Lord. Industry, zeal, and faithfulness marked his life; resignation, serenity, and hope his dying hours; and heaven's holy rest, the Saviour's glory, is the unending reward.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

E. C. Sanborn.

Rev. E. C. SANBORN was born in Bath, N. H., June 12, 1794, and died at the residence of his son, Hon. L. R. Sanborn, Niagara County, N. Y., April 20, 1867. Soon after his conversion he felt it his duty to preach the Gospel. As he had previously marked out for himself a path in life which he regarded as one of ease, honor, and wealth, it was no easy matter for him to have those plans frustrated, as they would be by his entering upon the duties of the ministry. One event after another occurred to convince him more than ever, if possible, that God had a work for him to do, which he must do or hazard the interest of his soul. At length a portion of one of his hands became maimed for life; that hand while yet bleeding he held toward heaven and promised God that he would no longer resist his convictions of duty, and before the wound was healed he began to preach a crucified and risen Redeemer. The conviction and conversion of souls, which immediately followed as the results of his efforts, were to him additional evidence of his call to the holy ministry. In 1833 he joined the Genesee Conference, and continued in the effective work until 1844, when his health so failed him that his medical adviser gave him distinctly to understand that such was the complicated nature of his disease that he must wholly desist from the work of the ministry. He evidenced a high appreciation of the varied duties of the ministry, and an ardent desire so to perform them that at last he might not be found wanting. He was familiar with and a firm believer in the doctrines of our Church, and an ardent admirer of her polity. He labored earnestly and successfully in the circulation of our religious literature, leaving to his family a complete file of the Christian Advocate and Journal from the first issue to the close of the last volume. In the community in which he resided from the time of his superannuation to his death, he was beloved as a neighbor and highly respected as a Christian minister. The closing years of his life were marked with a readiness to go whenever it should please his Master to call him. His death was preceded by protracted and severe sufferings, which for months required and received the constant and kindest attention of his pious and devoted wife. He rests from his labors and dwells with God.

QUEST. 12. Who have Died this year?

J. Frost, A. S. W. M'Causland, C. M. Webster —3.

1. Rev. JOHN FROST was born in Canada East in the year 1834. He was converted to God in Lowell, Massachusetts, in the year 1856. He came to this state in 1858, and united with the Rock River Conference in 1860. He first preached under the presiding elder at Dement; then, on joining the conference, was appointed successively to Prophetstown, Albany, Lighthouse Point, Newark, Fulton, and Morrison. He died on the 22d of June, 1867, in the triumphs of the Gospel which he delighted to preach. John Frost was a man of marked peculiarities, which appeared in all his sermons, prayers, and songs. An intimate acquaintance with him, however, revealing an honest heart and a fearless devotion to truth, disarmed unfriendly criticism. He felt and evinced the lack of early culture; but with a mind of great originality and wonderful activity, a memory exceedingly retentive, a will inflexible to ordinary difficulties, and above all a rich experience of the grace of God, he became one of our strong men in the pulpit, the Sunday-school, and the pastorate. Work was his element. His ruling passion was strong in death. Shortly before his decease it was suggested to him that though he was dying in the prime of life there would be employment for him in heaven. "Yes," said he, just as only John Frost could say it. "Yes, I know; Jesus is there. He was never lazy. He never loitered. He cannot live without activity, and I hope to be where he is." His departure was all that a Christian minister could desire. He left a wife and three children, whom in his last moments he affectionately commended to God and to the word of his grace.

2. Rev. A. S. W. M'CAUSLAND was born in Virginia June 6, 1825. He died in Ogle, Illinois, April 15, 1867. He was converted at the age of seventeen, licensed to exhort in 1846, and admitted to the Rock River Conference in 1851. Excepting three years, he continued in the active work of the itinerant ministry to the time of his death. His appointments were as follows: M'Henry, Paw Paw, Little Rock, Wyanet, Lamoil, North Prairie, Milledgeville, and Ogle. Brother M'Causland was emphatically a good man, full of faith and the Holy Ghost. His life was wholly given to God, and when called to die he was found ready. His death was triumphant. In his last moments he exclaimed, "All is bright." His light went not out in darkness. It is only hidden from us in the brighter light of heaven.

3. Rev. CALVARY M. WEBSTER was born in Ohio in 1832. He graduated at the Ohio Wesleyan University, as valedictorian of his class, in 1853. In the following year he was licensed to preach. He came to this state in 1856. In 1860 he joined the Rock River Conference, and was appointed to the following places: Hanover, Kingston, Cortland, Fair Haven, and Lee Center. As a preacher he was earnest, often eloquent, always practical and sound; as a pastor he was energetic and efficient; as a Christian he was exemplary; his piety, never demonstrative, was always consistent. He came to Dixon, the seat of the annual conference, enfeebled in health, and attended the session at the commencement; was attacked with hemorrhage of the lungs, and died at ten o'clock on Sabbath morning, October 6, perfectly resigned to his Master's will, and happy in the privilege of dying in the midst of his brethren.

1. Rev. DAVID LEWIS was born in the state of Connecticut, February, 1783. At the age of seven he was the subject of awakening grace, and began to form the purpose to be good. At the age of thirteen he was enabled to rely wholly on the great atonement of Jesus Christ by faith, and feel the joys of pardoned sin. In his own language, "My guilt was gone; the precious blood of Jesus Christ had washed away my sins, and I was filled with peace and love." Here was the foundation of that long and systematic Christian character which adorned him living, and which, dying, he has left as a rich legacy to the Church of God. From the hour of his conversion he felt he was called of God to the ministry. But he felt he could not assume its responsibilities. On the 3d of October, 1802, he was united in marriage with Miss Desire Stuart; moved to Plattsville, New York, bought a farm, cleared out the trees, and built a house. He opened his door to the itinerants who came through the sparsely settled country to preach to the people. He united with the Methodist Episcopal Church on the 13th of June, 1802, and in the October following his wife united with him. His convictions of duty now increased. His worldly prospects were blighted, and he only heard "Woe is me if I preach not the Gospel." It was a soul struggle between duty and desire. On the one hand was home with its quiet competence and independence; on the other a life of toil, care, and houseless wandering. But if the conflict was sharp, the victory was complete. On the 20th day of March, 1809, he was enabled to lay wife, children, himself—all he had and was—upon the altar of God. This offering he never took back to the day of his death. Amid the snows of Canada, the piercing lake winds of New York, the swamps of the Maumee, the mud of Ohio, in cabin lofts, in the wilderness or in the city, in want and in fullness, he reckoned himself as consecrated to God and humanity. He was licensed on Saturday, and started to preach on the next Monday. Having traveled Durham and Fletcher Circuits under the elder he was admitted in 1811 to the New York Conference, and filled the following appointments: Grand Isle, Brandon, Charlotte, Brandon, Pownal, Cambridge, Beam, Kingston. In 1826 he moved to Ohio, and filled Fairfield, Delaware, Pickaway, Deer Creek, Marietta, Adelphi, Granville, Lithopolis, Hebron, Granville, Blendon, Johnstown, Irville, Hebron, Thornville, Granville, Hebron, Baltimore, Pickerington, and Groveport. He filled his appointments with great acceptability and usefulness, having preached the Gospel fifty-eight years. Mr. Lewis was a man of clear understanding, great courage, and pure heart. He was emphatically the young man's friend. His person was manly and commanding; his voice strong, clear, and musical; his gestures easy and graceful. To the day of his death he kept up with the times. Great success attended his ministry. Thousands will rise up to call him blessed. His last were his best days. Grace divine had sweetened and sanctified his spirit for the better land. His last illness was protracted, and he suffered much, but enjoyed for weeks the complete triumphs of grace. To most who read this Mr. Lewis is only known as a feeble and worn man. They have seen his ripe piety, his cheerful and hopeful spirit. But the laborious and efficient Lewis of forty years since they did not know. Then his zeal was a furnace, his eyes a flame, his voice a trumpet, while with his eloquent appeals he stirred the masses as the storm stirs the forests. After professing Christ for seventy years, as he approached life's close, on being asked by the writer how it looked beyond the flood, he exclaimed, "Light, brother, light! Tell my brethren of the Ohio Conference that in death, as in life, I am with them for the conversion of the world." Thus, surrounded by his aged wife and remaining children, he passed sweetly away on the 1st of August, 1867, in the eighty-fifth year of his age. Few men have lived to be more beloved; few have died more regretted.

2. Rev. JOSEPH CARPER was born in Pendleton County, Virginia, in the year 1789. He was the son of Abraham Carper and Amelia Harness. At seven years of age he was set to work on the farm, where he continued until he went into the army. Here he was hardened into that physical manhood and acquired those habits of industry which characterized his life. He attended, at a distance of three miles from home, a school which lasted three months each year. This, with the study of his book in the corner when his day's work was done, comprised his academic and collegiate course. Here he graduated with those honors which, in after-life, adorned the brow of manhood. His mother's conversion, when he was eleven years of age, was the commencement of that glorious work of grace in the family which resulted in bringing to Jesus the parents, all the children, and many of the servants and neighbors. The house of his father soon became the home of the weary itinerant, and a preaching place until a church was built. Soon after, under the labors of that man of God, Noah Fiddler, while at a two days' meeting, Rev. Mr. Camden, a local preacher, was shadowing forth coming wrath upon the finally impenitent, Joseph fell, and for three hours was helpless. The ministers and members engaged with and for him in prayer, until by faith he was enabled to cast himself wholly on Christ and realize the joys of pardoned sin. His witness was clear. To the day he died he never doubted his conversion. Two years after he was licensed to preach by Rev. Jacob Gruber. From the hour of his conversion he felt that he was called of God to preach the Gospel. He went into the army to stifle his convictions, but it was of no avail. Whether on the march or in camp or on parade, he heard still, "Woe is me if I preach not the Gospel." After his return Rev. Christopher Fry was appointed presiding elder of the district, and in a conversation with young Joseph became satisfied that God had called him to preach, and urged him to duty. But he said, "I cannot; I have not been educated for the work." So clear were the convictions of Mr. Fry that he went to the society to which Carper belonged, and, without stopping for a quarterly conference, and forgetting to have him licensed to preach, obtained a recommendation from the society for his admission as a traveling preacher, on which he was admitted to the Baltimore Conference in 1816. This year he was appointed to Monongahela Circuit. In 1817 he was sent to East Wheeling; in 1818 to Ohio Circuit and ordained deacon. In 1819 Bishop George, on his way to the Ohio Conference, took Carper with him and appointed him to Barnesville Circuit. In 1820 he was returned to Barnesville, and ordained elder by Bishop Roberts. He then filled Knox, Lancaster, Athens two years, and Columbus two years. August 22, 1827, he was married to Miss Jane Harper, who survives him. His next appointments were Zanesville Station, Zanesville Circuit two years, Muskingum two years, Marietta Station, Rushville two years, Granville, and Columbus Station. At the close of this year he received a location, which continued three years. In 1[illegible] he was readmitted, and afterward filled Athens, Kingston, Baltimore, Rehoboth, Asbury, Thornville, and Logan. In 1848 he was located and thus remained, preaching as his health would permit; in 1855 readmitted and superannuated, and died a member of the Ohio Conference.

Brother Carper was a man of large and compact frame, hence capable of great endurance. His voice was strong and clear, and as it sounded out from the cabins, court-houses, and camp-grounds crowds were attracted by its power and captivated by its sweetness. He took a clear view of his subject, and being a natural logician his arguments were compact and conclusive. He also possessed what few logicians do, well developed rhetorical powers, by which in impassioned strains he impressed his thoughts on the hearts of his hearers. There was a peculiar originality and variety in his sermons, which were always delivered with great pathos and attended with a divine unction. He had many seals to his ministry. On his first circuit two hundred and fifty were added to the Church; and while on Rushville Circuit with Rev. Jacob Young, of precious memory, eleven hundred united with the Church, many of whom are still alive to testify in the love-feasts to the power which attended his ministrations. He thoroughly understood and loved our doctrines and discipline, and was a rigid administrator. He was a man of strong likes and dislikes. He examined and formed opinions of the men and subjects which came within his range, and seldom found it necessary to change them to suit the age. By some, when viewed at a distance he was regarded as a stern, cold man; but coming near they met an open hand and a warm heart. He was a man of great industry, and led a laborious life. He was prompt to meet his engagements, and missed few appointments. As a husband he was affectionate; as a father, kind; as a neighbor, obliging and beloved. He was a man of strong faith in God and of much prayer; and as he approached the end of his journey he was enabled to let go his grasp on the world and reconsecrate himself to God. Grace divine mellowed and molded his spirit for the better land. For several years he had been nearly helpless from a stroke of paralysis. He looked daily for his change. A second stroke, on the 21st of August, 1867, rendered him speechless, yet he retained consciousness up to the last. Thus he lingered until the 27th, when, surrounded by wife, children, grandchildren, and kind neighbors, he closed life's painful pilgrimage, aged seventy-eight years. After professing Christ sixty years, and preaching him fifty-one years, he went home to rest. Thus pass away those we love and those who love us.

3. Rev. C. C. LYBRAND was born in Philadelphia, Pa., August 20, 1800, and died in Greenfield, Ohio, April 19, 1867. He came to Ohio in 1811, and was married to Miss Susannah Wallace in 1820. Brother Lybrand was brought under conviction by the preaching of Father Collins in 1829, and after six weeks was converted to God. He then felt it his duty to preach, and having been reared a Lutheran, his parents desired him to enter the ministry of that Church. But he did not feel inclined that way; he loved the Methodist Church, and under the patronage of Father Collins was duly recommended to the traveling connection. He was received on probation at Lancaster, Ohio, and appointed with Rev. Z. Connell to Columbus Circuit in 1830. For thirty-six years he did the work of an itinerant, except that for two years he located that he might attend to the wants of his aged and deeply afflicted mother. His appointments were as follows: 1830, Columbus; 1831, Granville; 1832, Cambridge; 1833–34, Deer Creek; 1835, Washington; 1836, Bainbridge; 1837, Hillsborough; 1838, Piketon; 1839, Adelphia; 1840, Circleville; 1841–42, located; 1843, Lithopolis; 1844, Worthington; 1845, Baltimore; 1846, Gallipolis; 1847, Deer Creek; 1848, Granville; 1849, Irville; 1850, Hebron; 1851, Putnam; 1852, Asbury; 1853, Rehoboth; 1854–55, West Rushville; 1856–57, Groveport; 1858, Pickerington; 1859, Alexandria; 1860–61, Baltimore; 1862–63, Asbury; 1864, Pickerington; and in 1865 he was placed on the superannuated list. As a preacher, in the earlier days of his ministry, his efforts were characterized by great zeal and fervor, and were attended with marked success; in his latter days, however, owing to the decline of his physical strength, he was more calm and deliberate in his manner, but always clear and impressive in his pulpit efforts. Brother Lybrand, by his fine social qualities and his Christian spirit, greatly endeared himself to those whom he served as pastor, causing them to feel that in him they had a warm personal friend. For a year previous to his death Brother Lybrand was in very feeble health, and lived in constant expectation of his change. He died of congestion of the lungs, with which he was attacked about twenty-four hours before his death. From the first it was evident that the time of his departure was at hand. When asked if there was any message he wished sent to his brethren of the conference, he said, "Tell them the Gospel I have preached is not 'a cunningly devised fable.'" At another time he said, "The best of all is, all is well." One inquired, "Brother Lybrand, you have found this religion sweeter than life; do you now find it stronger than death?" The answer was an emphatic "O yes." Two religious services were held in his room, consisting in part of the reading of the twenty-third Psalm. His attention was perfect, and his responses fervent. After making a disposition of his private affairs he remarked, "As to anything else, I am ready to die; I have no fear, no doubt; the religion I have for so many years preached to others sustains me now." Thus, perfectly calm and self-possessed, he passed away from earth to the better land.

4. DAVID H. CHERRINGTON, son of Jefferson and Mary Cherrington, was born in Monroe County, Va., April 2, 1830. He was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church in his tenth year; licensed to preach by Rev. R. O. Spence, and admitted on trial in the Ohio Conference, in 1853. He traveled successively the following circuits:—Rockville, Dunbarton, Wilksville, Hamden, Jackson, Centerville, Patriot, and Mount Pleasant; having been effective twelve years. During the last year, while engaged in a protracted meeting, earnestly laboring for the salvation of souls, his health gave way, and he suffered considerably during the remainder of the year; and, at the conference of 1865, held in Portsmouth, Ohio, he was placed on the superannuate list. He moved to the home of his youth, near Gallipolis, where he continued gradually, but surely, to fail, until September 26, 1866, when he quietly and sweetly fell asleep in Jesus, while his brethren were assembled in conference at Columbus.

He was married August 31, 1854, to Martha J., daughter of Daniel and Rebecca Kenyon, of Adams County, Ohio. He leaves a wife and five children, who mourn the loss of a kind father and affectionate husband.

Brother Cherrington was a remarkably genial, pleasant, and sweet-spirited man, full of sympathy and kindness. Yet he stood up uncompromisingly for truth and right, not allowing his sympathies to lead him to compromise with error or screen a guilty party. He administered discipline firmly, and yet with such kindness and conscientiousness as to impress all with a sense of his honesty, integrity, and deep devotion to the interests of our beloved Zion.

During his protracted affliction he was a model of patience, cheerfulness, and resignation to the will of God. In the last love-feast he ever attended he remarked, in substance: "I bring in my report from the vale of affliction. God has been with me there, and I have sweet peace and communion with him. I know not what shall be the result of this affliction, and I have but little choice, for God doeth all things well. Sometimes I feel almost impatient to be free and go to join the company that has crossed over before. But I am willing to wait, and either do or suffer the will of God." Rev. J. W. Lewis visited him shortly before his death. He found him very weak, but composed and happy, calmly waiting the call of his Master. Brother Cherrington said: "Tell my brethren of the Ohio Conference I shall never meet them again on earth, but I expect to meet them all in heaven." He was a deeply pious man, professing, defending, and, what is better, exemplifying in his life the old Methodist doctrine of sanctification or entire devotion to God.

May we, his brethren of the Ohio Conference, so live as finally to hail him on the radiant shore, "gather with him at the river," and sit down with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob in the kingdom of God!

5. REV. WILLIAM Z. ROSS.—William Z. Ross was born in Licking County, Ohio, April 24, 1823. Under the regulation of a well-ordered economy, which the enjoyment of religion seldom, if ever, fails to produce in the family where its genuine influence is felt, he was instructed in the way of life and salvation as soon as he was capable of receiving any instruction whatever. When a small boy his parents both died; but their pious example and teachings had a powerful influence upon his mind and heart. At the age of sixteen he professed faith in Christ while at secret prayer in a grove, and about the same time united with the Methodist Episcopal Church. For several years he served the Church in the capacity of class leader, and with much usefulness. In 1850 he was licensed to preach by the Johnstown quarterly conference. As a local preacher he labored zealously and effectively. In the fall of 1852 he was employed as a supply on West Jefferson Circuit, and at the conference in the fall of 1853 he was admitted on trial in the Ohio Conference, and appointed to the same circuit. He labored two consecutive years each on Dublin, Pickerington, and Baltimore Circuits, and Alexandria Station, and one year each on West Rushville, Granville, and Tarleton Circuits. In 1865 he was appointed by Bishop Clark missionary to Tennessee, and stationed at Shelbyville, where he remained one year, and was then transferred to the Church triumphant. On all his appointments in the Ohio Conference Brother Ross worked with all his heart and might. There were in repeated instances powerful and long-continued revivals of religion where he labored. In the varied walks of life, where his familiar footsteps were heard, in the scenes in which he mingled, in the pulpit, in the church, in the meeting for penitents, in the social circle of friends, in the more retired walks of life, in the sacred precincts of the family, as a husband, a father, and a friend, his example radiated the beams of Christian benevolence and kindness all along his path.

His preaching was marked by extraordinary force and pungency of application. He had great confidence in the power of truth. He enforced the claims of the Gospel with all his energies, and turned the whole of his preaching into an appeal to conscience. In the administering of the word and the sacraments he was solemn and impressive. His unaffected manner of conducting the services of the sanctuary were strikingly indicative of a lively sense of the divine presence. He preached not with "the enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power." He possessed in a high degree, the Christ-like principle of sympathy. Among all classes with whom he labored his feelings were at once enlisted in their anxieties, hopes, fears, disappointments, bereavements; even in their welfare as to affairs of this life, as well as of the life to come. This gave him, in a marked degree, access to the hearts of the young, the middle-aged, and the old. He was a man of great energy of character, and remarkable for earnestness in every enterprise upon which he entered.

When the call was made for men to supply our work in the South, with the full knowledge that he would there meet with much bitter opposition from those not in sympathy either with our Church or government, after several consultations with Bishop Clark and much prayer, Brother Ross consented to go, and in the name of the God of liberty and justice, truth and righteousness, unfurl the banner of our Immanuel in Tennessee. He went, he worked, he died. Brother Hoffman, his successor at Shelbyville, writes thus: "Brother Ross needs no written eulogy. The fruits of his labors speak for him. His toil in this field has been arduous, his persecutions were great, his persecutors many. They are now left with the reflection that in the persecution of this servant they persecuted the Saviour. Yet, unpretendingly he moved forward, and God made clear the way before him. Success followed him in everything he undertook here. He was engaged in organizing the Methodist Episcopal Church at this place, and in building for the society a valuable church edifice. The year he spent here resulted in the gathering in of nearly one hundred members in society, organizing a fine Sabbath-school, and carrying up half way the walls of the church."

He died at Shelbyville, October 11, 1866. His disease was cholera. Brother Hoffman further writes:

"His last moments were characterized by patience, meekness, and love. He bade farewell to all in the room, blessed and prayed for his affectionate wife and children, and praised the pardoning and saving mercies of the Lord Jesus." He said to his heart-stricken wife, "dying is not a dark way, as some suppose; all is bright before me;" and, pointing upward, he said, "The cross! the cross!" when the chariot of Israel arrived, in which, under convoy of angels, he took his departure to his final home in heaven.

KANSAS CONFERENCE.

C. H. EDGERTON was born in Albany, N.Y., February 27, 1829, where he was educated generally, and specially in music. He was converted while on a visit to his sister in Little Falls, N.Y., in 1852, and was received into the Troy Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1857, and was ordained elder by Bishop Ames at the conference held in Albany, April, 1861.

He was elected professor of music in the Fort Edward Institute, at Fort Edward, N. Y., under the presidency of Rev. Dr. King, and for more than three years superintended that department with efficiency and great acceptance, having from two to three hundred music pupils under his charge. His convictions of duty, however, compelled him to abandon this pleasant and remunerative position, and devote himself to the regular ministry.

When the war broke out his patriotism prompted him to take active measures in influencing the organization of companies and regiments of bold defenders of our national flag. He prayed, preached, and urged the national defense against the wicked rebellion; and finally offered himself and his services in his country's defense, and he received a commission from Governor Morgan as chaplain of the 93d regiment of New York Volunteers, January 23, 1862. He was with his regiment in the army of the Potomac during some five months of the subsequent spring and early summer, and while thus camping in the Chickahominy swamps, performing all the duties of a chaplain and a soldier, under severe exposure, he contracted disease and broke down in health, and, on account of severe sickness and complete prostration, received an honorable discharge, and after reaching his home was a long time confined to his bed.

He subsequently partially recovered, and entered upon his duties as a minister of the Gospel; and while stationed at Middleton, Vt., concluded an engagement with the trustees of Baker University as professor of music, believing that the dry and salubrious air of Kansas, with its mild climate, would improve his health.

He was transferred to the Kansas Conference, and entered upon his duties as music teacher in the University in September, 1865, and, with a class of fifty pupils, demonstrated his ability as a thorough teacher. His fine social qualities and high Christian character secured for him the affection of his class, and a large circle of warm friends. At the end of the first year of his labors in the college it was evident that his health was failing. He had the best of medical treatment during the summer, and he at times felt quite sanguine of speedy and complete recovery. In September last he made a great effort to take charge of his department, but a few days proved to him the sad fact that he could no longer master or endure the labor and care of his responsible position. He gradually declined, until about the first of December, when it became evident to his friends that he must soon leave the scenes of earth; and in the enjoyment of all the faculties of his mind, in perfect peace with God, and a bright hope of a better land, he without a struggle, on the third of December, 1866, breathed his last.

Resolutions passed by the students, faculty, and trustees of Baker University are clearly indicative of the esteem and love in which he was held by his associates.

MICHIGAN CONFERENCE.

Rev. HIRAM LAW, who for twenty-four years had been an active and efficient colaborer with us as a minister of Christ, closed his useful life at Mosherville on the evening of Sunday, September 9, 1866. The circumstances of his death were peculiarly solemn and impressive. He was in attendance at the last session of this conference, at Hillsdale, in apparent improved health and buoyancy of spirits. He remarked to the writer, on the day previous to his death, that he was never better or stronger to labor than at the present time. On Sunday P. M. he left the seat of the conference to fill a previously-made appointment among his former friends and parishioners. He selected as his text 2 Corinthians, ii, 14—"Thanks be unto God which always causeth us to triumph in Christ"—and from these significant words is said to have preached with unusual pathos and power. His whole soul warmed and glowed with his subject. At the close of the services he came into the altar, exhorting as he came; and, raising his hands as if pointing to heaven, exclaimed—"Glory to God! Halleluiah!"—when he staggered and fell, partly into the arms of his wife, who sprang forward to his support, and, without a struggle, instantly expired. On the following day his remains were brought back to the seat of the conference, where a memorial service was held, Bishop Simpson, Brothers Crawford, Gillett, and others participating therein. On the following day the conference attended the body to the depot at Hillsdale, and placed it upon the train for Grass Lake, under the charge of Rev. D. D. Gillett. Upon the arrival of the funeral train at the latter place an appropriate sermon was preached by Rev. William Perine, of the Detroit Conference, and the burial service read by Rev. D. D. Gillett, and amid sobs and tears he was laid to rest in the unbroken slumbers of the grave.

Hiram Law was the son of Simeon and Hannah Law. He was born at Leroy, New York, September 4, 1816. Early in youth he came to this state. At the age of eighteen years he was converted to God. His conversion was clear and satisfactory, and with it came the conviction that God had called him to the work of the ministry. His feelings were at times so deeply exercised upon the duty of entering the work as to nearly overcome him. By night and by day he felt, "Woe is me if I preach not the Gospel." He plead various excuses, but in vain—"the Master had need of him." He was duly licensed to preach, and entered upon his itinerant career in 1840. He first traveled the Clarkston Circuit, under the presiding elder of the Detroit District. He was admitted upon probation in this conference in 1841. During the period of his probation he traveled the Truago and Manchester Circuits, both of which are now in the bounds of the Detroit Conference. In the fall of 1843 he was duly admitted into full membership in the conference, and appointed to the Grass Lake Circuit, where his body now reposes. At this place he was united in marriage with Miss Sarah Longyear, who a few years preceded him to the reward of the faithful in heaven. He successively traveled the Eaton Rapids, Utica, Birmingham, and Port Huron, and again Grass Lake and South Albion Circuits. From the latter charge he was placed upon the Lansing District, where he remained the full period of his constitutional term, ingratiating himself deeply in the affections of both preachers and people. From the Lansing District he was appointed to the Niles, Litchfield, and Centerville charges, upon each of which he remained two years successively.

As a preacher, Brother Law may be said to have been superlatively good, though, perhaps, not what might be called either profound or brilliant. He addressed the sensibilities and moral feelings, rather than the intellect and reason. He spoke to the heart and consciousness of his hearers as few men could speak. The sympathies of his own warm and genial nature flowed forth in yearning love for the salvation of his hearers. As a minister he was abundant in labors, and also abundant in the success of his labors.

Brother Law was a ripe, mature Christian man. The doctrine of Christian perfection was not with him a matter of abstract faith. He was continually groaning after the fullness of Christ, and eminently did he walk with God, and was not, for God took him. Few among us, we believe, have so clear a record, or furnished so beautiful an example that the blood of Christ cleanseth from all sin. In all of the relations of life Brother Law was a model of Christian excellence. His natural amiability of character and sweetness of spirit, sanctified by divine grace and consecrated upon God's holy altar, made him powerless for evil and potent for good. In all of the varied relations of life he seemed more like a celestial visitant than an inhabitant of earth. He was a good man, and full of faith and the Holy Ghost.

The loss sustained by this conference in his removal from us can only be appreciated by the older members, who for a quarter of a century have been associated with him in the endearment of conference relations.

May the record of our departure be equally glorious and our reunion eternal!
